GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

As the final minute of her high school career ticked away, Bonnie Hirtle played as if it was the last time she would ever play basketball again.

With Fontbonne Academy ahead by 11 points, there was Hirtle, pressuring anyone who had the ball in the backcourt, desperately trying to create some kind of turnover with hopes of a miraculous comeback to prolong Quincy's season.

"I think she was feeling it was her last high school game," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "Certainly she didn't want it to end this game. She had a great, tremendous career.

"She's just a competitor right to the end. She was really giving it her all on defense, trying to make something happen. I think it was frustrating for her to see it slip away from us. We certainly hoped to go farther than this this year."

Seventh-seeded Quincy's 52-41 home loss to 10th-seeded Fontbonne last Wednesday ended its season in the first round of the Division 2 South Sectional tournament for the second year in a row.

For Fontbonne head coach Clare Murphy, a Quincy native, it was her 100th victory in her six years at the helm.

Although Hirtle, Sarah Shea, Brittney Tobin and Julie Andrews walk away from the hardwood with disappointment, they enjoyed successful careers and helped turn the program around.

Last year, they led the Presidents, who were winless just two seasons prior, to the state tournament after a 20-year drought. This season, they improved their record by a game, from 14-7 to 15-6, and made another postseason appearance.

Hirtle, of course, leaves Coddington Street as one of the best players to wear a Quincy High uniform. A three-time league all-star, she became the school's all-time leading scorer earlier this year and graduates with 1,348 career points.

"I'm proud of the seniors: Brittney Tobin, Bonnie Hirtle, Sarah Shea, Julie Andrews," Bretsch said. "Just the heart and soul they brought to this team over the past few years. We've managed to turn this thing around. I'm proud of the way they came to play every day."

Five days before the Fontbonne game, the Presidents caught a bad break when Shea, the starting point guard, tore the anterior cruciate ligament in her left knee during the Atlantic Coast League all-star game.

While junior backup Rebekah Sorensen (five assists) filled in admirably, Quincy obviously would've liked to have had its three-year starter and two-time all-star directing the offense. All she could do was cheer for her teammates from the bench.

"That was a big loss for us," Bretsch said. "We're fortunate to have a good backup point guard in Rebekah Sorensen. Not a lot of teams have that. But Sarah's an all-star. It's tough not to have her."

Trailing by 14 points with under 12 minutes to play, Quincy went on an 8-0 spurt to close the gap to 38-32 with 9:50 left. Junior center Alysia DiMuzio hit one of two free throws, Tobin (eight points, six assists) knocked down consecutive jumpers and Hirtle buried a 3-pointer to cap the run.

Bretsch said he was feeling good about his team's chances at that point. "I was," he said. "Our defense picked it up a notch. We were creating pressure and they were having some trouble with it."

If Bretsch had known that Hirtle's trey — her first field goal of the game — would be her only field goal of the game, he might have had a different outlook. Hirtle, who came in averaging 24.6 points, finished with a season-low six.

Quincy was down 40-35 with about eight minutes remaining, before Fontbonne senior center Courtney Riley of Quincy hit a pair of free throws and sophomore guard Julianna Eagles of Quincy drained a 3-pointer for a 10-point advantage. The Presidents never made another run.

"I thought the kids fought really hard," Bretsch said. "Fontbonne made a lot of shots and we struggled to make shots. I thought my kids played great. They worked really hard on defense. We did all the things we talked about in practice. I felt the kids played with a lot of heart. They didn't play nervous basketball. They played confident. It just wasn't our day."

In the first half, sophomore forward Jessica Page scored 13 points. She finished with 17 and grabbed 10 rebounds, both career-highs and team-highs. She tied the game at 18 with a 3-pointer from the top of the key and knotted it at 20 with a low-post move with 3:55 left.

"We got an exceptional game from Jessica Page," Bretsch said. "She played her best game of the season. She came out with no fear at all."

Unfortunately, the Presidents didn't score again, while Fontbonne went on an 11-0 run to take a 31-20 lead into the locker room at halftime. Riley, a 6-3 center, began to make her presence known late in the half, scoring all 10 first-half points in the final six minutes. She finished with a game-high 20 points along with seven rebounds and five blocks.

"We'd get her to take a tough first shot, but she'd end up with the second one," Bretsch said. "When a 6-3 girl gets it one foot from the hoop there's not much you can do. I thought my post players, Nicole O'Sullivan and Alysia DiMuzio, really gave everything they had on defense."

As for next season, Quincy should field another strong unit despite graduating three-fifths of its starting lineup, including its all-star backcourt.

DiMuzio, an all-star, will return along with O'Sullivan to form a senior frontcourt. Page, who had a breakout game, is only a sophomore. Sorensen will return to the point, while bench players junior Stephanie Kozlowski and sophomore Ashlee Scott will also be back.

"That's a nice nucleus," Bretsch said. "We have a good team coming back. We really do. We're going to be a tough team next year."

NQ Boys' Hoop Fall To Eagles

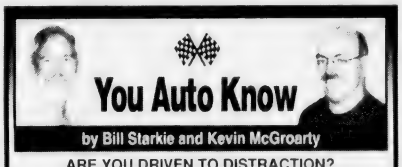
The North Quincy High School boys' basketball team hoped the strength of its regular season schedule would prepare them for the level of play in the state tournament.

During the season the Red Raiders performed well against Silver Lake (Division 1's top seed), Bridgewater-Raynham (Division 1's third seed) and Rockland (Division 3's second seed).

But head coach Jim Rendle said the talented and hungry BC High squad they faced last Tuesday was a step above that competition.

A six-point game with about three minutes left in the first half, the second-seeded Eagles turned on the jets and soared to a 81-40 victory over 15th-seeded North Quincy in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectional.



BC High was determined not to make another exit in the first-round, where it was upset last year as the top seed.

"They were by far the best team we played all year," Rendle said. "I hoped we'd rise to their level. We were dominated in almost every aspect of the game.

"It was our first time in the tournament. There was a huge crowd. It was a little bit of deer in the headlights. We were shell-shocked."

Although seniors Daryl Costa, Jimmy Burke, Brandon Neves and Bryan Donovan were instrumental in the Red Raiders reaching the postseason, Rendle is excited about next year's

ARE YOU DRIVEN TO DISTRACTION?

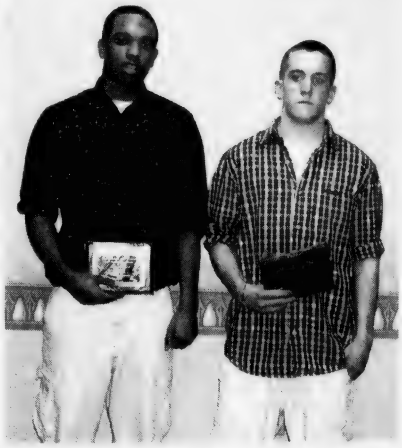
According to one estimate, distracted driving is a factor in 25-50% of all motor vehicle crashes, reflecting the fact that many drivers are at least partially engaged in activities other than driving while behind the wheel. In fact, a new observational research study conducted by the American Automobile Association shows that all motorists engage in potentially distracting activities while driving. For instance, 97.1% of those surveyed admitted to reaching or leaning 3.8% of the time, and 91.4% said that they manipulated the music/audio controls in their vehicles. Other distracting activities included eating/drinking, conversing, grooming, reading/writing and, of course, talking on cell phones. It is important for drivers to realize that these distractions compromise the safety of everyone on the road.



LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is very proud of our ASE Certified technicians and of the equipment they have on hand to properly service every system of your car. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Whether your car needs new a tune-up or major repairs, see us first. club.

North Quincy will return seven players who saw plenty of minutes this season. They are junior David Djerf and sophomores Kyle Costa, Kevin Donovan, John Murray, Akil Benjamin, Joe Johnson and Tom Power.

"We have some experience coming back, kids that got a lot of playing time this year," Rendle said. "I think we'll be back in the tournament next year, and we'll be better. I think the kids learned from this. I learned a lot. It was my first time in the tournament as a head coach. We knew it was going to be a learning experience, and we learned a serious lesson."

In their final game of their careers, Neves, a center, poured in a team-high 16 points and hauled nine rebounds, while forward Daryl Costa contributed with 15 points. "I'm happy with Brandon Neves," Rendle said. "He played tough against the big kids from BC High."

In addition to Neves' job on the glass, Johnson grabbed eight rebounds off the bench in limited time because of foul trouble. "One aspect I thought we did well was rebounding. We stayed with them on the boards pretty well," Rendle said.

Down 28-22, the Eagles closed the first half with a deflating 12-2 run to take a 40-24 lead into the locker room. And they opened the second half with another 12-2 spurt and never looked back.

"We were hoping to be in the game at halftime," Rendle said. "That put them up 16 and it took the wind out of our sails. Then they started to shoot lights out in the second half."

"We really didn't play good team defense," he added. "I'm disappointed that we didn't stay with them longer. I'm disappointed we didn't contain them defensively. I know they're a strong team offensively, but I expected to compete with them for awhile."

Kate Mihevc Running In San Diego Marathon June 6

Kate Mihevc of Quincy will run in the San Diego Marathon June 6 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's Team in Training.

The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society is a national voluntary health agency dedicated to curing leukemia, Hodgkin's disease and myeloma to improve the quality of life for the patients and their families. Last year the Massachusetts chapter raised nearly $3 million.

It's estimated that leukemia and its related cancers will strike over 100,000 Americans this year alone.

"I have always run for myself, but now I am running for someone else," Mihevc said. "My brother, Luke, is a leukemia survivor. If it weren't for all the research previously done he may not have survived. Needless to say, this organization holds a special place in my heart. This is my opportunity to give back to those who helped my family out when we needed it most."

KATE MIHEVC

The Team in Training is the largest endurance-training program in the country. This year there are six different events to choose from. They include half-marathons, marathons and triathlons. Team in Training members meet regularly for group runs, walks, rides and swims. Mihevc runs with the city team, which meets at MIT on Thursdays and Saturdays.

Mihevc needs to raise $3,800 for the society by May. Those who would like to donate, can send checks payable to The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, to Kate Mihevc, 55 Pleasant St., Quincy 02169.

Arthritis and Exercise

Q. I am experiencing arthritis in my knees and slightly in my hands. Can exercise help alleviate some of my symptoms? If so, what type of activities or exercise program should I participate in? — *L.W., Atlanta

A. The term "arthritis" means "joint inflammation" and covers a group of more than 100 diseases. There are many forms of arthritis with symptoms that cause stiffness, pain, redness, inflammation and tenderness in your joints. Osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis and gout are common forms of arthritis.

Before embarking on an exercise program, you should ask your doctor to diagnose the specific form of arthritis you are experiencing. Once that is identified, he or she can recommend guidelines for you to follow when starting an exercise program. Your doctor more than likely will refer you to a physical therapist or fitness professional to assist you in setting up a proper and safe exercise program.

Along with other treatments, exercise is a great way to help manage your arthritis symptoms. According to The Cleveland Clinic, a personally designed exercise program can help relieve pain and fatigue while preserving joint structure and function.

A program focusing on stretching and flexibility, strengthening exercises and aerobic conditioning can help protect your joints and relieve some symptoms. Here are a few examples:

• Stretching and flexibility exercises help to maintain range of motion in your joints. They can be performed as a way to warm up before strength and aerobic exercise. Stretching should be done gently and slowly.

• Strengthening exercises help keep muscles around the joints strong and stable to protect them from further damage.

• Aerobic exercises keep your heart rate up for an extended period of time, conditioning your cardiovascular system. This is also important for improving muscle endurance and helping to maintain weight through calorie expenditure.

• Maintaining a normal weight will keep unwanted stress off joints.

• Your doctor may also recommend other forms of exercise, such as water exercises, yoga or Pilates.

As you begin to exercise, your body will have to adapt to the new stresses placed on it. Since everyone reacts to exercise differently, it's very important that you contact your doctor if you begin to experience any symptoms making your arthritis worse (such as increased fatigue, swelling or discomfort lasting longer than a few days).

March Is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month

March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month. Colorectal cancer, which includes cancers of the colon, rectum and anus, is the second-deadliest cancer in the United States, after lung cancer.

Although the death rate from colorectal cancer has been decreasing for the past 15 years, the American Cancer Society estimates that 57,100 people died as a result of the disease in 2003. One in 18 Americans will develop colorectal cancer in the their lifetime.

Fortunately, colorectal cancers are highly treatable if found early. In fact, the survival rate for people with colorectal cancers detected in its early stages is more than 90 percent, according to the Colon Cancer Alliance.

"Some people find talking about colorectal cancer uncomfortable or embarrassing," said Lawrence Wagman, M.D., chair, Division of Surgery at City of Hope Cancer Center in Los Angeles. "But being aware of risk factors and taking active measures to prevent the disease through regular screening and a healthy lifestyle is very important."

Risk factors associated with colorectal cancer include:

• Personal history of colorectal cancer, bowel disease or polyps.

• Family history of colorectal cancer.

• Being older than 50 years of age.

• A diet of mostly high-fat foods.

Dr. Wagman suggests reducing the risk of developing colorectal cancer by exercising regularly, eating a diet rich in fruits, vegetables and whole grains and limiting the consumption of high-fat foods.

Some studies also suggest that taking supplements containing folic acid, folate or calcium might reduce colorectal cancer risk.

Screening for colorectal cancer is important since many symptoms often do not appear until after the disease has advanced. Although colorectal cancer may not necessarily be the case, contact a physician if any of the following occur:

• A change in bowel habits that lasts for more than a few days.

• Bleeding from the rectum.

• Blood in the stool.

• Cramping or gnawing stomach pains.

For more information about colorectal cancer research and treatment, contact City of Hope Cancer Center at 1-800-826-HOPE or visit www.cityofhope.org.

Walk Your Way To Better Health

(NAPS) — The road to good health may start with a single step. If you are restless, bored, unhappy, overweight or stressed out, walking can be a great remedy, a new book reveals.

Small Steps—Big Rewards (Small Steps Press, $19.95) provides all the information you need to start a "walking for health" program. Health and government agencies recommend that Americans set a goal of walking 10,000 steps a day for better health. To meet this requirement, the book comes with a Bodytronics ProStep pedometer with complete instructions to count your daily steps. You'll also learn:

• How walking can help those with diabetes: Researchers at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control & Prevention report people with diabetes who walked at least two hours per week decrease their overall mortality risk by 39 percent. Other studies prove that regular physical activities can help people with diabetes avoid or delay the development of heart disease, stroke, kidney disease, nerve damage and vision loss.

• How walking can make anyone more fit: Being thin doesn't automatically make a person fit. Overweight people who walk are healthier than thin people who are inactive.

• How to get motivated to walk: The book features tips on making walking a family or social event; there are contacts for organizations that promote challenging group walking activities such as Volksmarching, letter boxing and water aerobics.

Kids To Kick Smoking's Butt March 31

(NAPS) Every day in the U.S., another 2,000 children become regular, daily smokers. One-third of them will die prematurely from a smoking-caused disease. If current trends continue, more than six million of today's children will eventually die from smoking.

In growing numbers, America's youth are fighting back against these terrible statistics. They're educating their peers about the dangers of smoking and urging elected officials to pass laws that help reduce tobacco use.

For instance, each year, thousands of kids across the country participate in Kick Butts Day, a national event sponsored by the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids, that makes kids leaders in the effort to stop youth tobacco use. This year's events are on March 31.

According to Campaign President Matthew L. Myers, this year's events will focus on two important messages. "Kids want the tobacco industry to stop targeting them with advertising and they want elected leaders at all levels to do more to protect them from tobacco."

Each year, Kick Butts Day efforts include surveying tobacco advertising in their communities, urging local officials to support anti-tobacco ordinances and tossing caps, hats, jackets and other items carrying tobacco brand names into giant dumpsters. In 2003, youth carried out more than 1,500 events.

"Kids are a powerful part of the solution to reducing youth tobacco use," says Myers.

Tobacco use is the leading preventable cause of death in the U.S., killing more than 400,000 people every year. By preventing kids from ever starting to smoke, it's hoped that Kick Butts Day can help change that.

REPLACE MISSING TEETH

As its name implies, a "fixed bridge" is a dental appliance that bridges gaps between teeth by replacing missing teeth. This is accomplished by setting the prosthetic tooth (called a pontic) in place by cementing the bridge to healthy abutment teeth on either side of the gap. Thus, a fixed bridge typically is composed of a pontic fused between two crowns that attach to abutment teeth. Aside from a traditional bridge, another popular design is the resin bonded, or Maryland, bridge. This makes use of a pontic fused to metal bands that can be bonded to the abutment teeth with resin cement and hidden from view. This design reduces the amount of preparation that healthy abutment teeth need endure.

If you have any questions about your chances for replacing lost teeth through the latest techniques, call us at 617-479-6220. Always feel free to discuss your dental concerns with us. We can provide you with bridges, dentures, or crowns. For a happy, healthy, and good-looking smile, we urge you to have a check-up soon. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

Celtic Worship March 14 At Quincy Point Congregational

NANCY HURRELL

Music from the clarsach (Scottish harp) played by Nancy Hurrell, and the Highland Bagpipes played by Matthew McArthur will greet worshippers at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday, March 14 at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Liturgy and music from both ancient and contemporary Celtic sources will be offered as the church remembers the spiritual heritage of St. Patrick, Bishop of Ard Macha (Armagh).

Hurrell teaches at the Boston Conservatory as a member of the collaborative harp department, specializing in early music and Scottish/Irish music. She has appeared as a soloist for the premiere of the Scottish work for clarsach and string quartet at the Boston Public Library.

For more information about "Worship in the Celtic Spirit," for St. Patrick's Day Sunday, contact the Rev. Ann G. Suzedell, pastor, Quincy Point Congregational Church, at 617-773-6424.

Quincy Point Congregational

Sunday morning worship will be led by the Rev. Ann G. Suzedell at 10 a.m. Sunday, which is also Stewardship Sunday, "For Where Your Treasurer Is, There Your Heart Will be Also" at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be celebrated. Rev. Suzedell's sermon will be "Where Is Your Treasure?" Joyce Romeri will be Deacon of the Day. Samantha McGhee will serve as greeter, Chris Janis the lay reader and Glenn McGhee the greeter.

Bethany Congregational

The Rev. William Harding, senior pastor, will conduct the 10 a.m. worship service at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, this Sunday.

His sermon is entitled "The Door to Heaven." There will be a moment for the children of the Church School before they go to their classes.

Members of the Diaconate will assist the ministers in serving Holy Communion, including Ken and Mildred Rickson, William MacDonald and Jean Baker.

Scripture reader will be Vivian Miller.

Childcare will be provided for infants and toddlers.

The annual meeting of the church membership will be held in the sanctuary after the worship service with Moderator Matt Hughes, presiding.

It will also be Pantry Shelf Sunday with all of the foods collected to help fill the food bank shelves at the Interfaith Social Services headquarters.

A Lenten service will be held in the Bethany Chapel every Wednesday during Lent beginning at 7 a.m. A light breakfast will follow.

The Prayer Group meets Wednesday at 7 p.m. followed by Bible Study at 7:30 p.m.

A Community Chamber Concert will be held Sunday, March 21 at 3 p.m. It will feature members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Admission is free but tickets must be reserved two weeks prior to the concert. Phone 617-638-9300.

A casual reception will be held following the concert providing an opportunity to speak with the musicians.

A Thought For The Week

Nobody can deny that today's pace of living is very complicated and rapid. The human mind and body is called upon to adjust itself to a faster and faster tempo.

Bewilderment, as problems require a solution; worry and anxiety over success or failure is common. The steady strain of business, in an effort to acquire more and have every available comfort, adds to the nervous strain. High tension is taking a heavy toll of professional men and women.

Probably the best antidote for strain is a relaxed sense of humor. Believe it or not, there are many things in life one can laugh about whether he wins or loses, succeeds or fails. To do so means a longer life and a better chance to reverse one's errors.

Victor Hugo once said, "Laughter is the sun that drives winter from the human face." . . . We agree . . . Don't you?

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

FAMOUS BLONDES

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Take time from your busy schedule to check out what's going on around you. You might find that someone has been secretly trying to pull the wool over those beautiful Sheep's eyes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Once again, the Bovine's boldness pays off in uncovering the source of a disturbing workplace situation. Your personal life calls for patience, as a certain matter plays itself out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Forget about going all out to impress someone in your personal life. Just being yourself is all that matters. A workplace decision will need more time. Don't rush into it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Some supersensitive Crabs might take offense at what they perceive as a slight. But a closer look points to a simple misunderstanding. The weekend holds a welcome surprise.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Sure, you can roar your head off over someone's failure to keep a promise. But the wiser course would be to ask why it happened. Be prepared for an answer that might well surprise you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A developing relationship needs time to find its direction. So please be patient and resist pushing things along. A recently cooled-down workplace situation could heat up again.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Congratulations. Your well-thought-out proposal seems to be working. Someone who hasn't agreed with you on most things in the past could turn out to be one of your major supporters.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Things seem to be going well. However, you can still expect criticism — some of it pretty heavy. But as long as you can back up your position, you'll be able to rise above it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Getting together with people who care for you is a great way to get that ego boost you might feel you need at this time. Things start to look brighter by week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You should be able to continue with your plans once you get past those temporary delays. Surprise, surprise. An offer to help comes from a most unlikely source.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Prioritizing your tasks is important this week because of all those demands you have to deal with. The pressure eases in time for you to enjoy the weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Save your energy and stay focused on what has to be done, despite all those distractions you're likely to face. You should see some evidence of real progress by week's end.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a generous, giving person who is always ready, willing and more than able to help others who might be in need.

Agnes Giammalvo, 97

Former Restaurant Owner

A funeral Mass for Agnes (Accardi) Giammalvo, 87, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, a homemaker and former restaurant owner, was celebrated Feb. 27 at St. Francis Xavier Church in Weymouth.

Mrs. Giammalvo owned Peter's Lunch on Blue Hill Avenue in Roxbury from 1960 to 1968.

Born in Marsala, Italy, she lived for many years in Roxbury and in Wollaston before moving to Weymouth in 2001.

Wife of the late Ignazio Giammalvo, she is survived by a son, Peter Giammalvo of Quincy; two daughters, Ann Azar of South Weymouth and Josephine Cohen of Norwood; 14 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

She was the mother of the late Bernie Giammalvo and the late Theresa Davis.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by McDonald Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 1115 W. Chestnut St., Brockton 02301.

Jacqueline L. Price, 79

Colonial Optical Co. Employee

She died Feb. 27 at Milton Hospital following a long illness.

Mrs. Price worked for many years at Colonial Optical Company in Quincy and held various other jobs.

She was a member of Houghs Neck Congregational Church and the Mothers Club in Quincy.

A lifelong Quincy resident, she graduated from Quincy High School in 1942.

She is survived by her husband, Frederick S. Price; a son, Fred Price Jr.; two daughters, Lu Ann Radcliffe and Cindy Maher; a brother, Ted Reichert Jr.; and a sister, Beverly DiGiacomo. She was the mother of the late John Price.

Arrangements were by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Donations may be made to Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy 02169.

Mary F. Codner, 64

Food Service Worker

A funeral Mass for Mary F. (Fanara) Codner, 64, of Quincy, a homemaker, was celebrated Feb. 26 at St. John's Church.

Mrs. Codner worked in the food service industry.

Born in Waltham, she was a lifelong Quincy resident. She graduated from Quincy High School in 1958.

She is survived by her husband of 43 years, Donald J. Codner; a son, Donald J. Codner of Quincy; two daughters, Nancy A. Sweeney of Hanover and Susan T. Codner of Quincy; a brother, John Fanara of Cape Cod; two sisters, Jean Corrigan of Braintree and Madeline Guglielmi of Quincy; five grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to St. John the Baptist Church, 21 Gay St., Quincy 02169.

We need you.

Kerry Easy Winner Over Edwards

There were 107 "no preference" votes in the Democratic primary.

In addition to Massachusetts, returns at press time gave Kerry wins in New York, Ohio, Georgia, Connecticut, Maryland and Rhode Island.

Other ballot results:

Bernice C. Mader, aide to former Mayor James Sheets, was re-elected as Democratic State Committeewoman in the Norfolk and Plymouth District. She had a 5,577 vote (99.23 percent) in Quincy. District returns were incomplete.

Christine M. Cedrone, former Quincy School Committee member, was the only candidate for Republican State Committeewoman in that district. She had 784 votes (98.62 percent) in Quincy which virtually assured her of winning the seat. The district returns were incomplete.

Patrick McDermott, former Quincy city councillor now Norfolk County Register of Probate, appeared to be the winner in a sticker-write-in campaign for Democratic State Committeeman in the Norfolk and Plymouth District.

Applications Available For 6 Squantum School Scholarships

Six scholarships will be awarded to graduating seniors who attended the Squantum School.

There are two $250 Squantum School PTO Scholarships one male and one female recipient.

There are two $100 scholarships designated as the Squantum School John J. Sullivan Sr. Memorial Scholarship and the Squantum School Maryrose Sullivan Memorial Scholarship. These scholarships have been established by Mrs. Barbara Arnold, a teacher at the Squantum School, in memory of her father and grandmother.

There are two $100 scholarships designated as the Virginia Marie Whalen Memorial Scholarships in memory of Virginia Whalen, who worked as a lunch matron at the school for over thirty years.

Application forms are available in the guidance offices of North Quincy High School, Quincy High School/Center For Technical Education, and the Squantum School office. Application must be completed and returned to the Squantum School no later than March 31. The winners will be chosen by lottery drawing.

Election Worker Ambrose Milford Dies

Ambrose "Chick" Milford, 77, of 69 Kent St., collapsed and died Tuesday while serving as an election worker in Ward 4, Precinct 1 at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

Milford and his wife, Marcela, served as election employees for the city for many years. Marcela is a retired assistant city treasurer.

Blesssed Sacrament Chart Listing Inaccurate

The number of two sacraments administered at Blessed Sacrament Church were incorrectly listed in a chart in last week's Quincy Sun.

Rev. William English said the correct numbers are: First Communion, 35. Confirmation, 32.

The figures listed in the chart for all eight Quincy parishes were obtained from The Pilot, the Boston Archdiocesan newspaper.

BEECHWOOD KNOLL SCHOOL second- and third-graders presented a check for $1,800 to Broad Meadows Middle School in memory of that school's late principal, Mrs. Anne Marie Zukauskas. The money, raised by a read-a-thon, will go into the Student Need Fund in her name. Shown at the presentation are Thomas Zukauskas, husband of Mrs. Zukauskas; Beechwood Knoll Principal Colleen Roberts, Broad Meadows Acting Principal Angela Godfrey, and students Matthew Levine and Shauna Fox holding a large facsimile of the check.

In Tribute To Anne Marie Zukauskas

Beechwood Knoll Pupils Raise $1,800 In Memory Of Principal

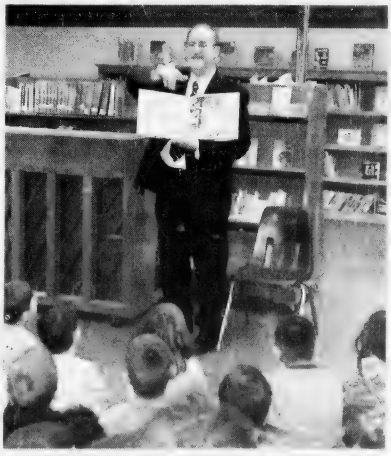
Her dedication did not escape the minds of second and third graders at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School.

Last week, Beechwood Knoll students presented a check for $1,800 to the Broad Meadows Middle School in memory of the late principal after conducting a read-a-thon in February called, "Read Your Heart Out." Mrs. Zukauskas was principal of the Broad Meadows School.



Students presented the check to Thomas Zukauskas, husband of Ann Marie, and Broad Meadows Principal Angela Godfrey. Mr. Zukauskas is the executive director of the Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, which is based in Quincy.

Each year, the school holds a similar event and dedicates the funds to a different individual.

This year, coordinators Deborah DeAngelis, a second grade teacher, and Beechwood Knoll Principal Colleen Roberts, decided to donate the funds in Zukauskas' memory.

The top fundraisers, grade 3 student Matthew Levine and grade 2 student Shauna Fox, along with Roberts, presented the check.

Broad Meadows Middle School will put the funds into a Student Need Fund in Zukauskas' name.

THOMAS ZUKAUSKAS thanked the Beechwood Knoll School second- and third-graders for honoring the memory of his late wife, Mrs. Anne Marie Zukauskas, principal of the Broad Meadows Middle School, who died in December, by reading them a story on friendship entitled "The Other Side."

$7 Limit At Ross Garage, Hancock Lot

$1 Per Hour Parking Proposed

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

It may soon cost more money to park your car in the Ross Parking Garage or Hancock Parking lot.

At Monday night's city council meeting, Traffic Engineer Roy Lamotte Jr. proposed increasing on-street parking fees and the cost of monthly passes for those who park in the Ross Garage and Hancock Parking Lot. Currently, it is free to park in either garage for the first two hours. Motorists pay 25 cents per hour beyond that.

Under the city's proposal, motorists entering either garage would pay $1 per hour for a maximum of $7 for the day. Monthly parking rates would jump from $55 to $70, according to Lamotte.

He said the city is roughly one-half to one-third less expensive than other communities. The cost to park for one hour or less is free in Quincy, whereas the cost is $2 in Brockton, $5 in Boston and $2 in Malden, said Lamotte.

Instituting higher fees will help the city accomplish a number of goals, such as installing new parking control equipment, produce more parking turnover of cars, improve customer service and increase the number of monthly parkers, he said. The cost of upgrading the parking equipment is $2.5 million, or about $150,000, he said.

Lamotte wants the parking system to be self-sustaining. All fees would go directly back to parking-related needs. Taxpayer money would not be used to fund operations, he said.

In addition, he said the city is losing $1,000 per year due to quiet arrangements with local businesses.

"Atlas pointe the city has paid its debt to these businesses," said Lamotte. "The city would like to dissolve those arrangements so all users are paying a fair rate."

He said a number of issues prompted the change:

- Low costs produce low turnover of spaces.
- Motorists leave after two hours without a charge and then return for another two hours. In total, some motorists park for many hours without paying a parking fee.
- Quincy District Court users take many spaces and pay little or no parking fees.
- Motorists park for six hours for a $7 fee, which is very low compared to other communities.

Lamotte is expected to present the proposal [illegible] meeting. [illegible] the city [illegible] motion.

Dogs Banned From City Recreational Facilities

Dogs are being banned from Quincy's active recreational facilities because of the problem waste they leave.

The Park and Recreation Board, following complaints from the public, has reaffirmed a previous decision to ban dogs from the facilities including playing fields, tot lots, beaches, basketball, tennis and street hockey courts.

Jack Nigro, chairman of the Park and Recreation Board, stressed the importance of creating public awareness of the rules and policies promulgated by the board which apply to all parkland.

"The board voted long ago on this issue, yet dog owners continually fail to comply with the policy," Nigro said. "It is our hope that by erecting signage and keeping the public better informed through the media, all promote better compliance and ultimately remedy this long standing issue."

facilities is also making field maintenance and upkeep a more difficult task.

"My office consistently receives complaints from the general public utilizing our athletic fields regarding the overwhelming presence of dog waste in our parks," said Thomas P. Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery departments.

"Clearly this issue requires attention as it is our goal as a department to provide quality athletic facilities to the citizens of Quincy. Obviously, this problem is impeding us from achieving that goal."

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch acknowledged that the situation has worsened through the years.

"I have been approached by many parents of summer program participants who expressed their displeasure for unleashed dogs in play areas as they often are intimidating and disruptive when confronting children at play," Welch said.

Massachusetts General Laws and the Amended Ordinances of the city of Quincy prohibit dogs from being unleashed and defecating on public and private property, and mandate that dogs be vaccinated for the rabies virus and licensed. Violation of these laws subject dog owners to a fine.

The enforcement of these laws falls under the jurisdiction of the Quincy Police Department and Donald Conboy, animal control officer for the city.

"It has been brought to my attention that dog owners/keepers are in violation of laws, specifically those which speak to removing and disposing of dog excrement on properties both public and private and leash regulations," Conboy said. "We will see to it that these laws are strictly enforced so as to restore the quality and conditions of our park system."

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele noted the additional health concerns surrounding the issue.

"Direct contact with dog excrement carries the risk of humans contracting various diseases such as salmonella, brucelliosis, listeriosis, campylobacter, hookworm, toxocariasis and cryptospeoridium," Scheele said. "The health hazards associated with this issue are very real and pose significant threat to the health and welfare of citizens if this problem is not addressed."

Scheele also stressed that anyone who comes in contact with dog feces should wash their hands immediately to prevent the contraction of such disease.

The Park and Recreation Board was also sympathetic to the needs of dog-owning, law-abiding citizens.

"The board has requested I research dog parks that have been proven successful in other states and municipalities," Koch said. "Until we have more information or locate adequate space to do so, dog owners are more than welcome to utilize passive recreation areas, such as wooded trails and open areas not designated for athletic use provided that the dogs be leashed and that owners assume their responsibility to pick up after their dogs."

QTA 'Tax Emergency' Sessions Begin March 16

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association will hold three "tax emergency" sessions beginning March 16 from 7 to 8:45 p.m. in the community meeting room of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Alan Cousin, QTA president, said the group has called in a number of experts to talk about financial issues in the city.

The first session, titled, "Approaching Elected Officials," will be attended by Councillor Joe Finn and former Mayor, Councillor and Assessor Joseph LaRaia.

The second session, on Thursday, March 25, will target property taxation. LaRaia will also attend this meeting.

The final session, on April 1, will focus on municipal budgeting in Quincy. QTA Vice President Robert Haley will be the guest.

All sessions will be the same time, are free and open to the public.

But No Guarantees After July 1

No Cuts In Services This Fiscal Year, Fire Chief Says

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city will not lose a piece of firefighting equipment for the remainder of the fiscal year, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell told the city council Monday night.

O'Connell appeared before the council and fielded questions from a number of councillors who are concerned about the fate of the fire department and Engine 4 in particular.

But the chief allayed some fears by ensuring the council that there would be no cuts in services, at least this fiscal year.

The fire department's overtime budget is facing a deficit, but O'Connell said he will be able to cover it by utilizing funds from six positions that were not filled in the fiscal year.

"There is sufficient funds for the rest of the year," he told the council. "I have six vacant positions, and there is enough money to get us through the end of the fiscal year."

O'Connell said it was unlikely the city would hire any new firefighters in the fiscal year.

"I don't see us hiring between now and the end of June," O'Connell said.

The department will need an additional $300,000 to cover overtime until June 30, the end of the fiscal year. The department's $600,000 overtime budget will be exhausted in mid April, according to Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi criticized the administration's move, saying the firefighter positions should be filled.

"I voted for a budget that contained a certain amount of firefighters," he said. "We were told last year that $600,000 would be sufficient to cover overtime in the fire department."

But Council President Frank McCauley didn't see anything wrong with the chief's decision.

"My sense is the mayor is trying to build up a little breakage," said McCauley. "I don't think the mayor is doing anything incorrectly."

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro gave O'Connell a petition containing more than 400 signatures from Wollaston residents who are concerned about cuts in firefighting services.

After the meeting, Coughlin expressed concern with the future of the fire department.

"Either we run on overtime or we run fully complemented, and this administration wants to run on overtime," he said. "Already, we are below staffing levels and there are more firefighters scheduled to retire this summer. I don't know how the fire department we see today will be the fire department we see in July."

Sleepovers May Resume This Spring At USS Salem

Sleepovers will resume at the USS Salem in the Spring if officials implement a number of recommendations handed down by the state Building Board of Appeals.

According to former Mayor James Sheets, chairman of the museum's board of directors, the Salem will be able to implement all recommendations in a month's time.

"We are very pleased with the decision," Sheets told the Sun. "We believe we will be able to comply with these requests - they are very reasonable."

The state Building Board of Appeals issued nine recommendations:

- Reduce present bunks in each berthing area by one half;
- Remove bunks protruding into exitways and bunks that cause bottlenecks in deadened areas;
- Emboss egress pathways on the floor by use of a 12-inch wide yellow line with

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 12, 1888, the most severe winter storm ever to hit the New York City region reaches blizzard proportions, costing hundreds of lives and millions of dollars in property damage. The 36-hour blizzard dumped some 40 inches of snow on the city.

• On March 9, 1917, several hundred Mexican guerrillas under the command of Francisco "Pancho" Villa cross the U.S.-Mexican border and attack the small border town of Columbus, N.M. Seventeen Americans were killed in the raid, and President Woodrow Wilson ordered the Army into Mexico to capture the rebel leader dead or alive.

• On March 10, 1926, "Lolly Willowes, or The Loving Huntsman," the first Book-of-the-Month Club selection, is published by Viking Press. The book was written by English novelist Sylvia Townsend Warner, who had intended to become a musicologist, not a writer.

• On March 14, 1931, the Trans-Lux Theater opens in Manhattan. It was the first theater specifically designed and built to show movies that were rear-projected.

• On March 8, 1936, Daytona Beach, Fla., stages its first race strictly for stock cars on a combination beach and public roadway course. The race is remembered as the impetus for today's NASCAR.

• On March 13, 1980, Henry Ford II resigns as Chairman of the Ford Motor Co., and the era of the Ford family as an automotive dynasty temporarily ended.

• On March 11, 1989, reality-based TV show "Cops" is first broadcast nationally on the Fox network. The fledgling network took the show after the major networks passed on it, and stunned the industry by producing a popular show that spawned numerous other reality-based programs.

Finn Warming Up For Mayoral Run?

Joe Finn isn't saying he is.

And he isn't saying he isn't.

But he sounds like he could be warming up for a run for mayor — next year.

FINN

Asked if there's anything to the speculation that he will run, Finn says:

"I don't know what the future holds. Right now, I want to be the most effective city councillor at-large that I can be."

But he adds:

"If you are asking me if I would rule out the possibility of running for mayor, I would say I would not rule it out."

And:

"If I thought I could make a difference, I would be right in there. Right in there running for mayor."

Finn and Mayor William Phelan aren't exactly what you would call political buddies. They have different styles, different approaches to issues — and differences in general.

"There are some serious issues here," Finn says. "A need for public works equipment. A capital improvement plan. A fire department plan. A competent executive director for the Quincy Housing Authority which is in difficult financial times. And, other pressing issues.

"We need a direction. Sometimes we (city council, mayor) are not rowing the boat together in the same direction."

If he were to run, would he challenge Phelan or would he run only if Phelan doesn't seek re-election?

"What I do," Finn says, "will not be shaped on what he does. What I do will depend on what happens in the next year and a half."

There's another sign he could be getting ready for a mayoral bid.

The "Committee to Elect Joe Finn" is holding a fundraiser Thursday, April 1, 6 to 8 p.m. at the Adams Inn, North Quincy.

The tickets don't say to elect Joe Finn to what. They're going for $49.99, and that is interesting. By being under $50, the names and addresses of those donating do not have to be listed under Massachusetts law.

Is this the first step in building a war chest to finance a mayoral campaign next year? Observers think it would take something in the neighborhood of $200,000 to wage an effective campaign.

Finn muses that his account is down around $1,500 right now, and says: "The fundraiser is needed resources to run a city-wide campaign."

He doesn't say a city-wide campaign for councillor at-large or one for mayor.

But some close to him think it's going to be a mayoral campaign.

Finn does well in the vote-getting department.

Now in his second term as councillor at-large, he finished a strong second to Frank McCauley in last year's election. His vote was 9,748 — just 122 behind the veteran campaigner and former mayor's 9,870. John Keenan took the third seat with 8,827.

That fundraiser, incidentally, is being called "An April Fool's Day Celebration."

But it's no joke.

A letter going out from Committee Chairman Mike Berry with the invitations says in part:

"It takes resources to be involved in the political process and we want to be sure that we have those resources necessary to continue the good, solid municipal government that Joe brings to Quincy.

"So join us other April fools who still believe that political participation is important and support one of us who is committed to making a real difference."

MIKE BELLOTTI plans to keep his sheriff's badge. Bellotti is running for re-election for his second six-year term. He was first elected in 1998.

BELLOTTI

Bellotti has his nomination papers in circulation throughout Norfolk County.

Before pinning on the badge, he served six years as a state representative in Quincy's First Norfolk District.

Observers still think that some time down the road he will be a candidate for statewide office, following in his father Frank's political footsteps. The latter was lieutenant governor, attorney general and almost governor.

A QUINCY CANDIDATE — Tony McDonnell of Putnam St. — has stepped into the race for Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

McDONNELL

McDonnell, who is in the real estate business, and a Democrat, is challenging William O'Donnell of Norwood, a former Norfolk County commissioner.

O'Donnell was appointed by the commissioners to fill the vacancy created by the death of Quincy's Paul Harold. Harold, who was elected in 2000, died in August, 2002 in only his second year in that office.

McDonnell says he has close to the 1,000 voter signatures he needs on his nomination papers.

And has a fundraiser tonight (Thursday) 7 to 9 p.m. at The Adams Inn, North Quincy. Tickets are $25.

McDonnell and O'Donnell. The name similarity could cause a little voter confusion.

JUST REMINISCING (and getting away from politics for a moment): the two Quincy stores I miss the most and wish were still here: Remick's and Jason's Luggage and Music shop.

You could get a great suit, jacket, pair of shoes, etc. at Remick's and at a great price. With that special personal service from Ray Josephine, Russ Johnson, Ellie Hughes and the rest of the guys in Frank Remick's classy men's department.

And if you wanted a certain album — Glenn Miller, Harry James, Louis Armstrong or whatever — Jason Feldman either had it in stock or would have it for you the next day.

Still remember his slogan: "Why Go Chasin', Come To Jason's." And we did.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 postcard view of the old Quincy District Courthouse on the left and on the right the Thomas Crane Library in Quincy Square. Behind the trees in the center is the old Coddington School now part of Quincy College. The courthouse was built in 1911 and served as the East Norfolk District Court until it was replaced by the present building on Chestnut Street. The old courthouse was demolished in the late 1980s to make room for the still unfinished Presidents Place complex. Over the last 15 years, the site was originally proposed for a condominium building, then as a hotel, later as an office building and now the present owner has a permit to build an apartment building. Hopefully this latest proposal will come into fruition as it fits in with the long standing strategic objective to get people to live in the downtown and it will finally complete Presidents Place. ## Death Of Jane Reikard A Great Loss To Quincy Quincy has suffered a great loss with the passing of Mrs. Jane Reikard, longtime Rent Grievance Board Executive Secretary and, as such, the face and action of City officialdom in times of housing evictions and difficulties.

As noted in her obituary and stated at her memorial service, Mrs. Reikard was compassionate, knowledgeable, dedicated, tenacious and persistent, to name only a few of the tributes. Perhaps most wonderful was her fairness and courtesy to both tenants and landlords, as well as all persons she met and with whom she worked so hard to improve situation of housing affordable to Quincy residents.

Many of her colleagues (including myself) in the struggle to have more affordable housing in Quincy are hoping, praying and urging that Jane's deepest and last worry does not occur: that her position will not be continued. It came as a surprise that Jane was being paid as a part-time employee; we all know she worked full time and more, especially on Housing Court days. Her position must be filled, hopefully with someone who can grow to be as strong as she was.

Also, our dream is to create new affordable housing, named for and dedicated to Jane. With the recent discussion of developing downtown Quincy, there surely must be some room for such housing. We know it can be a reality and will be a terrific memorial for a wonderful woman who did so much for all residents. We can already see Jane nodding and hear her laughing from her new home.

Many thanks, much gratitude, and very fond memories. Jane, we miss you greatly.

A Tribute To Pfc. William Caddy

The other day while walking my dog "Mikey" down at Caddy Park, I took time to stop and read the memorial stone which dedicates this park to Private First Class William Caddy, USMC, who was killed in the Battle of Iwo Jima on March 3, 1945.

He received the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously for his valor in that World War II battle. He was only 19 years old.

I often pass a sign which reads, "If a life is worth living, It is worth remembering." This March 3 marks the 59th anniversary of Caddy's death, a death still remembered today. Pfc. Caddy didn't enjoy a long life but his life meant something to him, his family and friends.

I am glad I took the time to re-read the memorial stone at a park named for him. As long as this park lives and grows, so too will Caddy's memory.

I don't know what kind of person he was. I don't know what he looked like. I don't know his likes and dislikes. What I do know is he gave up his young life for the rest of us. I wasn't even born when he was killed but he died for this country of ours. Making it a better place for freedom. He won medals but more importantly he won a place in the hearts of people who care about standing up when called to duty.

William Caddy isn't just a park but a person whose life is still cherished.

Quincy's Yesterdays

First Blackout Test A Success

Quincy's first test blackout since the start of the war was pronounced a success as the city and surrounding towns sent dark between 9:15 and 9:30 p.m., except for the signal lights on the New Haven Railroad and two radio tower beacons.

This Week
1942
62 Years Ago

A police check on three Quincy families, who faced fines up to $800 and a year in prison for refusal to cooperate in the blackout, discovered that they had simply forgotten about it.

A spokesman for the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. said that about 70 percent of all Quincy residents went around turning off their lights rather than draw heavy blackout curtains.

The normal load on the company's residential lines on weeknights at 8 p.m. was 8,500 kilowatts. At 9:15 p.m. on the night of the blackout, however, transmission was down to 2,300 kilowatts.

BUILDING BOOM

"It appears that Quincy will have one of the greatest, if not the greatest, home building years in its history," said Building Inspector Alrick Wiedman as contractors rushed to build houses for war workers.

Alewife Realty Trust Co. of Arlington was building a $160,000 development of 54 family units in Quincy Point and a $282,000 development of 94 family units, mostly on Quincy Shore Boulevard in North Quincy.

QUINCY-ISMS

Boston columnist Austen Lake, just back from a trip to Great Britain, told the Merrymount School PTA that the war will last five to seven years but Boston and Quincy would be safe from enemy bombing for at least a year and a half. . . The Quincy Market, 18 Chestnut St., had Swiss cheese for 33 cents a pound, provolone for 39 cents a pound and romano for 61 cents a pound. . . Mrs. Edward V. Doyle was elected president of the Atlantic Women's Club. . . Notary Public L. Paul Marini swore in 150 more aid raid wardens in Ward 3. . . Dr. William R. Hurley, president of the staff at Quincy City Hospital, told the Municipal Defense Council that the hospital is "overcrowded and could not meet a serious emergency." . . . The City Council passed a $4,706,618.61 budget, $248,051.07 less than requested by Mayor Thomas S. Burgin. . . Charlie Fallon of 117 Narragansett Rd., Merrymount, a catcher in the New York Yankee farm system, joined the U.S. Marine Corps. . . Judge Joseph T. Zottoli of Squantum told the Quincy Council for Alcohol Education that if Quincy is to be an ideal city its citizens must vote barrooms out of existence. . . Guay's Bakery, 1455 Hancock St., had Irish bread for 15 cents a loaf and shamrock rolls for 18 cents a dozen on the eve of St. Patrick's Day. . . The Rev. John Havermen assumed his duties as pastor of the Finnish Congregational Church on Buckley St., West Quincy. . . Felix Greenberg and the WPA Rhythm Ensemble played at a dance for servicemen at East Ledge, Squantum. . . The Stop and Shop of Southern Artery, where "thrift is no longer a private virtue, it's a patriotic duty," has sirloin steak for 35 cents a pound and oranges for 29 cents a dozen. . . William DeMarzio, manager of the Quincy Gardens Skating Rink, was given a send-off party by the Ho Ne Cong Club as he left for the Army. . . Quincy Motor Co., corner School, Hancock and Quincy Ave., was selling a 1940 Ford convertible with radio and heater and genuine leather seats for $775. . . Deputy Fire Chief Robert Fenby showed movies of bombs and how to handle them to the Cranch School PTA. . . "Babes on Broadway," starring Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, and "Nine Lives Are Not Enough," with Ronald Reagan and Joan Perry, were playing at the Wollaston Theater. . . Mrs. Robert O. Gilmore of 360 Adams St., Quincy, was hostess at tea for Red Cross Canteen instructors. . . Fred Naumetz and Mike Holovak, co-captains-elect of the Boston College football team, were speakers at a father-and-sons night at St. Ann's Holy Name Society. . . Elsie Robbins Gross was at the Hammond organ at Anchor Inn, 51 Wollaston Boulevard. . . Homer Halpin, manager of the Neighborhood Club, was arranging a battle of music between [illegible] and Lawton Nadig at the [illegible]. . . Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Hay. . . ## Do You Have A Theme For This Year's Christmas Parade?

It's later than you think.

The 52nd Quincy Christmas Parade is still eight months away but it is already time for selecting the parade theme.

The public is invited to enter the Parade Theme Contest. Deadline for entries is April 9.

They must be submitted by that date to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Quincy, MA 02170.

The winning theme plays a major role in float building preparation for the parade.

"The theme contest each year is the most important first step in the planning of the parade," said Festival Committee Chairman George White."

The winning theme will be selected by the Festival Committee at a meeting April 22. The person submitting it will receive a gift from the Festival Committee and will be invited to ride in the parade in a convertible.

Last year's theme was "Let There Be Peace On Earth."

The parade will be held Sunday, Nov. 28. Rain date is Sunday, Dec. 5.

Comedy Night Fund-Raiser To Beneft AIDS Consortium

The Quincy/South Shore AIDS Consortium will host a benefit comedy night Sunday, March 21, from 5 to 10 p.m. at the Randolph Country Club, 44 Mazzeo Drive, Randolph.

The comedy night will feature Boston comic impressionist Bob Gautreau and other comedians. There will be a buffet dinner.

Tickets are $15 in advance or $20 at the door. For more information and tickets, call 617-376-2038.

The event benefits the Quincy/South Shore AIDS Consortium (QSSAC), a collaboration of social services agencies and organizations focused on reducing the rate of HIV transmission and expanding HIV and AIDS serves on the South Shore.

QSSAC's HIV Program offers free and confidential services for South Shore residents infected with or affected by HIV. QSSAC client services include individual case management, housing advocacy, referrals for mental health or substance use counseling, and support services. Last year, more than 100 clients utilized QSSAC services.

Library Reading By James Sullivan

Quincy native and author James Sullivan will discuss his new book, "Over the Moat: Love Among the Ruins of Imperial Vietnam," on March 14 at 2 p.m. in the Richardson Room of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Sullivan was born and raised in Quincy, attended Colby College, and received his graduate degree from the Iowa Writers' Workshop. He is the recipient of the James Michener Fellowship, and his journalism has been featured in various magazines, including Golf Digest, Bicycling and Yankee.

As a young journalist on a bicycle tour of Vietnam in 1992, Sullivan become one of the first Americans the Vietnamese had seen since our soldiers last trod their soil in the 1970s. His mission was one of peace and understanding across a cultural divide. His aim was simple until he met and fell in love with a Vietnamese woman. "Over the Moat" is Sullivan's account of his quest to win her heart amid the ruins of Vietnam's last imperial dynasty.

Copies of the book will be available for sale.

PARTICIPANTS IN THE forum on the benefits of assisted living presented at Quincy Medical Center by Allerton House at Hancock Park were Kelly Richards, marketing director, Allerton House; Karyn Smart, LICSW, social worker at Quincy Medical Center; and Betsy Flynn, NHA, patient accounts coordinator Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group.

Allerton House Presents Forum On Assisted Living Benefits

Allerton House at Hancock Park, a Quincy assisted living community, recently held an educational forum for health care professionals at Quincy Medical Center (QMC) titled "What is the Assisted in Assisted Living?"

During the one-hour CEU program, Betsy Flynn, NHA, patient accounts coordinator, Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, and Lynn Furze, RN, director of resident care at the Village at Duxbury, described the many ways assisted living can benefit older adults and the many services Allerton House offers eligible residents.

More than 20 case managers, registered nurses and social workers from QMC attended the program explaining the assisted living assessment process and the eligibility requirements potential residents must meet.

To learn more about assisted living or to arrange a tour of Allerton House at Hancock Park, call Kelly Richards at 617-471-2600.

Allerton House at Hancock Park is a 70-unit assisted living community owned and managed by Norwell-based and family-operated Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, with more than 50 years in senior housing options and rehabilitative health care services on the South Shore.

License Board Approves Brigadoon's 1 A.M. Closing

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After many months of trying to persuade the License Board to allow Brigadoon's 520 Washington St. to remain open until 1 a.m. instead of 11 p.m. the board finally after hours of discussion voted 4-1 in favor of their request.

The motion was made by Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, who said he had visited Brigadoon's and Mystic Lounge next door both owned by George and Peter Pepdjonovich, and found no problems stated and written by abutters about bottles debris or noise. He said the nights he visited were a Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Scheele also said he based the motion on the fact that the owners should be given a chance and in the event there are problems, the neighbors have a right to call the police and appear before the board

The motion was seconded by the new board members Jay Duca, who recently replaced director of inspectional services Walter White.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell was the only one in opposition stating that he believed the neighbors concerns about the noise and empty beer cans and bottles.

He earlier had made a motion to continue, and didn't receive a second, then retracted it a few minutes later.

However, Cassis said no one had evidence that the noise and empty bottles came from Brigadoon's and also noted that Brigadoon's does not sell beer in the can.

A verbal battle between Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi and Atty. Louis Cassis ensued with Cassis accusing Raymondi of continuing to confuse the board about the transfer of the license.

Cassis said the issue of hours has been before the board four times. He added on those four occasions, Raymondi "talked so much and agrees with himself."

Stating that all other restaurants in the city whether family restaurants or not are allowed to remain open until 1 sm., calling Tuesday's proceedings "absolute nonsense."

He told the board that it was "insanity to continue the hearing" and at one point said "if you vote to continue this hearing another time, I suggest that you deny the request to remain open until 1 a.m."

Amidst comments by the board about confusion, and calling it a "complex situation", City Solicitor Monica Conygnham who said she was watching the meeting on television said she "couldn't restrain herself" but to come to the meeting herself.

Conygham said the board had the ability to comply with the transfer with conditions as deemed appropriate. She said the continuing of the proceedings was a "business impact to the owner."

She also said that the parties would have to appeal to the Superior Court about the roll back of hours and not to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

Atty. Kevin Burke, representing the pervious owner Gerald D'Arcy spoke briefly about the fact that Raymondi had presented undocumented evidence and that he is now asking for another continuance. He said it wasn't so much that his client was losing money, but "how much."

Raymondi cited" procedural errors" complaining that proper notice was not given to Brigadoon's about rolling back the hours until 11 p.m. This confused board members to the degree that Chairman Joseph Shea tried to explainng that the board was given verbally a notice at the last meeting.

Conservation Commission to Inspect Site Proposed For QMC Parking Garage

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

The Conservation Commission will visit the site that Quincy Medical Center has proposed building a parking garage on to determine if the area is wetlands.

The commission will conduct the site walk March 27 and make its ruling at an April 7 meeting.

The commission held a meeting March 3 on an application filed by former City Councillor Stephen Durkin to determine whether the construction of the garage falls within the jurisdiction of the Conservation Commission.

Durkin is a member of the Hospital Hill Neighbors Association, formed in response to Quincy Medical Center's proposal to build the garage on the wooded area bordering Euclid Avenue and Colonial Drive and overlooking Glendale Road.

If all, or parts of the land, are determined to be wetlands or resource areas, it would fall under the jurisdiction of the Conservation Commission. This would make it more difficult for Quincy Medical Center to build a parking garage on this land.

"This kind of area in a residential area is scarce," said Durkin, a resident of Glendale Road. "It would be a shame to tear it down."

Tony Lorusso, head of the Hospital Hill Neighbors Association, lives on Euclid Avenue, which abuts the lot in question. He presented the first nine pages of a 60-page independent assessment he said he had done of the land. He said there was evidence of vernal pools, breeding grounds for fairy shrimp, mole salamanders and wood frogs. He also said there was evidence of intermittent and underground streams and dense tree growth, including Quincy Adams Beech trees. He also said the neighbors on Colonial Drive and Sturtevant Road have had problems with flooding in the past.

Several residents said they found the evidence of an ecosystem and said they had the problems with flooding.

Jocelyn Sedney of Monroe Road said she was taking the steps to begin certifying the vernal pools with National Heritage, a necessary step before an area is designated a resource area.

Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented Quincy Medical Center at the hearing, said Quincy Medical Center had an environmental consulting firm, Sanford Ecological Services, Inc., do a site inspection on Feb. 17. Stephanie H. Komorowski, Wetland Scientist with the firm, wrote a one and one-half page report that said the area in question is not considered a resource area.

"We've looked into this very carefully," said Fleming, "and the evidence we have is to indicate that this is not a resource area."

He said the site inspection was done on the subject site, currently owned by Quincy Medical Center, and the wooded area adjacent to it owned by the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

The inspectors toured the site owned by the Neighborhood Club because the Conservation Commission has jurisdiction over parcels within 100 feet of a designated wetland.

On the subject site, the inspectors observed a small depression, fed by runoff water from the Quincy Medical Center parking lot.

This, the report said, "is too small to qualify as Isolated Land Subject to Flooding under the Massachusetts Wetland Protection Act 310 CMR 10.57 (2)(b); therefore it is not considered a resource area."

The Neighborhood Club's land was determined not to qualify as a wetland area either.

Springhetti said the firm found no real evidence of hydrology, streams, vernal pools, soils or vegetation that would make this a wetland resource area.

"There are no wetland resource areas on this site and there are no wetland areas within 100 feet of this site," said Springhetti.

Nancy Barron of Sturtevant Road president of the Ward 5 Community Association, approached the commission after Quincy Medical Center's presentation, saying that flooding had ravaged her basement. She said she now has pumps running anytime it rains.

"If you take one more tree . . . you might as well bury my house in water," said Barron.

JoEllen Horton also said she had problems with flooding.

"During the summer, I can't lay out in my backyard because it's constantly wet."

Paul and Linda Kadzis of Glendale Road said all six of the rooms in their house would look directly into the parking lot.

"If there's cars there we'll be able to see their headlights (in our windows)," said Linda. "Our lives would be changed dramatically."

The Kadzis', and other neighbors, want Quincy Medical Center to look elsewhere for parking. They recommended they look at off-site parking, perhaps in the Old Golden Bowl parking lot.

At the hearing, Fleming said that Quincy Medical Center was concerned about residents going onto the property. He said the residents should get permission prior to going on the site.

This past weekend, Quincy Medical Center posted a security guard from Friday night until Sunday on the portion of the land that borders Glendale Road. "Private Property, No Trespassing," signs were posted on the portion of the land that borders Glendale Road, Colonial Drive and Euclid Avenue.

"We at Quincy Medical Center are committed to a thoughtful and thorough process to find an appropriate solution to meet our parking challenges. We look forward to working together with our neighbors and local city officials to address this important community issue.

"While we want to be helpful in addressing any concerns our neighbors may have, it became clear from statements made at a recent Conservation Commission meeting that many of our neighbors treat this property as public land, which it is not. To that end, we are taking steps to ensure that access to this property is limited. Written authorization is now required to access the property, on terms and conditions established by Quincy Medical Center. A representative of the Medical Center will accompany anyone onto the property."

Bonnie Kaplan Goldsmith, Director of Marketing and Public Relations for Quincy Medical Center, said the security guards will no longer be posted 24 hours a day, but will drive around periodically, the way they handle any daily exterior or interior security.

Glendale Road residents said they were angered by the decision to place "no trespassing signs" and a security guard on the parcel of land bordering Glendale Road. They said they had been using the land for many years.

The site in question was purchased by Quincy Medical Center in 1999. According to Goldsmith, part of the land that borders Glendale Road is zoned as open space. However, this zoning designation does not equate to public access and it is still private land, she said. The open space designation means only that Quincy Medical Center can not build a structure on that portion of the property.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, who organized the Hospital Hill Association, said he was pleased with the outcome of the meeting.

"It was productive," he said. "It was civilized. All the people who spoke did their homework. It was pretty impressive. I think it should help make the Conservation Commission's job easier in the long run."

arrows in the direction of the egress;

• Protect head obstructions in exitways through use of padded fireproof protectives;

• Install code-conforming automatic and manual fire alarm system in all public areas, transmitting a signal to the Quincy Fire Department;

• Create a plan and execute it to lock down all areas adjacent to berths except berth exitways when overnight visitors are aboard. This plan must be approved by the fire department and inspectional services;

• Have written evacuation plan from each berthing area posted and practiced. The plan should be approved by fire and inspectional services departments;

• Conduct a fire drill for each overnight session prior to execution of overnight. Drill components should be approved by fire department;

• Have at least two roving firewatchers employed by the USS Salem at all times when the public is aboard. Training for the firewatchers should be approved by the fire department.

The shipbuilding museum was dealt a financial blow last year when Fire Chief Paul O'Connell banned sleepovers by groups staying aboard the ship overnight. O'Connell said the ship was unsafe due to a lack of sprinklers, poor ventilation and inadequate exits.

The Salem appealed O'Connell's decision to the appeals board, which conducted a site visit recently.

Salem officials had been placing visitors in local hotels pending the decision.

The museum derives approximately 40 percent of its revenue from the sleepovers. The ban placed the Salem in a financial bind, said Sheets.

Sheets said he was pleased that the board did not recommend installing a ship-wide sprinkler system or ask officials to change the ladder configuration that extends from the berthing areas up to the main deck.

After implementing the recommendations, the Salem will make a request for an occupancy permit from the Inspectional Services Department to resume the sleepovers, said Sheets.

"We will be working with the fire department and building inspectors to comply with all regulations," he said.

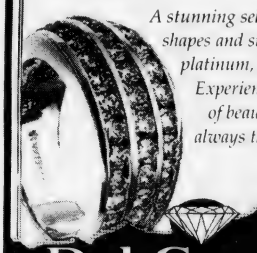
Phelan Revives Proposal For Finance Chief

In a move designed to streamline the city's budget affairs and save taxpayers money, Mayor William Phelan is reviving plans to hire a chief financial officer.

The mayor introduced the item in the form of an ordinance at Monday night's city council meeting. Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi objected to the proposal, saying he wanted more detailed information from the administration. As a result, the item will not be addressed until next week's council meeting.

"The timing is right," Phelan told the Sun. "We are going to introduce a pavement management plan, a capital improvement plan and an integrated financial management system, and to do so will require a position such as a chief financial officer."

Phelan's proposal calls for all of the city's financial offices – treasurer, collector, auditor and assessors – to come under the direction of the chief financial officer.



Phelan envisions the chief financial officer as having a large role in planning the city budget, seeking ways to streamline spending and coalescing a long-term plan for the city's upcoming projects.

The salary for the position would be approximately $95,000. Funding the position would require "little, if any" new revenue, said Phelan.

The administration would eliminate two positions in the Treasurer/Collector's office to fund the CFO's salary, he said.

John Hancock was born in Quincy in 1737. How did his Masonic connection influence him and other great Revolutionary patriots?

Many of the patriots that played a decisive roll in the formation of the United States were Masons. Surely you recognize George Washington, Paul Revere, Benjamin Franklin and Quincy's own John Hancock.

It is true that many of these great men were indeed Masons but it was their fervent love of liberty, justice and freedom of thought...concepts embraced by Masons for centuries...that induced them to act as individuals in forming the foundation of this great nation. These men made a positive difference in their community and in their country, much as Masons do today. But, it might surprise you that political discussions are forbidden in the Masonic Lodge room.

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts was formed in 1733. Paul Revere was our Grand Master in the 1790's. Rural Lodge of Masons was formed here in Quincy in 1801. The goal of Masons then, as it is today, is who can best work and best agree. And we apply those principles to the work we do today. More than 175,000 children have taken advantage of the Masonic Child Identification Program with Toothprints™, introduced to the world right here in Quincy. Masons contribute more than 20,000 pints of blood collected by the Red Cross each year. Masons operate the Shriners Hospitals for Children. And contribute millions of dollars to worthy causes each day...most of which is never publicized.

Today, as we did more than 200 years ago, Masons are making a difference in our nation and right here in Quincy.

Consider Using Tax Refund For House Downpayment

By CHRISTOPHER HARADEN

Are you expecting a tax refund from your income taxes?

Consider using any amounts you receive from the Internal Revenue Service or the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as the downpayment on a home.

Surveys show that approximately one in four people who receive a refund will invest the extra funds, and about 10 percent will take a vacation with the spring time windfall. Nearly half of those surveyed say they will use the money for a major purchase such as a new car or a house.

Many first time homebuyer mortgage programs offer borrowers the chance to purchase a home with as little as three percent down, while others available in today's market require no down payment at all.

If you are due a refund and haven't yet received it, the U.S. Treasury Department offers taxpayers the ability to check the status of the transaction on the Internet or by telephone.

At www.irs.gov, taxpayers are asked to enter their Social Security Number, filing status and exact refund amount in order to access the refund update service, which is known as "Where's My Refund?"

The Web-based system will return a response indicating the status of the tax return and refund, such as whether it is still being processed, the date a check was mailed or the refund was deposited into the taxpayer's bank account, or whether there is a problem with delivery of the refund.

Anyone without Internet access can call an automated system to enter information at 800-829-4477 or the IRS refund hotline at 800-829-1954.

Whether you are thinking about using a tax refund to buy a home or if you are planning to refinance your mortgage this spring, it's a good idea to check your credit report from the three major credit-reporting agencies – Equifax, Experian and Trans Union. Lenders will most likely use a report from one of these bureaus in judging your ability to repay a loan.

Massachusetts residents are entitled to one free copy of their credit report per calendar year. Consider requesting a report annually to ensure your report is accurate.

Under state law, you also have the right to obtain a free copy of your report within 60 days of being denied credit, so that you can see the information that was used to evaluate your application for credit.

If there is incorrect information in your file, you may ask the credit-reporting agency to investigate, according to the Massachusetts Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation. The agency offers information and assistance on managing credit and debt to Bay State residents.

The credit agency must investigate your claim within 30 business days by asking the creditor in question to review its records, unless the agency believes that the dispute is "frivolous or irrelevant." The credit-reporting agency must correct, complete, or delete any information that is erroneous, incomplete, or unverified.

Additionally, negative information that is more than seven years old cannot be included in your credit report. There are several exceptions to this rule – the main one is bankruptcy, which may be reported for up to 10 years.

If you disagree with the results of the credit bureau's investigation, you have the right to prepare a brief statement that explains your version of the dispute. The credit-reporting agency will then include this statement with your credit file each time it sends out the report.

For more information, call the Massachusetts Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation hotline, (617) 973-8787 or toll-free (888) 283-3757, or visit the agency's Web site: www.state.ma.us/consumer/Pubs/credit.htm

Eight Tips To Keep Your Home Healthy

(NU) The quality of the air in your home can affect your health. This is especially true during the winter months when people tend to stay in their homes for longer than usual periods of time.

Mold, household cleaning products, asbestos and combustion sources, such as oil, gas and kerosene, are all causes of indoor air pollution.

Health effects from indoor air pollutants can occur soon after exposure or years later.

Irritation of the eyes, headaches, dizziness and fatigue may show up after a single exposure. Such immediate effects are usually short term and treatable. Sometimes the treatment involves simply eliminating the person's exposure to the source of the pollution.

Other health effects, such as some respiratory diseases, heart disease and cancer, may show up years after exposure and can be severely debilitating or fatal.

The Consumer Federation of America and the Environmental Protection Agency urge homeowners to take action to improve the indoor air quality in their homes. During the heating season, follow these tips to keep your home's air as clean as possible:

• Vent all furnaces to outdoors; keep doors to the rest of house open when using unvented space heaters.

• Choose properly sized wood stoves certified to meet EPA emission standards and make certain that doors on all wood stoves fit tightly.

• Have a trained professional inspect, clean and tune up the central heating system annually. Repair any leaks.

• Change filters on central heating and cooling systems and air cleaners according to manufacturer's directions.

• Take special precautions when operating fuel-burning unvented space heaters.

• Install and use exhaust fans over gas cooking stoves and ranges and keep the burners properly adjusted.

• Keep wood stove emissions to a minimum. Choose properly sized new stoves that are certified as meeting EPA emission standards.

• Have central air handling systems, including furnaces, flues and chimneys, inspected annually and properly repair cracks or damaged parts.

Patty Sullivan, Arlene Connolly Raise Money For MDA

Local Realtors Patty Sullivan and Arlene Connolly of Central Real Estate in Quincy recently participated in a "Jail and Bail" Fundraiser to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Sullivan and Connolly, who both serve of the Community Service Committee of the Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors, agreed to be "jailed" as part of a fundraiser that raised $30,000 for MDA.

The average participant raises $400 but Sullivan raised $1,500 with the help of friends, family and fellow Realtors. The money will held send three children to an MDA-sponsored summer camp.

The MDA camps offer a wide range of programs for young people ages 6 to 21 who are affected by neuromuscular disease.

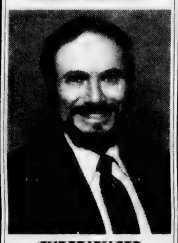
Sullivan, who serves as chairperson of the PASS Community Service Committee, said this event is the first of many ways the committee will help raise money and awareness for charitable causes this year.



The committee raises money each month that assists food banks and charitable causes in communities comprising the association.

PASS is a professional trade organization consisting of more than 2,000 members and covering 18 communities from the Neponset Bridge to the Cape Cod Canal.

Pee Wee C's Cranberry Tourney Champ

Quincy breezed through the tourney, winning all four games and outscoring the opposition by a 29-6 margin.

"We had great effort from all the boys," said head coach Chris Kulig. "They have been getting better all year. The improvement is fantastic. I'm very pleased."

James Barresi was named MVP of the championship game. Twelve players scored in the tourney for Quincy, with Barresi (five) and TJ Higgins (four) leading the pack.

Brendan Gibbons and Higgins played fantastic on offense. Mark Graham scored on an end-to-end rush. Mark Glynn scored in the first game before going on vacation. Patrick Adduci and Eddie McManus also scored.

Robert Dion missed the tournament because of vacation but has been a strong contributor this season.

"My two assistant coaches, Eric Wood and Greg Burke, also helped me out a lot this year, and I think by them being young they will be able to help the Quincy youth programs," Kulig said.

"The other person who I must thank is Val Higgins, who is the team mom, and all the parents for getting the kids to all the games and practices."

Squantum Youth Baseball, Softball T-Ball Registration Begins March 19

Registration for Squantum youth baseball, softball and T-ball will be held at the Squantum Community Center, corner of Standish Road and Huckins Avenue.

Registration will take place Friday, March 19, from 6 to 8 p.m.; Saturday, March 20, from 10 a.m. to noon; and Saturday, March 27, from 10 a.m. to noon. Space is limited. A $10 late fee will be charged for sign-ups after April 1.

Fees are: baseball and softball, $50 per child and $25 for each additional family member; T-ball, $40 per child and $15 for each additional family member.

Registration fee covers the cost of bats, balls, T-shirts and equipment and also pays for the field day events and presentation of trophies after the all-star games.

Baseball is a competitive learning league for players who are 8 to 12 years old on Jan. 1, 2004. Softball is a competitive learning league for players who are in grades 3 through 8 on Jan. 1, 2004. T-ball is for children who are 6 to 8 years old on Jan. 1, 2004.

For more information, contact Jeff Turok (softball) at 617-786-1217, Tom Dow (baseball) at 617-773-4996 or Jim Doherty (T-ball) at 617-984-2656.

Michael Jay, Matthew McHugh Featured In Babe Ruth All-Star Book

The book will be displayed in the permanent collection and archives of the National Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

Basic Boating Public Safety Courses

The Quincy Police Marine Unit, in partnership with the Massachusetts Environmental Police, announces the first of three basic boating public safety courses will be held Saturday.

Scheduled for three consecutive Saturdays, the course will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave., next to the Quincy Yacht Club.

Two additional courses will be held April 10, 17, 24 and May 1, 8, 15.

The course is designed for citizens of all ages. All members of the boating public are welcomed to attend, regardless of boating skills. The course is provided at no charge to the public.

Completion of the course by youthful boaters between the ages of 12-16 allows them to legally operate a motorboat without adult supervision. All members of the public who successfully complete the course will be issued a Massachusetts Environmental Police Basic Boating Safety Certificate.

For course information or to register, contact the Massachusetts Environmental Police Department Boat & Recreational Vehicle Safety Bureau, 1019 Route 132, Hyannis, MA 02601, at 617-727-8760 or 508-790-9360.

Youth Hockey Registration

Quincy Youth Hockey will hold registration Tuesday and Wednesday, March 16 and 17, from 6 to 9 p.m. for teams starting in September, including drill and instruction.

Late registration will be held Saturday, March 27, and fee will be $60.

Fee for teams and instruction is $50 for the first child and $35 for each additional child. New members must bring Massachusetts driver's license as proof of residence and a birth certificate for the child.

For more information call 617-472-5966.

Softball Umpire Clinic March 16

The Metro Boston Amateur Softball Association will conduct a free softball umpire clinic Tuesday, March 16, at the Quincy VFW, 24 Broad St.

Umpires will officiate youth and adult recreational leagues in their surrounding cities and towns.

For more information call 781-665-9745.

CLUTCH SITUATIONS

In vehicles with manual transmissions, the clutch disc is splined directly to the transmission input shaft and rotates with it. When the clutch is disengaged, that shaft and disc spin freely while the flywheel (bolted directly to the engine's crankshaft) and pressure plate continue to spin at engine speed. When engaged, the whole assembly (two hard surfaces with a soft center in between) spins as one unit at engine speed. The most common clutch problems are slipping, chatter, noise, and hard pedal. Slipping may be due to oil grease saturation, maladjusted linkage, or an improperly machined flywheel. Chatter is often due to oil grease on the clutch disc facing, and noise and hard pedal often point out the need for lubrication.

Whether your car has a manual transmission and clutch or not here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO our ASE Certified professional technicians will service your car with the same level of attention that they would give their own. We have a strong commitment to give you individual, personal treatment. Complete satisfaction begins right here in our service department. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) and let's get acquainted. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

HINT: Unless a flywheel is very smooth and flat, the clutch will not work properly and will suffer from chattering upon engagement.

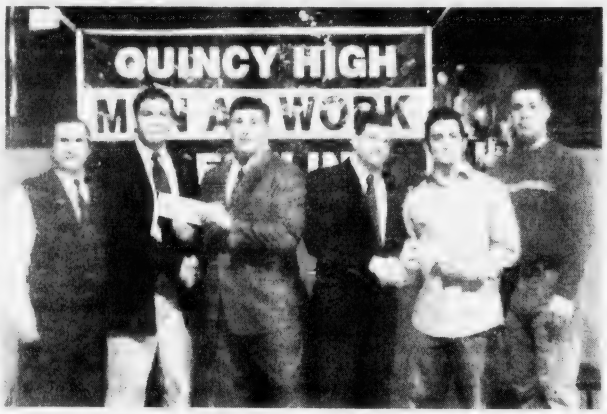
Silcox Family Donates $4,000 To QHS Wrestlers



The Silcox family recently presented $2,000 scholarships to two former successful Quincy High School wrestlers currently attending college.

The recipients were:

Joseph Hern, a two-time sectional champion and state champion who attends U Mass Boston and has been accepted to New York University where he plans to study business and continue wrestling.

Michael Murphy, a sectional champion and New England finalist who is a sophomore at Worcester Polytechnic Institute where he studies engineering and wrestles.

The scholarships were given in memory of David Silcox. The announcement was made at last year's annual Quincy High School wrestling banquet by his father, James.

David died in October of 1997. Four months later, the Silcox family started a trust fund in his memory.

In order to raise money, Glenn Ryan, a close friend of David's, and Jim Silcox, David's brother, participated in the 1998 Boston Marathon. Proceeds from the marathon, along with a pre-marathon fund-raiser at the Quincy Elks, raised over $10,000.

During the past six years, the Silcox family has made several donations to different charitable organizations in David's memory.

In 1999, a $2,800 check was given to help fund a new playground built at LaBreque field in Houghs Neck. There is a bench at the playground with David's name on it.

And donations were made to the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, including a recent donation to help refurbish the city of Quincy's new 41-foot patrol boat obtained from the United States Coast Guard. The patrol boat is now being used extensively for patrols and youth educational trips to various locations in the harbor.

Three of the Silcox boys — James, David and Paul — all wrestled under legendary coach and current assistant superintendent of Quincy public schools, Carmen Mariano. The Silcox boys were a big part of Quincy High School becoming one of the top teams in the state in the early to mid 1980s.

Mariano liked to call the wrestlers his "family" and the Silcox family wanted to share the scholarship with other members of the "family."

Squirt C's Reach Semi-Finals

The Quincy Squirt C travel hockey team fell to Burlington, 2-0, in the semi-finals of the recent Cranberry Tournament in Pembroke.

Quincy opened the tourney with a 5-3 loss to Needham, but rebounded with a 4-0 win over Duxbury and a 6-2 triumph over Braintree.

Goalie Trevor McCarthy posted the shutout against Duxbury, and only allowed three goals in three of the games. Michael Adducci scored his first goal of the travel season.

Strong contributions were made by Vincent Cameron, Kevin Garity, Matt Glynn, Patrick Gorman, Sean Patrick Hannon, Cody Huntington, Bobby Kozlowski, Harry Maxfield, Matt McGuire, Brighid Noone, Daniel O'Brien, Tommy O'Brien, John O'Callaghan, Taylor Shepherd and Christina Walsh.

Ben O'Brien was unable to attend the tourney but has played well for the team this season.

Squirt B's Wins Silver Medal In Canadian Cup Tournament

The Quincy Squirt B travel hockey team captured the silver medal in the recent Canadian Cup tournament in Montreal, Canada.

Quincy opened the tournament with a 4-1 win over Kitchner Stars of Ontario. Joe Alibrandi, who received game MVP honors, Alex MacIsaac, James Vialpando and Andrew Rogantino scored. Patrick Verhault, Mike Nelson, Joe Barton and Tim Marks had assists.

Quincy followed with an 8-2 victory over North Toronto. MacIsaac recorded a hat trick to earn game MVP honors. Rogantino (2 assists), Verhault (assist), David O'Connell (assist), Kevin White (assist) and Nelson also scored. Conor Flynn, Paul Mulvey and Marks had assists.

In its next game, goalies Justin Keenan and Brian Grasselli combined to shut out Dedham, 7-0. Barton scored a hat trick to earn game MVP honors. Vialpando (assist), Nelson (assist), Flynn and White added the other goals. Verhault tallied three assists, O'Connell two and Rudy Tryon, Robert Hudson, Marks and Alibrandi one apiece.

Quincy's unbeaten run qualified them to play the Kitchner Stars once again — this time for the gold. Quincy, though, had a hard time finding the back of the net and lost a tough game, 5-2.

Verhault netted both goals and took the game MVP honors. MacIsaac, Flynn and Rogantino had assists. Mulvey earned the series sportsmanship award.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

From Start to Fitness

by Andrea Wyatt M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

When to Stretch

Q. I have heard various suggestions on how — and when — to properly stretch. For me, I normally stretch after my workout when I have time. Which is more beneficial, stretching before or after exercise? — *L.S., Willingboro, N.J.

A. Stretching is an important and often overlooked element of a complete exercise program. The benefits of stretching before and after your workout can improve your overall fitness level.

Stretching offers benefits such as reducing your risk of injury to muscles, ligaments, joints and tendons; reducing muscle soreness following exercise; improving the effectiveness of your exercise program; and enhancing your performance through increased body awareness.

Every workout should start with a 5- to 10-minute warm-up (i.e., walking, jogging, jump rope, cycling) to increase the heart rate and blood flow throughout the body. Then it's good to stretch each muscle group. Take your time, and stretch each muscle group for approximately 20 seconds, repeating for two to three sets. Once you have completed your workout, cool down, then stretch your muscles again. This will help reduce soreness and aid in recovery.

There are several different methods of stretching that should fit into most workout routines. These include:

- Dynamic stretches gradually increase the speed and range of motion of movements in a controlled manner. Leg or arm swings are examples.
- Active stretches hold a position without the assistance of anything or anyone else, except the strength of your muscles. Yoga employs active stretches.
- Passive and static stretches involve stretching to a position with the aid of another person or fixture such as a bar, floor or wall.
- Isometric stretches employ the resistance of muscle groups using isometric contractions. For example, try this calf stretch: Lean forward against a wall, placing one heel farther away from the wall and keeping the knee straight while bending the other knee. The leg that remains straight is the one that you will be stretching. Lean forward, keeping your heel on the ground and your toes perpendicular to the wall. You should feel your calf and the arch of your foot stretch. Stretch and hold.

To avoid possible injury, consult a professional to learn how to stretch properly and effectively.

Should You Exercise When You Have A Cold?

(NU) — With national attention focused on America's rising obesity rate, people of all ages are realizing the importance of fitness and regular exercise.

Sticking to the routine is key to success with exercise. Most fitness enthusiasts of any age hate missing a workout because consistency is important when you are trying to stay fit. Also, missing a workout makes it that much easier to miss one the next day and the next and the next. Before you know it, your routine has fallen off completely.

But what if you are sick? Nothing throws a wrench into your workout routine like having a cold or some other illness. Should you work out while you are sick? What about if you only have a cold?

According to Dr. Joshua Fink, an internist and certified fitness trainer with more than 10 years of personal training experience, the answer is no. Working out while you are sick with a cold is the worst thing you can do to your body as it will only prolong your illness and can lead to a more serious secondary sickness, such as upper respiratory infection or pneumonia.

Your body is run down and dehydrated when you have a cold, which means your muscles are not functioning properly. As your body uses all its resources to fight the inflammation, there is an increased risk of muscle damage and joint injury.

So how do you get better faster so that you can return to your fitness routine?

Fink offers these simple tips:

Stay hydrated: Keep yourself hydrated with water. This hydration will ensure that the lining of your nose and throat does not dry out, allowing mucus to remain moist and easy to clear from the nose. Stay away from caffeine and even sports drinks, which contain high volumes of sugar that will only dehydrate you more.

Sleep: Getting plenty of rest is extremely important. There is a virus in your body and you need to have all your strength to fight it off. Studies show your immune system is much stronger after you have rested.

Take Zinc: Found in Cold-Eeze lozenges, zinc gluconate glycine has been proven in several clinical studies, including one published last year in the American Journal of Therapeutics, to reduce the duration of the common cold by four days. Unlike traditional, over-the-counter remedies that just provide symptom relief, zinc gluconate glycine helps you to get rid of your cold.

Fink adds that when you do return to the gym after an illness, work out at 50 percent of your normal output for a few days.

Use Caution With Pain Relievers

(NAPS) Pain relievers are safe and effective when used according to the medicine label's directions. Millions of people use these medicines everyday. Not using them according to the label's directions can have serious consequences.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does not want you to become a statistic. You should know the active ingredients and directions of all your medicines before you use them.

Over-the-counter (OTC) medicines list all their active ingredients on the package. For prescription drugs, the leaflet that you can request from your pharmacist usually lists the active ingredients contained in the medicine.

Many OTC medicines sold for different uses have the same active ingredient. For example, a cold-and-cough remedy may have the same active ingredient as a headache remedy or a prescription pain killer.

There are basically two types of OTC pain relievers. Some contain acetaminophen and others contain non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs). These medicines are used to relieve the minor aches and pains of headaches, colds, fevers, flu, arthritis, toothaches, migraines and menstrual cramps.

Acetaminophen is a very common pain reliever and fever reducer. Taking too much of this active ingredient can lead to liver damage. The risk for liver damage may be increased if you drink three or more alcoholic beverages per day while using acetaminophen-containing medicines.

NSAIDs are common pain relievers that are also used to relieve fever and swelling. Examples of NSAIDs are aspirin, ibuprofen, naproxen sodium, and ketaprofen. Taking too much of these products can cause stomach bleeding – especially if you are over 60, taking prescription blood thinners, or have stomach or other bleeding problems.

NSAIDs can also damage the kidneys. The risk of kidney damage may increase in people who are over 60, or have high blood pressure, heart disease or pre-existing kidney disease, or who are taking a diuretic.

The FDA recommends that you talk with your healthcare professional if you have questions about using an OTC medicine and especially before using it in combination with other medicines – either OTC or prescription.

You can learn more about what medicines are right for you by reading the label carefully and talking to your healthcare professional or pharmacist.

For more information, visit www.fda.gov or call 1-888-INFO-FDA.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

MIND OVER MATTER

If you are taking an antidepressant, your medication may have the side effect of causing dry mouth, which can lead to dental problems. According to researchers, dry mouth may affect up to 20% of those taking such selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs) as Prozac, Paxil, and Zoloft, as well as up to 55% of those taking older tricyclic anti-depressants. The greater risk of dry mouth occurs with such older anti-depressants as amitriptyline (Elavil), amoxapine (Asendin), and clomipramine (Anafranil). Dry mouth can set up the oral environment for increased incidence of tooth decay, gum disease, oral infections, and other problems. Do not discontinue or change anti-depressant therapy on your own, however. Consult with your physician on the advice of your dentist.

Have you suffered an unusual amount of dry mouth? Let us help you find the source. Whether it's medication or some other causes we are here for you. Call us at (617) 479-6220 if you have any questions. We are conveniently located at 44 Greenleaf Street where we offer complete dental health services in a relaxed and friendly environment, with state-of-the-art equipment. ## A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once asked, "Must the mood, manner and motives of youth fade away with the years?" Before you answer quickly – look around . . . You will see plenty of proof that youth is not always measured in years. Youth need not be a time of life. It should be a state of mind. Youth, regardless of years, should be an adventure in life. When enthusiasm for life exists, wrinkled skin will not wrinkle a mind. Youth only fades away when worry, doubt, distrust, fear and despair burden the body and bow the head. Youth remains when life is faced cheerfully; when a mind wonders and is amazed with the stars, the sun, the moon and the grandeur of God's world. Youth stays on with an attitude of today is another day and what can be done with it.

Youth is faith and hope. It is enjoying beauty, being of good cheer. Cast these out and youth and maturity are gone. Retain them and youth remains. Faith, hope, appreciation of beauty and good cheer. . . all can be regained.

Yes, the fountain of youth can only be found in a state of mind. . . no other place.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your efforts in behalf of a colleague do not go unnoticed, let alone unappreciated. Meanwhile, arrange to spend more time investigating that troubling fact you recently uncovered.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Devoting a lot of time to a current career move means having less time for those in your private life. But once you explain the circumstances, they should understand and be supportive.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Organizing your many duties in order of importance should help you get through them pretty quickly. Additional information puts that still-to-be-made decision in a new light.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Lingering bad feelings over a recent misunderstanding should fade as reconciliation efforts continue. Meanwhile, vacation plans might need to be revised because of new developments.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Love dominates the Lion's heart this week, with Cupid shooting arrows at single Leos and Leonas looking for romance. Partnered pairs also enjoy strengthened relationships.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) "Getting To Know You" should be the single Virgo's theme song as you and that special person discover more about one another. That workplace situation needs looking into.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might be upset at having your objectivity questioned in the handling of a dispute. But it would be wise to re-examine your feelings to make sure you're being fair with both sides.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A family dispute creates mixed feelings about how you hope it will be ultimately resolved. Best advice: Stay out of it and let the involved parties work it through by themselves.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Making an effort to smooth over even the smallest obstacles now will go a long way to assuring that things run smoothly once you're set to move on with your plans.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A challenge to your authority can be upsetting, but your longtime supporters want you to defend your position so you can win over even your most adamant detractors.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Being unable to get involved in a friend's problem calls for an honest approach. Provide explanations, not excuses. Another friend might be able to offer support for your decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You find yourself swimming in circles, looking for some way to get back on a straight course. But things get easier once you're able to refocus your energies.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're known for your charm and your wisdom, and there's no one who wouldn't want you to be part of his or her life.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DOR Finds No Irregularities With Quirk Tax Settlement

The Department of Revenue has found no evidence of wrongdoing or irregularities in the city's tax settlement with a company controlled by shipyard owner Dan Quirk.

DOR's response was prompted by the Quincy Taxpayers Association (QTA), which made an inquiry about a $1.8 million tax settlement for taxes owed on the shipyard property. The tax settlement was approved by a Superior Court judge.

But QTA questioned DOR on a number of provisions in the settlement, including the waiving of various fees, taxes and other costs. DOR responded by saying it found no irregularities with the settlement.

"Where a civil lawsuit on a local tax matter is pursued in the Superior Court, the judicial determination serves to resolve all issues between the parties that are before the Court," stated DOR Commissioner Alan LeBovidge, in a letter to Robert Haley, QTA vice president.

"Moreover, we believe that where an agreement for judgment is approved by the Court and entered as an Order for Judgment, the terms of the agreement constitute the Court's judgment and full resolution of the matter regardless of whether the requisite payments are all or a part of the full balance of taxes, interest or charges claimed," LeBovidge wrote.

Cinema Project Put On Hold After Unfavorable Reception

[illegible] environment and I was disappointed with the reception," he said. "I didn't want to make another presentation where I was going to be the center of ridicule."

He said it was unfortunate that supporters of his plan did not make their feelings known at the meeting.

"There's about 13,000 people that live in that Ward, and most of the people I talk to are supportive of the plan.

"This is really a step back to see what we can come up with to convince people that this is a good plan," he said.

7th Annual Marie Curry Walk Set For Sept. 19

The 7th annual Marie Curry Walk will be held Sunday, Sept. 19, beginning and ending at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park.

Each year, the walk raises funds to benefit the Marie A. Curry Fund, which provides free breast cancer screenings and breast care services at Quincy Medical Center to women without health insurance or with inadequate coverage.

The four-mile, non-competitive walk is sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on Women and Quincy Medical Center. Last year's walk raised more than $157,000 to benefit the fund, topping the previous year.

Those interested in being a sponsor for the Marie Curry Walk or to join the planning committee, are asked to call Amy Klotz at 617-376-5493 or e-mail aklotz@quincymc.org.

Local Church Members Join Protest Against Same-Sex Marriages

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

About 20 members of Quincy and neighboring churches traveled to the State House last Thursday to protest against same-sex marriages as the legislature tackled the controversial issue in a constitutional convention session.

The protest and the convention, which will resume March 29, stem from a recent ruling by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court to allow gay marriages.

Jim Rickert of Quincy, a member of St. Angela's in Mattapan, organized the local protest. The participants met outside St. John's Church and rode to Boston on a yellow school bus marked with a small sign on the back door that read "Gay Marriage Protest."

Rickert said he had been organizing a rally such as this for four years. Rickert was active on the Marriage Initiative Petition to ban gay marriage introduced to the legislature in 2002. The petition, which was signed by 130,000 Massachusetts voters, was defeated when then Senate president Thomas Birmingham garnered the necessary votes to adjourn the June 2002 Constitutional Convention. This prohibited the petition from going to a popular vote.

Rickert said the voters, not the legislature or the courts, should make the decision about gay marriage.

"The travesty is we should be voting on it this year," said Rickert.

Most present for the protest agreed with Rickert that it should go to a vote. Rev. John Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston, carried a sign that said "Let The People Vote For Marriage In 2004."

"Have it go to a vote," said Swanson. "From strictly a governmental standpoint what the court did is wrong."

The protesters said that they thought it was crucial for marriage to be defined as an institution between one man and one woman.

"We need to get back to families," said Rickert. "Instead of opening this Pandora's box of redefining marriage, what we need to do is get back to the basics."

Rev. Richard Brondyke, pastor at Fort Square Presbyterian Church, agreed. He pointed to a study conducted by Dr. Stanley Kurtz of the Hoover Institution. Kurtz asserts in "Beyond Gay Marriage," published in 2003 in the Weekly Standard, that the family unit is deteriorating in Scandinavian countries because they allow gay marriage.

"The changing of the definition of what marriages is has already proven to be in other countries, and would

Phelan Seeks $10M Bond For Road, Building Repairs

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan has introduced a $10 million bond package to pay for road repairs, building maintenance, DPW equipment and financial software for the city.

The request to authorize a bond was placed in the council's finance committee for further review.

About $5 million has been earmarked for road repairs under the city's new pavement management plan. According to DPW Commissioner Jay Fink, the plan creates a priority list of road projects. Over the course of a year, a private contractor assessed and evaluated all the city's streets, focusing on condition, traffic and type of treatment, he said.

"Basically, the city has a $80 million need for the upgrade of all city streets to attain a satisfactory service level," said Fink. "The mayor is looking to infuse $5 million into the program to get it jumpstarted.

"The idea of the plan is to spend money maintaining the surface that you have before it deteriorates to a level where it's now very costly to rebuild the entire roadway. You will see a lot of surface treatments, overlays and shim and crackseal," said Fink.

He said the city has spent more than a year preparing for the results and implementation of the pavement management plan. "This is a big leap in the philosophy of how we deal with street construc-

Illegal Tobacco Sale To Minors On Rise

The illegal sale of tobacco to minors is on the rise in Quincy according to recent compliance checks and cooperative steps are being taken to correct the problem.

Of 169 retailers checked from December to the present, 53 establishments — 31.3 percent — sold tobacco to youths.

And the percentage is still rising.

The Blue Hills Tobacco Free Community Mobilization Network in Quincy, in collaboration with the Quincy Health Department and Quincy Community Police Officers, conducted the checks the past three months.

"That means that almost one out of every three retailers checked sold tobacco to a minor," [illegible] Henley, program director at the Blue Hills CNPA.

Two Power Outages Affect 14,000 Quincy Customers

About 14,000 Quincy customers experienced two power outages Tuesday, one just before noon and last an about 20 minutes, and the other at 12:30 p.m. lasting 10 minutes.

According to Debbie Drew, a spokesperson from Mass Electric, the outage was caused by an overloaded transformer at the Field Street sub-station. The second outage tripped the transformer again, Drew said.

Street lights were out and police had to man the crossings and intersections.

Streets affected [illegible] Hancock Street downtown business [illegible] McGrath Highway, [illegible] Greenleaf, South, [illegible] and Field Streets, Glendale Road and Barbara Terrace.

Other streets were affected as well according to the Drew.

City's Bond Rating Reaffirmed; Phelan Eyeing Upgrade

Mayor William Phelan pledged to upgrade the city's bond rating after two national firms recently reaffirmed Quincy's A3 and A minus rating.

The two national bond rating firms, Standard & Poors and Moody's, recently released reports commenting on the city's fiscal management. The reports, which were issued in the context of the city's proposal to issue a $4.06 million dollar General Obligation Bond, confirmed the city's ratings.

Standard & Poor's called Quincy's outlook "stable," and noted that its "financial performance has improved after several years of deterioration. Reserves and fund balances have begun to grow; and tax collections are strong. Expenditures have been controlled by staff reductions. The current administration, which is in its second year, has made steps to improve the city's financial management, including adopting more conservative budgetary practices and establishing a chief financial officer position."

Moody's concurred, saying the administration has budgeted conservatively for fiscal 2004 "with worst-case projections for state aid reductions, tax rate and fee increases, conservatively estimated property tax and PILOT revenues, and limited expenditure increases."

Phelan pledged to increase the city's stabilization fund in the hope of boosting Quincy's bond rating.

"The city failed to sock away money when times were good, and we are paying a price for that," said Phelan. "But I am committed to doing everything necessary to ensure that even in the current challenging fiscal climate, we increase our stabilization funds with an eye toward a bond rating upgrade."

House Approves $500,000 For Quincy Medical Center

The House of Representatives has passed a supplemental budget that includes $500,000 for Quincy Medical Center through the Essential Community Provider Expendable Trust Fund, announce State Reps. Ronald Mariano, Stephen Tobin and Bruce Ayers.

"In securing this funding for Quincy Medical Center, we recognize the integral role this facility plays in our community and the tremendous progress the hospital has made over the past five years," Mariano said.

Last November, QMC underwent its triennial Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations survey and received a score of 98. Both the oncology program and the occupational health services department were accredited and certified.

Over the past four years, QMC's inpatient volume has grown by 12 percent and the outpatient programs have grown by 60 percent. Emergency room visits have grown by 15 percent, as more than 32,000 patients visit the emergency room on an annual basis.

In 1999, Quincy's legislative delegation worked for the passage of a $12.1 million loan to the City of Quincy for the conversion of Quincy Hospital from a city owned institution to a private non-profit corporation.

"Quincy Medical Center continues to face new fiscal challenges," Tobin said. "During the past year, free care payments decreased by $ 1 million, while cuts in MassHealth eligibility have caused a 30 percent increase in the number of QMC patients applying for free care."

Ayers said Quincy's unique geographical position coupled with its unusually large elderly and chronically ill population makes Quincy Medical Center a unique facility.

"We are committed to ensuring that Quincy Medical Center has the appropriate tools to continue to serve our community," Ayers added.

Quincy, South Shore Looking To Benefit From Democratic Convention

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Local elected and tourism officials from the South Shore and Cape Cod are banding together in an attempt to reap the benefits from the thousands of visitors who will stream into Boston during this summer's Democratic National Convention.

Some 35,000 visitors from all over the world are expected to visit Boston in late July, and south shore communities see it as a great opportunity.

Elected officials, civic groups, businesses and other interested parties last week held a "convention summit" designed to harness the area's resources and boost tourism in places such as Quincy, Plymouth and the Cape. The convention is scheduled for July 26-29, so the time to act is now, officials said. Convention visitors could spend upwards of $150 million in the greater Boston area, according to planners.

"We have an incredible opportunity during the convention to showcase this city and district for long term benefits," said Congressman William Delahunt, who coordinated the event at city hall last week. "This particular congressional district is replete with significant historical sites."

Mayor William Phelan, along with Weymouth Mayor David Madden, Plymouth Selectman Kenneth Tavares and state Sen. Michael Morrissey agreed to form a task force to coordinate efforts and work with convention planners.

"If we speak as a group it will have a greater impact," Phelan told those in attendance.

Many representatives from Quincy attended the meeting, including Robert Galligan from the Best Western Adams Inn, Marianne Peak from the National Park Service and Michael McGurl from Harbor Express.

One of the main topics of discussion involved transportation and the idea of moving thousands of people from Boston to the South Shore and Cape Cod.

Representatives from transportation businesses said they were eager to work with convention planners and local officials.

The Quincy meeting featured briefings from the Democratic National Committee and Boston 2004 Host Committee.

Gail P. Jackson, executive director of political affairs for the Democratic National Convention Committee, said thousands of international journalists will be looking for stories in and around Boston.

Visitors will arrive the weekend prior and stay until the weekend after the convention, so officials should try to organize and plan events around those dates, Jackson said.

Organizers are putting together a binder full of locations and events in the greater Boston area, she said. An events calendar will be updated daily, she said.

Local officials also need to be aware of convention times, according to Morrissey. Since most convention activities occur at night, visitors will be looking for things to do during the day, he said.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Delahunt said he was encouraged by the turnout and input from those in attendance.

"I am leaving here with a sense of urgency," he said. "This will be upon us quickly, and if we are not prepared we will miss this opportunity."

McCauley's Book As A Movie

Frank McCauley has been pretty much an all-business guy during his going-on 31 years in political life.

McCAULEY

You know, his penny-pinching and no-nonsense four terms as mayor. Habits he still has today as city council president.

But he's also got a sense of humor. And has his fun days.

This is one of them.

"I just got back from Hollywood," he says, "where I negotiated a deal for a movie of my best selling book."

The book is "Quincy, A Political History, 1889-2000" covering 111 years — from 1889 when Quincy changed from a town to a city government to Mayor James Sheets' sixth term inauguration Jan. 3, 2000.

McCauley, a Quincy political historian and Republican, was asked by Sheets, a Democrat, to write the book as part of the city's millennium celebration in 2000.

McCauley says that while he was out in Hollywood, he signed actors and actresses to play some of the political figures that appear in his book.

"It wasn't easy," he says. "Some of them want the moon when it comes to money. But you know me. I got to do some trimming."

McCauley thinks he has put together an all-star cast. Most of the roles filled — but not all — are of those who served in the city council.

McCauley has the following playing the following:

Sylvester Stallone: Dan Raymondi.
Clint Eastwood: Tim Cahill.
Tom Hanks: Joe Newton.
Robert Redford: Paul Harold.
Mickey Rooney: Walter Hannon.
Luciano Pavarotti: Peter Kolson.
Elizabeth Taylor: Joanne Condon Walsh.
Robert DeNiro: Joe LaRaia.
Nick Nolte: Mike Cheney.
Al Pacino: Tom Fabrizio.
Pat Boone: Pat McDermott.
George Kennedy: Arthur Tobin.
Jesse Ventura: Jim Sheets.
Macaulay Culkin: Bryan Connolly.
James Brolin: Bill Delahunt.
Nicholas Cage: Dennis Harrington.
Gene Hackman: Leo Kelly.
James Farentino: Steve McGrath.
Sandra Bullock: Linda Stice.
Goldie Hawn: Christine Cedrone.
Joe Pesci: Mike D'amico.
Ned Beatty: Greg Hanley.

McCauley says Mel Gibson will make a cameo appearance playing Bill Phelan who isn't in the book. He was a political unknown when the book was written.

And who will portray Frank McCauley?

How about Paul Newman, Frank?

McCauley is just kidding about the movie, folks. And, the cast, too.

But seriously, the book is a most informative history of Quincy's government as a city with facts, figures and some interesting tidbits about those elected to office.

MILLER

Miller, Quincy's 12th mayor and in a way maybe its most dedicated, took office in 1914 when the mayoral term was only one year. And he was soon diagnosed with cancer. Under the city charter then, a special election would be called if a mayor for some reason vacated the office before the last three months of his term.

In Miller's case, if he died or had to leave office before Oct. 5, 1914 a special election would have to be called to elect his successor.

According to McCauley, Miller had a deathbed wish: that he would live long enough to spare the city the cost of a special election.

He got his wish. Only 60, he lived to Oct. 6 — beating the special election requirement by just one day. City Council President Joseph Whiton, who would later become mayor himself, finished out the remaining days of Miller's term.

"Imagine," McCauley noted just before the book came out, "lying there dying and thinking of just living long enough to save the city money."

McCauley, who as mayor liked to save money, has a great admiration for Miller and his dedication to the city.

Another interesting tidbit: during the 111 years covered by the book 456 people served as mayors, councillors and school committee members. But only 20 were women.

That despite the fact that for some time now, Quincy has had more women voters than men. As of the 1999 date in the book, the voter registration was 56 percent women and 44 percent men.

The book was a two-year labor of love not only for McCauley but for his wife, Sandra, too.

McCauley wrote it in longhand and Sandra then typed the chapters on a word processor and helped in the editing. They did it free of charge. No fee.

The 350-page hard cover book costs $20 plus $1 tax. Some are still available at the Quincy Historical Society. All revenue goes to the city.

Maybe Frank will update it.

But, no, you won't be seeing it at a theater near you.

March 30 Full Day Of Classes For Quincy Public Schools

Tuesday, March 30, will be a full day of classes for all Quincy Public School students, grades 1-12, announces Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, superintendent of schools.

DeCristofaro said a full-day will allow sufficient time for all students in grade 4, 7 and 10 to complete the long essay portion of the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System.

Morning sessions kindergartens and all-day kindergartens will be dismissed at their regular Tuesday times. Afternoon pre-school and kindergarten sessions will not be held on March 30, or on any other Tuesday.

School lunches will be served on that day and full-day bus schedules will be in place.

Navy Office May Have To Close At Shipyard

Samuel Wakeman, general manager of Bethlehem Shipbuilding Division in Quincy, said that unless the Fore River shipyard gets more Navy contracts the Navy's office at the Yard, opened in 1898, will have to be closed.

Meanwhile, George A. Daley Jr., chairman of the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee, asked the South Shore Congressional delegation for its help in obtaining a $12 million contract for refurbishing a Navy ship.

This Week
1953
51 Years Ago

A spokesman for the shipyard, where 1,600 workers had been laid off since Jan. 1 following delivery of the USS Northampton, said Bethlehem would welcome the contract despite the fact that the yard was geared for work on new ships.

TAX RATE HEADED DOWN

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. estimated that Quincy's 1953 tax rate would be $48.80, a decrease of $5 from the previous year, after the City Council finished trimming and passed the city budget.

The Council vote was 6-1 with Councillor Carl W. Anderson in opposition. He said he approved everything in it except the $2,050 raise for the city manager which would hike his salary to $16,000.

Medical Society Thanks Mariano

As a physician, I can verify that paperwork knows no end in the world of medicine. But an important recent event took place that will shorten that process and thus improve patient care.

On March 1, doctors, hospitals and seven major health plans announced a new program to streamline the credentialing process for physicians. While not big news perhaps in the grand scheme of things, the credentialing process, which verifies a physician's qualifications, is critical to ensure quality of care for patients.

This new arrangement will reduce the increasing administrative burden on doctors and save time and money by using one set of forms for a doctor to present his or her credentials to hospitals and health plans. The importance of this? Doctors will have more time to do what they do best — care for their patients.

This collaborative effort among the major health care providers was made possible with the help of Rep. Ronald Mariano of Quincy, who also represents Holbrook and Weymouth. His leadership efforts helped bring the parties together to move collectively on the issue. On behalf of the local physician members of the Mass. Medical Society and the Norfolk South District Medical Society, I extend our thanks to him for his important efforts in helping to improve health care for out patients.

Bull-Fighting Is Cruel To Animals

My name is Nora Abo-Sido, and I am 12 years old. I am currently in 7th grade at Central Middle School. I am writing to inform you about the terrible cruelty to animals that happens every year. As you know, bullfighting is a very common and popular sport in countries such as Spain, Italy and Mexico. Many people enjoy watching these abusive acts. What many people may not know is what really happens to the bull.

During bullfights there are three stages. The Picador, the first stage, has a man on a horse stab the bull and infuriate him. The second stage has the bullfighter implant banderillas into the bull's neck muscles. The final stage includes the bullfighter with his cape and sword. This is when the bull dies. If the bullfighter does a good job he earns its ears, tail or hoof.

If you think this is cruel, you will be fascinated with what they do to bulls before the fight. Strong laxatives are added to feed to further desolate the bull. Drugs are administered to pep bull up or slow him down. Ears are stuffed with wet newspaper. Vaseline is rubbed in their eyes to blur vision. Cotton is stuffed up their nostrils to cut off respiration. Long needles are stuck into their genitals, and a strong, irritating solution is rubbed on their legs to throw off their balance. This also keeps them from lying down. The bull is kept in a dark box; when he is let out he runs furiously toward the light at the end of the tunnel, only to have a door fall a split second before him, sending him crashing into the door.

When the banderillas strike, the bull stops and bellows madly. As the stunned and mutilated bull charges they deftly plant two heavy darts in the lacerated neck muscles. The sharp fishhook points hold firm and the darts jump and tear every time the bull tosses his head. Sometimes firecrackers are attached to banderillas to arouse a tired and failing bull.

The horse is also tortured. The horse has its vocal cords cut out, and it is blindfolded with ears stuffed with wet newspaper. It is ridden in the first round. The 'Picador' makes a hole about four inches wide and very deep; well down the withers on the backbone eight times the lance is inserted and rotated.

I am asking you to help me and others fight the bullfight. Most tourists have not made their respectful feelings known about animals, and continue to support this cruelty. We can help stop this brutality and save many bulls with help from others. I appreciate your time and hope you along with other humanitarians help to stop this abuse.

Same-Sex Marriage Meeting Topic At Crane Library March 29

Same-sex marriage will be the topic of discussion at a community forum on Monday, March 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission, the forum is part of the group's "No Place for Hate," campaign with the Anti-Defamation League.

Supporters on both sides of the issue are encouraged to attend this free event.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett from the United First Parish Church is scheduled to moderate the event.

"We feel this is a human rights and civil rights issue," said Edward Grogan, chairman of the Quincy Human Rights Commission. "We have discussed the issue and a majority of our members support the idea of same-sex marriage. But we need to be sensitive to both sides of the issue."

Other guests have been invited to attend the forum, including the Rev. Richard Brondyke from the Fort Square Presbyterian Church.

"I intend to come out in favor of the historic, traditional view of marriage," he said.

Paul Meoni from the gay and lesbian advocacy group, Speakout, will also attend. Quincy residents William Kerrigan and Leslie Leahy have been invited as well.

Quincy College Blood Drive Donates 41 Pints To Mass. General

More than 40 faculty, staff, students and members from the community participated in Quincy College's recent blood drive.

The community service project, working in conjunction with Massachusetts General Hospital, was able to donate 41 pints of blood.

The event was organized by the Office of Campus & Community Development.

Prior to the blood drive, college staff hung flyers, visited classrooms and recruited co-workers who came out to support the project. Strong support from the School of Allied Health students, faculty and staff, as well as a handful of donors from the Quincy Police Department made this a successful event.

"I know first-hand how important the availability of blood products can be, having been a cancer patient at MGH, and more recently having had surgery again, I have benefited from the generosity of others," said Quincy College President Sean Barry. "I cannot imagine what would happen if people stopped caring."

Michael Collins, director of Campus and Community Development, said, "Quincy College could not be happier at the success of our first blood drive. The overwhelming support that both our campus and local community has shown is outstanding. Successful events such as this really encouraged the college to continue to create new and innovative service projects for the campus."

Over the past 60 years, the MGH Blood Donor Center has grown into one of the largest full-service blood transfusion services in the country.

Today, the donor center strives to help provide the 85,000 blood components necessary to transfuse patients at MGH, Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, Shriners Burn Institute for Children and Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital.

The blood is supplied by volunteer donors.

Scottish poet and active Freemason Robert Burns never visited Quincy.

But, many of his countrymen immigrated to America, with a large number of Scots settling right here in Quincy. One of their contributions was the statue of the immortal bard, Robert Burns, that stands today, overlooking the intersection of Newport and Granite Streets.

Freemasonry found its roots in Scotland many centuries ago and still flourishes there today...as it does here in the United States and especially here in Quincy. Many Scottish immigrants joined local Masonic Lodges including Rural Lodge of Masons that was formed in 1801. This was equally true of men who came from many countries throughout the world to build new lives in an environment of freedom and liberty. And they, too, became a part of the Masonic tradition in Quincy.

Freemasonry is the oldest and largest fraternity of men in the world with some 5-million members in Lodges in every country in the free world. One of the benefits of being a Mason is meeting Brother Masons wherever you go.

Freemasonry invites men of good character from all walks of life, from all levels of income, from every race, creed and culture to become Masons. To be a Mason you must profess a belief in God. But Masonry is not a religion. Masonry's traditions and teachings, endeavor to instill in its members the desire and means to improve themselves and the lives of others. It is said that Freemasonry makes good men better.

As a Mason, you'll be joining other men like George Washington, Harry S Truman, Benjamin Franklin, Paul Revere, Quincy's own John Hancock and, of course, Robert Burns. Great men who have made Masonry the focus of their lives.

For more information, without obligation, on how you can become a Mason, call Rural Lodge at the number below today.

Peter-Michael Preble, Former Houghs Neck Resident

Seminarian Writes Book About Martyred Bishops Of Romanian Church

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Peter Michael Preble, a seminary student and former Houghs Neck resident, has penned a book explaining the story of seven Catholic bishops and martyrs who suffered under the communist regime in Romania.

Preble, a Master of Divinity candidate at Holy Cross Greek Orthodox Theological Seminary in Brookline, wrote the book, titled, "The Martyred Bishops of the Romanian Greek-Catholic Church United With Rome," to remind readers of an important period in modern religious history.

The book tells the story and gives biographical information of seven bishops who suffered under one of the most repressive Communist regimes in history during the 1940s and beyond. The church in Romania was suppressed until 1992, he said.

Preble lives at St. John's Seminary in Brookline and is scheduled to become a priest in May, 2005. He is a seminarian for the Romanian Catholic Church Eparchy of St. George in Canton, Ohio. It is a small diocese with only 20 parishes across the country.

Born and raised in Houghs Neck, Preble graduated from Quincy High School in 1984.

PETER-MICHAEL PREBLE

After school, he served in the Army from 1984 to 1987. He joined the Massachusetts National Guard in 1987 and still serves one weekend each month.

He received his undergraduate degree from Eastern Nazarene College.

During that time, Preble ran an unsuccessful campaign for school committee.

While a student at ENC, Preble traveled to Romania and became interested in its religious history.

"I fell in love with the country, its people and their spirituality," he said.

It was there he discovered the history of the Romanian Greek-Catholic Church and the plight of the bishops under Communism. Although imprisoned for practicing Catholicism, the bishops never renounced their faith. Most of them died while in prison.

"I felt that this was a story that needed to be told," said Preble. "None of these bishops turned their back on their church. Faced with certain death, they held fast to their faith."

One of Preble's main sources for the book was Father Alexander Ratiu, who served in prison with the bishops. Father Ratiu, now deceased, was an eyewitness to many of the actions in the book.

Preble became interested in the priesthood as a child.

"It started when I was in elementary school, and the desire came and went," he said. "I think it is something that comes to mind, much like wanting to be a policeman or fireman."

Learning of the bishops' plight served as an inspiration for Preble as he moves forward in his vocation to serve God.

"These brave men gave up their lives so that the church could continue into the next generation," Preble writes.

The book is available for $7.95 at Amazon.com or by contacting Preble by email at peter.preble@juno.com. The publication will be available at local libraries soon, he said.

Council Accepts Deed For QC Saville Hall

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Emotions ran high during Monday night's city council meeting as councillors voted to accept the deed for Saville Hall and enter into a new lease with Quincy College for the property.

On a 6-3 vote, the council accepted the deed from the owners of Presidents Place while preserving the $20,000 annual rent from the college. The college would also have to pay $567,000 in back taxes owed on the property as well.

As part of the deal, the owners would deed Saville Hall - which is currently used by Quincy College - to the city. Mayor William Phelan must approve the council's order. If vetoed, the order would come back to the council for an override vote.

Thomas Largey, the mayor's executive secretary, said allowing the college to continue paying $20,000 rent was going to be costly to taxpayers.

"The mayor is going to do what is legal," he told the council. "The deal you are going to enter into will come at a terrible cost to the taxpayer."

Phelan presented a different plan to the council that would have placed no restrictions on city's ownership of the building, and the potential to raise the rent. But Phelan's order was altered and ultimately rejected.

Assistant City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie also questioned the council's move, saying it might jeopardize the fate of a planned 200-unit apartment complex next to Presidents Place.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said the annual payment was akin to someone paying $72 a month for a 900-square foot apartment. Saville Hall was recently assessed at $2.5 million, officials said.

But supporters said the vote would not place the project in peril.

"It's all about preserving the integrity of an agreement that the city entered into with the college back in 1988," said Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi. "Was there sufficient reason to alter that arrangement – the answer is 'no.' You don't dissect the project 17 years later without an extraordinary good reason."

In May, 2003, the Zoning Board of Appeals rendered a decision regarding a development project at Presidents Place that would allow the building of a 10-story structure with 200 residential units, 200 parking spaces and an additional story for the existing parking garage.

In 1988, the college entered into a long-term lease that stipulated $20,000 annual rent. The college has been paying that amount ever since.

The council voted to accept the conditions and enter into a new lease that preserves the existing conditions of the previous lease.

The college was located in the old Quincy Court House until it was razed to make way for Presidents Place project. As part of the mitigation for the displacement of the college, it entered into a long-term lease with $20,000 rent.

Scott Shaull, director of development for Intercontinental Developers Inc., said the company is on the cusp of a deal to buy the property and build apartments but needs the land transfer to be completed before the deal is finalized. If the deal is not closed by this Friday, he said, the property sale and development is at risk.

He told councillors the best option was not to put conditions on the land transfer.

But Council President Frank McCauley disagreed, saying the brokered deal would not imperil the project.

"Chicken Little is alive and well on the city council," Raymondi said after Keenan criticized the deal.

Clearly angered, Keenan called Raymondi's comment "outrageous," and asked for an apology.

Keenan accused Raymondi, who sits on the college's board of governors, of "carrying the college's water."

"Whatever happened to civil debate?" Keenan asked. "What does that say about the democratic process? I find it disgusting."

Raymondi later apologized to Keenan for the remark, but suggested the point was taken too seriously.

The city and college are locking horns on another rent dispute. The school department recently began the eviction process after the college refused to pay a rent increase on three other buildings the college occupies.

In 2002, the school committee voted to double the rent – from $217,000 to $450,000 – it charges the college. Although the school department has not increased the rent in a decade, college officials complained that the rent hike was unfair.

Naval Reserve Celebrates 89th Birthday

The United States Naval Reserve is celebrating its 89th anniversary of its conception this month.

Congress created the Naval Reserve on March 3, 1915, in response to the development of World War I in Europe. When the United States entered the war later that year, 300,000 citizen-Sailors answered the call to arms.

Today's Naval Reserve Force consists of nearly 88,000 male and female citizen Sailors who proudly serve their country while working full time and supporting their families.

Since 911, more than 22,000 Naval Reservists have mobilized in support of Operations Nobel Eagle, Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom, and worldwide contingencies.

Naval Reserve Center Quincy is a modern, state-of-the-art facility, home to 19 Reserve Units composed of 540 Drilling Reservists and 20 full time support personnel. The Center boasts a digital full screen projection system in an auditorium that seats 185 people.

In addition, the facility includes 20 office spaces, a modern medical clinic, and four classrooms. Naval Reserve Center Quincy continues to enjoy a spirit of cooperation with the surrounding community.

'Tall Ships' Topic March 25 At Historical Society

Popular lecturer William Patton will present an illustrated survey of Tall Ships at the next Quincy Historical Society meeting, Thursday, March 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Patton's presentation includes a history of 19th century New England clippers and an overview of the modern ships that preserve the tradition of large sailing ships.

Interspersed are numerous anecdotes and pieces of folklore about the ships and the people who built and sailed them. The talk is illustrated with slides that offer distinctive views of the ships, including The Constitution under sail.

The public is invited to attend. Admission is free.

Quincy Leo Club Elects Officers

Elected to the Board of Directors were:

Advisors are Jim Collins, Dave Sawyer and Anne McEvoy.

Chartered in 2001, the Quincy Leo Club is overseen by the Quincy Lions Club. It is run by student volunteers who perform community service, which will develop the individual qualities of leadership, experience and opportunity.

New members are welcome to join and need not be enrolled at Quincy or North Quincy high school. Applications are available at either school and through the Lions.

Currently the Leos are planning recycle drives of eyeglasses, medical equipment and blankets. They will be trained on the District 33K Eyemobile to assist the Lions in providing free eye screening to local residents whom cannot afford it. The Leos are predominately involved with assisting and aiding the elderly, and many other community service projects.

The Leos want to help the community. Community service project requests can be made in writing to: the Quincy Leo Club Advisors, North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02171.

5th Annual Steven Barrett Memorial Blood Drive April 10

The fifth annual Steven Barrett Memorial Blood Drive will be held Saturday, April 10 from 7:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at St. Joseph's School Hall, 22 Pray St., Quincy Point.

Appointments can be made by calling 1-800-GIVE LIFE (448-3543) or by visiting www.givelife.org.

Steven Barrett was born and raised in Quincy, where he graduated from Quincy High School in 1995. He received a degree from Westfield State College in criminal justice and was about to become a full-time police officer after spending several summers working as an officer on Nantucket Island.

"I used to call him "The Mayor," says his father, Chris Barrett. "In the passing of Steven, I found out about so many ways he would try to help people - so many things I was unaware of. He was the type of person that would do anything for anyone."

Steven was 22 years old when he died in a car accident on Nantucket Island Sept. 30, 1999. The tragedy happened just one day before he was scheduled to return home to walk with his family in a breast cancer awareness event in memory of his mother, who had died six years earlier after battling the disease. He leaves behind a legacy of saving lives.

STEVEN BARRETT

His father received letters from people he didn't even know after the accident, letters describing what a wonderful person his son was.

"Steven was a saint. He was just such a wonderful loving boy. I can't say enough about him. And it's all the truth. He always showed what kind of a wonderful person he was in life, and everyone who knew him says the same thing," his father said.

"He had so much to give. He used to give blood and then tell me he felt really good after donating because it made him feel like he'd truly done something to help someone else.

This is why St. Joseph's is the blood drive to his memory.

"This blood drive means a great deal to our family," says Chris Barrett. "I've donated blood for many, many years and Steven used to donate blood as well. This drive is perfect for Steven's memory, because helping people is what Steven was all about."

More than 800 people have donated over the past four years and the Barrett family hopes to reach the 1000 mark this year. Food is donated by local caterer, Frank Brillo, and souvenir T shirts are given to all participants.

tion," he said. "We recognize that with the scarce dollars available we have to get every bit that we can. Once we pave a street we want to make sure it does not need to be cut or dug for any reason, so we want the infrastructure below it to function for the life expectancy of the surface.

"In the past, they waited until the roads got down to nothing and they had to rebuild it. This is a cost effective and comprehensive plan as opposed to a one-by-one street restoration," he said.

Included in the $5 million appropriation is $1 million for replacement of equipment from DPW and the fire department.

Fink said the department is in dire need of replacement of construction trucks, front end loaders and dump trucks. This equipment is geared toward road maintenance functions, such as potholes and sidewalk repair, he said.

Another $2.5 million is slated for building maintenance, including repairs to schools, fire stations and other city buildings. Much of the building repairs will focus on elementary schools, libraries, fire stations and police headquarters, he said.

Fink said the mayor is trying to secure funds to take care of the worst problems and stop the decay of the building infrastructure in the city.

"We are looking at this as a maintenance issue – if you don't put money into the upkeep, the rest of the building will fall apart," said Fink. For example, he said, a roof leak leads to water damage in other parts of the building, which causes more problems in the long term.

Approximately $1.5 million is earmarked for upgrades to the city's financial software, which has been described by city officials as out of date.

Tonight At Crane Library

Delahunt Hosting Forum On Adoption of Guatemalan Orphans

Cong. William Delahunt will co-host a forum on the issue of adoption of Guatemalan orphans tonight (Thursday) from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

Joining Delahunt will be U.S. Rep. Dave Camp (D-MI), senior officials from the US Departments of State and Homeland Security, the Congressional Coalition on Adoption Institute and adoptive families from the South Shore and Cape Cod.

Each year, American parents adopt more than 20,000 orphans from beyond the borders. After Russia and China, more of these children come from Guatemala than anywhere in the world and hundreds annually are embraced by families in southeastern Massachusetts, according to Delahunt's office.

Last month, Delahunt and Camp (D-MI) traveled to Guatemala to assess these problems first-hand. Tonight's bipartisan forum was scheduled to brief concerned families and adoption professionals on their findings and recommendations.

In addition to the Quincy event, Reps. Delahunt and Camp will sponsor briefings in Washington, D.C. and in Camp's home area of Saginaw, Michigan.

Tonight's forum is free, but space is limited. To participate, contact the Guatemala Adoptive Families Network, a national organization founded by families with children adopted from Guatemala, by email at forum@guatfam.org.

For more information, residents can call Delahunt's office at 1-800-794-9911.

Illegal Tobacco Sale To Minors On Rise

the Blue Hills CMN for January and February of this year show sales to minors continuing to rise.

In those two months 83 retailers were checked and 32 — 38 percent — were found to have sold cigarettes to minors.

The high sale rate, she said, is a reflection of the recent state budget cuts to tobacco control programs.

Henley said the last tobacco compliance check conducted by Quincy was in May, 2002. The city, she said, has been without a formal tobacco control program since August, 2002.

Compliance checks done in calendar year 2002 of 147 tobacco retailers showed only six establishments — 4 percent — having sold tobacco to youth.

Cigarette sales to minors is also on the rise in other communities throughout the state as tobacco control programs have been scaled back or eliminated due to the state budget cuts.

In Fiscal year 2001, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health allocated $50.5 million for anti-smoking programs. By July of last year, allocation was only $2.5 million.

Last September, the Blue Hills CMN received a grant from the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office to increase the awareness of regulations regarding youth access to tobacco products.

The Blue Hills CMN program was one of four programs in the state to receive the special consumer protection grant. The goal of the grant is to increase the awareness of the Attorney General's regulations regarding youth access to tobacco products.

The Blue Hills CMN and the Quincy Health Department are working with Quincy police to get the word to merchants on the importance of checking ID's.

Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele and Henley, through an arrangement by William Stemmen, head of Quincy Community Policing, spoke at morning roll calls at the police station regarding the number of retailers that had sold tobacco to minors.

Henley and Scheele will distribute copies of the state law to police who will bring the copies to tobacco retailers for posting.

"This is just another way to remind business owners and the community about the importance of keeping cigarettes out of the hands of youth," said Henley.

"Tobacco retailer education and compliance checks coupled with community awareness will help to keep the tobacco retailers vigilant in complying with the law. Working together we can limit the access Quincy youth have to tobacco products and prevent our youth from becoming lifelong smokers."

Locally, anyone who observes a violation of these regulations is encouraged to call the Blue Hills Tobacco-Free Community Mobilization Network's Consumer Compliant Line at 617-471-8400, ext. 143.

This program is funded by the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office and is a program of the Blue Hills Tobacco-Free Community Mobilization Network, part of Bay State Community Services.

Seniors Told How To Report Abuse, Avoid Identity Theft

By JOHN NOONAN
Chairman
Quincy Council on Aging

Quincy senior citizens who attended a seminar held recently were advised what steps may be taken to report cases of elder abuse.

In Massachusetts last year about 7,000 complaints were reported and investigated by local, county and state law enforcement authorities.

Dorothy Vitale, Community Specialist and Director of Senior Initiatives in the Office of Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating, was the guest speaker at the Park and Recreation Department auditorium on the subject "The Red Flags of Elder Abuse."

In a slide presentation, Vitale described what steps seniors may take, with the back-up of state law and various enforcement agencies, to report cases of elder abuse.

Vitale defined elder abuse as neglect, physical or exploitation of people 60 years of age and older. The three basic categories of such abuse are domestic, institutional, and neglect. Under any of these categories that abuse may be physical, emotional, financial.

Neglect tops the list of reported cases followed by physical abuse, emotional abuse, financial exploitation, sexual abuse and even death.

What are some of the red flags indicating abuse?

The abused victim may show signs of helplessness, fear of reprisal, hesitation to talk to anyone about the situation, denial, confusion, agitation, anger, withdrawal and depression.

One of the purposes of the red flag signal seminar was to empower individuals to take whatever action is necessary to address the case of an elder being abused by either a family member or by a caregiver.

During the question and answer period a great deal of discussion centered around a problem that has become pronounced, stealing the identity of an individual particularly that of a senior citizens.

Last year some 10 million individuals fell victim to stealing the identity of a person, particularly that of senior citizens who are most vulnerable. This type of financial thievery and abuse can be shattering because the elder is not aware it is happening to them. And sometimes it is too late, the thief has absconded with the elder's life savings.

Here are a few tips recommended by Vitale and the AARP.

•Never give your Social Security number or personal information of any kind over the phone or online to a stranger. Instead, you can substitute a PIN (personal information number).

•Scrutinize your bank statements and credit card reports for telltale markers of identity theft.

•Be alert when using ATMs. Be wary of "shoulder surfers" lurking behind you who will steal your bank account and PIN numbers. Identity thieves are resourceful and creative.

Vitale said identity thefts are growing so fast it's hard for law enforcement to keep ahead of them. Seniors can help themselves by being ever alert to what is going on around them.

A SENIOR CITIZENS seminar on elder abuse and identity theft was presented jointly by the Quincy Department of Elder Services and Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating's office. Participants included (seated) Nancy McDonald, Quincy Commission on Human Rights, and Mary Vallier, Quincy Council on Aging Board. Standing, Sabina Stenberg, Silver Hair legislator, and Dorothy Vitale, community specialist in the District Attorney's office.

Campaign Against Family Violence At Quincy High School March 23

Quincy High School and the Quincy Campaign will be hosting a White Ribbon Campaign on Tuesday, March 23 beginning at 8:30 a.m. in the high school's auditorium, 52 Coddington St.

The campaign is designed to empower men and women of all ages to come together to prevent family violence. Keynote speaker for the event will be Major Richard Cardinal of the Plymouth County Sheriff's office.

Two White Ribbon ceremonies will be held, each running one hour. Male students, faculty, city residents and leaders will have the opportunity to take the White Ribbon Campaign pledge: "never to commit, condone, or remain silent about violence against women."

Tara Whooley On NQHS Honor Roll

Deni Sindel Sales Associate At Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc.

Deni Sindel has joined Century 21 Annex Realty with offices in Quincy and Hanover as a sales associate, announces Art Foley, Broker/Owner.

Sindel is based in the company's Quincy office at 49 Beale St., Wollaston, serving the residential needs of greater Boston and the South Shore.

A licensed as a sales agent for more than 30 years, she has practiced real estate sales full time for more than five years. Most recently, she worked as an agent in South Boston, where she handled residential and commercial sales.

DENI SINDEL

A former South Boston resident, Sindel said, "Many of my clients want to relocate to Quincy and its surrounding towns for three main reasons: better value, real neighborhoods and an easy commute to downtown Boston. The overall quality of life is such a selling point for this region."

Since 1978, Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., has provided comprehensive real estate services to the South Shore. With offices in Quincy and Hanover, Massachusetts, a staff of more than 50 professional Realtors serves the South Shore community, from the Neponset Bridge to the Sagamore Bridge.

For more information about Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., or our services, including sales, rentals, appraisals, property management, continuing education programs and free notary services, call the Quincy office at 617-472-4330 or toll-free 800-345-4614, the Hanover office at 781-829-4210 or toll-free 800-207-8647.

Home-Buyer Workshop April 10

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore has scheduled a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, sponsored by Abington Savings Bank, Saturday, April 10, at Abington Savings Bank, 97 Libbey Parkway, Weymouth.

The one-day workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

Downpayment grants up to $10,000 per family are available for first-time buyers who are purchase-ready and income-eligible. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

There is a $10 fee per person to cover the cost of workshop materials. Advanced registration is required. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

ON THE HOUSE

BY PAUL O'MALLEY

Post-Winter Lawn Care, Sagging Ceilings

QUESTION: What can I start doing for my lawn?

ANSWER: Unfortunately it was a brutal winter for lawns and some shrubs. It is really beneficial for lawns to be snow covered during a cold snap.

Snow will insulate and protect lawns from subfreezing temparatures like we had in January.

Although too much snow can cause rot which happened after the 1995-96 winter of 100 inches. When snow melts it supplies a great deal of nitrogen.

Most lawns took it on the chin this winter and there will be sluggish combacks.

One good thing about the deep freeze is that it should killl off grubs which hybernate above the frost line. You can start off be giving your lawn a good rakings and applying lime. Lime will sweaten the soil and promote growth.

You want see immediate tangable results with your lawn after you lime like you would with some fertilzers. You should be liming at least spring and fall anyway.

If you have evergreens around the lawn you may want to do it more often. Evergeen needles are very acidic which is not good for a lawn.

Right around now you should be applying a fertilzer with crab grass control. Crab grass is essentially a self seeding annual plant.

In the fall, after the first frost it will drop its seeds for the spring. A crab grass preventer will neutralize those crab grass seeds.

However, that product will also neautralize or kill grass seed.

So how can you do both?

You can buy a crabgrass preventer that will allow you to apply grass seed. It's alot more money than the other but it's the only way you can do both at the same time.

Rhododendrens took it on the chin too. Usually a tough plant, severe winters can test them, especially newer plantings. Give them a shot of Miracid or use tree spikes.

This winter was also tough not only because of the temperatures but there was hardly any water, which they need year round.

QUESTION: What can I do for my old sagging plaster ceiling?

ANSWER: Join the club. My living room ceiling is 133 years old and looks like a road map. Eventually I will have to go over it with blueboard and a skim coat.

I have tucked up some sagging portions with what is called a "ceiling Button." It works like a washer used with a drywall screw. As you tighten it up it flattens out and allows you to patch with spackling.

Old horse hair plaster can last for centuries. Ceilings are tough because the plaster is fighting gravity more than a wall and there's usually more vibrations from floors above which will help loosen the plaster over the years.

Margaret Fahy Achieves Graduate Realtor Institute Designation

Margaret Fahy of Century 21 Abigail Adams, North Quincy, has earned the Graduate, Realtor Institute designation from the Massachusetts Association of Realtors.

The GRI designation signifies 90 hours of advanced real estate coursework.

The program curriculum includes such subjects as residential construction and design, listings, pricing property, marketing, law, finance, ethics, management, advertising, real estate calculation and taxation.

MARGARET FAHY

Realtors who have passed the GRI examinations are recognized as having attained one of the highest educational levels in residential real estate.

Fahy, a Milton resident, has been an associate of Century 21 Abigail Adams since 1997.

"Margaret is a wonderful asset to our sales team. Her dedication to advanced learning in our field is truly a role model for the entire office", said Sandra Fennelly, sales manager.

Francis Sandonato Joins Classic Homes GMAC Real Estate

"His character and work ethic are truly admirable and his special knowledge will service him well," said Barry Rabinovitz, president of Classic Homes GMAC Real Estate.

Sandonato has been a homeowner in Quincy for over 18 years where he lives with his wife and two children. He has a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering and a master's degree in transportation engineering from Northeastern University.

Prior to his career in real estate sales, he was the city engineer in Quincy. He also worked as a construction engineer with the Mass Highway department for 31 years.

With his knowledge of Quincy along with his engineering background, Sandonato said he feels his experience gives him a unique perspective and expertise in structural analysis and design.

Sandonato has been active for many years in Quincy youth sports as a coach. Besides being a Massachusetts registered engineer, he is an active member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Plymouth & South Shore Association of Realtors.

Classic Homes GMAC Real Estate is about to celebrate its 16th year in the business of residential real estate in the Quincy and South Shore area. Independently owned and operated, it is also a member of one of the largest real estate organizations in North America.

The GMAC Home Service network is comprised of 1,300 residential real estate offices and more than 20,000 sales associates throughout the United States and Canada.

Increase Your Home's Curb Appeal With An Entryway

(NU) An entryway has the unique position of welcoming visitors to a home and setting the mood for the rest of the house. A front door design theme can be carried from the exterior to the interior and throughout the entire home.

Since today's door manufacturers offer an abundance of striking entry systems that are compatible with most budgets, it's possible to create a million-dollar look for almost any home.

By adding sidelights and transoms, you can create an elegant entry system. Transoms are shaped windows, usually with decorative glass, above a door. Sidelights are windows, with decorative or clear glass, that frame a door. Included below are tips to create an impressive entry system to fit most budgets.

Even with a limited budget, homeowners can create an impressive entrance. Fiberglas, steel and composite doors are now crafted to emulate the look of wood, while offering energy-efficiency. Steel doors are extremely strong and cost-efficient; Fiberglas doors resist rusting, cracking and splitting; composite doors withstand all types of weather. These types of doors are low-maintenance and cost-effective.

With a more open budget, a homeowner can select from a wider range of entryway designs. Whether the home is stucco, brick or wood-sided, wood doors make a remarkable upgrade to the front of most houses. Wood doors are offered in a variety of species, including oak, fir and pine, to fit the homeowner's personal style.

To further enhance a home's curb appeal, homeowners can select wood species and options to coordinate with interiors, doors, window finishings and even cabinetry for a polished, complete look.

Customized entryways are more than a simple gateway between the outside world and your home. They are works of art. Skilled artisans craft custom doors to emphasize the characteristics of natural wood and enhance the home's true beauty.

Toward Purchase Of Handicapped Van

Bernazzani School Students Raise Funds For Disabled Wellesley Resident

Bernazzani School students will present a check for $200 tomorrow (Friday) to help a Wellesley resident with Muscular Dystrophy purchase a handicapped van.

Students will make the check presentation to Amy Ashdon at 12:45 p.m. in the Bernazzani School. Mayor William Phelan and School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro are scheduled to attend.

Ashdon, 35, has Muscular Dystrophy and has spent her entire life in a wheelchair.

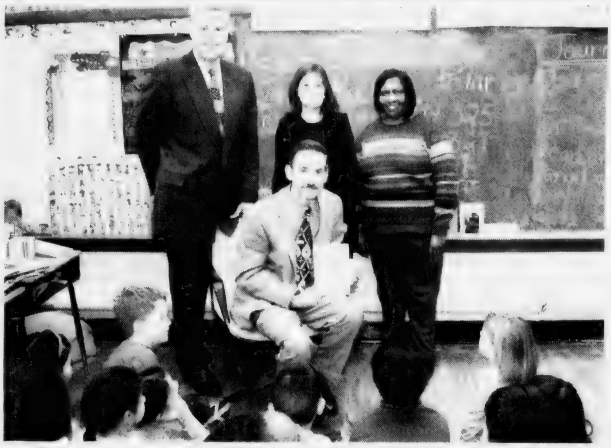
She requires the use of a handicapped van, but her current one is 14 years old and on its last legs. She is unable to use "The Ride."

Ashdon has numerous medical appointments weekly and needs the use of a van.

Patrick Barry, a physical therapist in Quincy Public Schools, initiated the drive by making a plea to school officials and staff about the matter. The response has been overwhelming, he said.

"The people have been wonderful," said Barry. "It's been heartwarming, but she still has a ways to go." Barry said Ashdon has raised approximately $2,500 to date. A fully equipped van for the handicapped costs approximately $36,000, he said.

Bernazzani School students held a bake sale to raise funds for Ashdon.



Barry said Rep. Bruce Ayers has been helping Ashdon also.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the van fund can make a check payable to the WHCC Wheelchair Van Fund. Sent contributions to the Wellesley Hills Congregational Church, 207 Washington St., Wellesley Hills, MA 02481.

State Champs Heading To Dallas

Midget A's Gearing Up For National Tournament

The Quincy Youth Hockey Midget A team is getting ready to travel to Dallas, Texas, for the National Championship Tournament held March 31 through April 4.

The team qualified by capturing the state championship with a 4-3 victory over three-time national champion South Boston.

Coached by Dennis Murray, Al Grazioso and Sean Vermette, the team is made up of current and former players from Quincy and North Quincy high schools, BC High, Catholic Memorial and Marshfield.

YOUTH HOCKEY

Anyone wishing to make a donation to help defray the cost of sending the team to Dallas can send a tax-deductible donation to: Quincy Youth Hockey Midget A Fund, c/o Quincy Youth Association, 30 Murphy Memorial Drive, Quincy, MA 02169.

"This is quite an honor for this group of young men to be representing Quincy and Massachusetts in the National Tournament," Grazioso said. "These players are a very special group of young men. Although many have competed against each other at the high school level they have remained friends.

"Many have played together in Quincy Youth Hockey since they were 6 years old. For most of them this will be their last opportunity to play as teammates and to represent Quincy Youth Hockey. Having been together for three state championships throughout their youth hockey careers, there would be no better way to end than with a national championship."

The Midget National Tournament is made up of 17- and 18-year-old players representing the top 12 teams in the country. Quincy will open against a representative from the Central U.S. region followed by the Southeastern U.S. representative. Its third game will be against a powerful Michigan team. If all goes well, Quincy will then advance to the tournament quarterfinals.

Other regions of the country being represented are: Alaska, Mid-America, host Dallas, Rocky Mountain, Atlantic, New England, Pacific, New York and the Southern U.S.

Sacred Heart 8th Grade Girls Win Basketball Tourney

Led by Rebecca Goreham, Sacred Heart won three straight games in three days. No easy feat. Goreham paced the team in scoring in all three games and consistently found the open player leading to easy baskets.

With the hot shooting of perimeter players Paige Bonnani, Meagan Tobin and Kasey O'Connell, Sacred Heart moved the ball well to get good looks at the basket. Head coach Russ Goreham said those three showed the ability and confidence to take their shots from anywhere at anytime during the game.

And that opened up the inside for low-post players Catherine Feeney and Rachel Goreham, who controlled the boards and patrolled the paint very well throughout the tournament.

Mary Kate Stille scored most of Sacred Heart's fast-break points while also playing her usual solid defense. She seemed to come up with every loose ball and held the opposing team's top player to low-scoring games.

Role-players Julie Kisielius, Kathryn Carella and Alex Nee came off the bench and showed their versatility by playing every position on the court.

"These three practice hard every week and know what they are doing," coach Goreham said. "Every good team needs players like these girls. Rebecca may be our big gun but assistant coach Jim Bonnani and I know that if we need a hoop or a stop, anyone on this team can get it for us."

AN OPPORTUNITY TO UPGRADE

If you have a vehicle that tows a trailer, it may be a candidate for an upgrade when it comes time to replace worn shocks. Moving up to a premium shock can significantly enhance the vehicle's driveability when towing. Trailer towing places additional load factors on the vehicle's suspension, in terms of both the added weight that bears down on the suspension and the additional lateral loads that occur when lane-changing or cruising down the highway in heavy cross-winds. High-performance, heavy-duty shocks can provide a real benefit to towing vehicles when it comes to ride comfort and control. Also, have the springs checked. New shocks will not be of much use if the springs are weak or broken.

If you are planning to tow a trailer it is important that your shocks and struts are sized and serviced properly. Our customers continue to tell us they find our ASE Certified professional service staff to be superior. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is proud of that, and we want you to know we will continue to work toward improving our record. We are located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles

HINT: For proper ride control, have all of your vehicle's chassis system components checked, including springs, anti-sway bars, chassis bushings, shocks struts, and suspension joints

Tips For Safe Lifting To Protect Your Spine

Work in your garden? Spring cleaning?

Here are some tips for safe lifting to protect your spine: always keep your back aligned; maintain your center of balance; and let the strong muscles in your legs do the actual lifting. Before you lift anything, think about the load you'll be lifting. Ask yourself: "Can I lift alone?" "Do I need mechanical help?" If the load is manageable, follow the tips provided below for safe lifting.

1) Tuck your pelvis: by tightening your stomach muscles you can tuck your pelvis to help your back stay in balance while you lift.

2) Bend at your knees, not your waist. This helps you keep your center of balance and lets your stronger leg muscles do the lifting.

3) "Hug" the load: try to hold the object you're lifting as close to your body as possible, as you gradually straighten your legs to a standing position.

4) Make sure your footing is firm when lifting and that your path is clear. Be sure to use the same safe techniques when you set your load down.

5) Avoid twisting: twisting can overload your spine and lead to serious injury. Make sure your feet, knees, and torso are pointed in the same direction.

When lifting, if you experience pain or soreness in your neck, shoulders or back, chiropractic can help.

Take Lycopene To Heart

(NAPS) — A growing number of people are taking the nutrition and health of their family to heart by serving heart-healthy meals using ketchup, pasta sauce or other processed tomato products.

Why processed tomato products? Besides being favorites around the world, products such as ketchup, tomato sauce and other tomato-based foods are abundant sources of tomato lycopene – an antioxidant that research has shown may help reduce the risk of heart disease and other ailments.

According to a study commissioned by the H.J. Heinz Company, the public's awareness of the benefits of tomato lycopene in a healthy diet is higher than ever before.

In 1998, an initial survey conducted by Heinz asked consumers if they were aware of lycopene, and only 6.5 percent of participants responded positively. The latest 2003 survey results show that 37. 3 percent of people asked had heard of the antioxidant – a dramatic increase.

Results from Heinz's most recent survey further revealed interesting information about functional foods, namely tomatoes. Functional foods are foods which, in addition to their nutritional function, may enhance health or prevent illnesses. Five years ago, only 9..3 percent of respondents polled had heard of functional foods. During this survey, that number increased to 11.1 percent.

Not only is there a growth in public awareness, but emerging evidence also shows that lycopene may reduce the risk of certain diseases other than heart disease. For instance, lycopene may aid in the fight against macular degenerative disease (eyes), osteoporosis (bone), diabetes (pancreas) and cancer (lungs, breasts, ovaries, cervix, prostate, stomach/intestines, skin and bladder).

Research is ongoing, but the benefits of lycopene in tomatoes and other fruits and vegetables seem to increase with each new study. The biggest sources of lycopene in the North American diet are processes tomato products such as Heinz Tomato Ketchup, Classico Pasta Sauces, and tomato juice and sauce. The versatility and taste of these products allows for easy use and incorporation into any meal and diet. Absence may make the hearth grow fonder, but lycopene may make the heart grow stronger…and that is a reason to celebrate.

Heinz Ketchup Chicken Chili

1/2 lb. Skinless, boneless chicken breasts cut into 1-inch pieces
1/2 cup chopped green bell pepper
1 15 oz. Can kidney beans, drained

Walking for Fitness

Q. I'd like to start a walking program to help with weight maintenance and to have some fun. What do I need to get started, and how should I arrange my workouts to get the best benefits? — *T.L., Tucson, Ariz.

A. Walking is a great cardiovascular exercise that can be done almost anywhere. And while walking for your cardiovascular workouts may seem simple, there are several concerns you should take into consideration. The goal should be to achieve the best benefits of walking while keeping safe.

A great aid to help get you started is Nina Barough's thorough and educational "Walking For Fitness" (DK Publishing). This book covers all of the elements needed to make walking a beneficial cardiovascular exercise, such as stretching, strength training, nutrition, proper footwear and apparel, and foot care and safety.

A great resource in the back of the book is training programs for beginners, intermediate and advanced walkers. Whether you are walking just for fun or training for a specific distance, you will find guidance in this book.

Remember to discuss any nutritional or workout changes with your medical or fitness professional. There is no cookie-cutter method to exercise. Find the walking program that best fits your needs and is designed to reach your goals.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

BONDING WITH YOUR DENTIST

When teeth are chipped, discolored, or in need of reshaping, the dentist may elect to utilize tooth bonding to either restore them to their original beauty or correct their shape. This cosmetic technique involves the dentist using a composite resin to coat tooth surfaces and reshape them, much in the way that a sculptor might use sculpting clay. Bonding can be used to lighten stains by covering them, close minor gaps between teeth, and correct moderately misshapen teeth. Once the resin is applied to the tooth surface, it is hardened with a high-intensity light. Lastly, the dentist sculpts the hardened resin and polishes it. The resultant restoration matches surrounding teeth in terms of both color and form.

Let us determine if bonding is an option for you. Today's technology provides a variety of options to address oral health needs as well as cosmetic concerns. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we address your every dental need. Your smile is our business. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist.

Walk To Benefit ISS April 25

The 30th annual South Shore Walk to benefit Interfaith Social Services (ISS) will be held Sunday, April 25.

The 6.2 mile walk will help raise funds for social services provided by ISS in 10 South Shore towns including a food pantry, clothing program, financial assistance and counseling program.

The agency's programs assist people in Quincy, Cohasset, Braintree, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

The walk begins and ends at Old South Union Church on Columbia Street in South Weymouth. Registration starts at 12:30 p.m. and the walk kicks off at 1 p.m. The Beantown Trolley will be available for those not able to walk the entire route.

The walk is important to help ISS meet its financial goals. Money raised over the years through the walk has helped ISS provide much needed services throughout the South Shore.

For more information, contact the ISS office at 617-773-6203.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Thomas Jefferson once said: "When angry, count ten before you speak, if angry, a hundred."

Anger can be a helpful endowment if it is kept under control. Without it injustices in life would be allowed to pass by without either protest or understanding.

But anger can be tricky. It can easily get out of hand. . . When it becomes a burning rage, it becomes a distinct liability and can become troublesome and dangerous.

One cannot imagine life on this planet without fire. Yet fire, when it gets out of hand, is ravaging beyond description. Anger, like fire, can get out of hand and be ravaging, too.

A person who lets anger get out of control needs to call upon as many 'fire departments' he can to help him get the burning rage under control.

Anger properly controlled can be good, but anger, like fire, can destroy. Anger may be a necessary factor of life, but it performs only under strict control. Remember, anger is often more harmful than the injury that caused it!

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you tend to bore easily and leave others to finish what you start, this is one time when you'd be wise to complete things on your own. Then you can move on to something new.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your indecision about a personal situation might come out of those mixed signals you're getting. Best not to make any commitments until you have a better sense of how things are going.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A dispute appears to be getting out of hand. But you should be able to step in and bring it all under control soon. Be patient. News about a potential career move might be delayed.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Career obligations could interfere with important personal plans. But using a combination of common sense and compromise helps resolve the dilemma to everyone's satisfaction.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A stressful situation drains some of your energy reserves. But you soon bounce back in time to finish your tasks and enjoy a well-deserved weekend getaway.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to throw a party for friends and colleagues and surprise them with your dazzling domestic skills. You might also want to reconsider that career move you put on hold.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A sudden change of mind by someone you relied on could cause a delay in moving ahead with your plans. But those whom you've helped out before are prepared to return the favor.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You start the week feeling too shy to speak up in front of others. However, your self-assurance soon takes over, giving you the confidence you need to make yourself heard.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) One way to deal with a pesky personal dilemma this week is to meet it head-on. Insist on an explanation of why the situation reached this point and what can be done to change it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The creative Capricorn finds several outlets for her or his talents this week. Also note that while a romantic connection looks promising, remember to allow it to develop on its own.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You stand out this week as the best friend a friend can have. But be careful that you don't take too many bows, or you might see gratitude replaced with resentment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) What seems to be an ideal investment should be checked out thoroughly before you snap at the offer and find yourself hooked by an expensive scam.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your wisdom is matched by your generosity. You are a person who people know they can rely on.

Technology Improvements At Norfolk County Registry Of Deeds

Register William P. O'Donnell (D-Norwood) announces continued efforts to improve service and technology at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds.

"Modernizing computer systems and improved customer service have been priorities for the Registry of Deeds during the past two years," O'Donnell said, "and we have achieved successes that have made our agency both more efficient and user-friendly."

O'Donnell said the Registry has completed implementation of upgraded technology for document processing, record management, and public research access. Backlogs and waiting times have been significantly reduced.

The Registry has also added a customer service center, expanded real estate closing areas at the Registry, and adopted improved data security and disaster recovery plans.

Internet services have been greatly enhanced, O'Donnell said, with redesign of the Registry website, www.norfolkdeeds.org, and introduction of Internet accessible online land record and title research.

WILLIAM O'DONNELL

"Online research has proven a significant benefit," O'Donnell said, "reducing the need for customers to travel to the Registry and allowing them to obtain research information outside of regular business hours."

"We will continue to look for ways to improve the Registry," O'Donnell said, "and we welcome comments and suggestions from the public as part of this effort."

The Registry of Deeds is the principal office for real property records in Norfolk County. The Registry receives and records hundreds of thousands of documents each year and is a basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate and accessible land record information.

For further information regarding the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, call 781-461-6122 or visit the Registry website, www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Panera Bread Donates $1,600 To Special Olympics

Panera Bread bakery-cafe, 200 Hancock St., North Quincy, recently donated more than $1,600 to Special Olympics.

For the past 11 years, Panera has participated in Operation Dough-Nation, a program that ensures that every purchase at Panera Bread feeds back into the community. Operation Dough-Nation contributes to the local community in several ways.

All cash donations made in special containers near the registers are matched with freshly baked bread or cash for distribution to local charities, such as Special Olympics. At the end of the day, every local Panera Bread bakery-cafe delivers all unsold bread to local hunger relief agencies, including Special Olympics of Massachusetts.

"We are proud to share Panera warmth with members of our local community throughout the year," said Mike Hamra, Operating Partner for Panera Bread franchise, Boston Bread. "Bread is an important part of our culture - it brings people together - and Panera is dedicated to giving back to the people who have welcomed us into their neighborhoods and invited us to share in their lives."

Last year, Panera Bread bakery-cafes nationwide donated more than $12 million worth of bread products to non-profits served by Second Harvest, the nation's largest domestic hunger-relief organization.

Church Members Protest Against Same-Sex Marriages

prove to be in this country, destructive to the family unit and society as a whole," said Brondyke.

Joanne Trabbano of St. John's Church said that gay marriage was in line with the Bible.

"I think anytime you go against God, you're in trouble," said Trabbano.

Members of First Baptist Church in Braintree were also among the protesters. Debbie Killeffer of First Baptist said the protest against gay marriage was not a protest against homosexuals.

"I think this has unfortunately been portrayed as another opportunity for evangelical Christians to be perceived as gay bashers. This is not about gay bashing," said Killeffer.

The legislature voted last Thursday 129-69 for preliminary approval of an amendment to the state constitution to ban same-sex marriages and create civil unions.

But there was some switching among supporters and opponents on a later vote to move the proposed amendment to a final vote later this month. That vote was 121-77.

Water Pipeline Work To Begin Along Furnace Brook Parkway

As part of an ongoing program to rehabilitate water pipelines serving Quincy and Milton, the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) will begin work under the Furnace Brook Parkway this month.

MWRA's contractor will work underground from 10 access pit locations between Adams and Copeland St. until November.

The Furnace Brook Parkway work is the second phase of the multi-phased Southern Spine Water Supply Mains Project. This project is rehabilitating or replacing 12 miles of old and leaky pipes and associated valves in this area of the MWRA water system. Phase one is already underway in the Blue Hills Reservation. The Parkway contract covers a 4,500-foot stretch of 48-inch water pipeline that has experienced leaks over the last several years requiring short-term, emergency repairs.

The $2.73 million project will improve the pipeline's condition and carrying capacity and ensure that its service area continues to receive high quality water and adequate pressure for many decades to come. The pipeline cleaning and cement-lining rehabilitation method is less disruptive, faster and cheaper than a full pipeline replacement. It should extend the life of the pipeline for at least 50 years.

Work on the first phase of pipeline rehabilitation is also underway along the Parkway south between Willard St. and Bunker Hill Lane.

All traffic plans for the project have been approved by the state Department of Conservation & Recreation, which runs the Parkway, and the City of Quincy. There may be traffic detours or lane closures during construction. Police details and appropriate signage will be utilized.

Work at Adams St. will be take approximately six to eight weeks and must occur before any other work begins. There should be no need to detour traffic, but lane closures may be necessary at this location.

QHS Students Pledge To Help End Family Violence

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

As a teenager, Richard Cardinal had a choice to make: Plunge a knife into his abusive stepfather's chest or end the cycle of violence right there.

Fortunately, he chose the latter, and Cardinal is helping others in the same predicament at the Plymouth County Sheriff's offices.

Cardinal recalled the dreadful circumstances during Tuesday morning's White Ribbon ceremonies held at Quincy High School and sponsored by the Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence. As keynote speaker, Cardinal used his personal experiences as motivation for others struggling to end family violence.

In two separate ceremonies, a combined 200 Quincy High School students later stood up and took the White Ribbon pledge: "never to commit, condone, or remain silent about violence against women." Students, faculty and officials also signed a pledge sheet condemning violence.

The Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence is designed to empower men and women of all ages to come together to prevent family violence.

Quincy High School students Steve Ohlson and J.J. Niamkey made remarks supporting the cause and pledged to work with fellow students.

Honorary co-chairs Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating, Mayor William Phelan and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti attended the ceremonies and praised the work of all involved.

Keating said the pledge was largely symbolic, but it allows students to feel comfortable in reporting possible abuse or violence.

"Family violence is allowed to spread in the darkness," Keating told students. "The reason we are here is you. You are the most powerful entity, because you see it firsthand."

Bellotti said many inmates in the Norfolk County Sheriff's prison system are young men who did not seek help for [illegible]

Draft Proposal For Fire Study Criticized

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell's initial blueprint for a fire study is coming under sharp criticism from some city councillors and the firefighters' union.

O'Connell recently gave councillors a draft version of a request for proposals (RFP) to conduct a review of the fire department's long-term staffing, space and equipment needs.

The chief said the draft was merely a preliminary outline and could be used as a starting point for a final RFP.

Councillor John Keenan, who pushed for a fire study last year, said he is disappointed the chief's draft does not contain any reference to a five-member steering committee, a group created last year to guide planning of the fire study.

"The council has passed two resolves indicating the need for a steering committee, and despite that, the draft RFP does not call for the committee anywhere in the document," said Keenan. "Now we have a bond order calling for money to be spent on fire department stations and equipment, yet the fire study hasn't even begun yet to determine how to best spend our money."

Councillor Joseph Finn also criticized the administration for not bringing the steering committee into the fold.

"Apparently, the mayor does not want input from the city council, the community or the union," said Finn. "He is proceeding in a unilateral manner."

But Mayor William Phelan strongly disagreed, saying the chief is seeking input from all interested parties.

"The chief has asked for any and all input from the stakeholders and he will make any adjustments to the RFP that are requested," said Phelan. "So, yes, all stakeholders will have input for the final RFP."

O'Connell, who is on vacation this week, was unavailable for comment.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said the administration deliberately deleted all references to the steering committee, because a similar group appeared in the city's last RFP regarding a fire study. The chief said he used the city's last RFP as a guide for the new one.

"Clearly, the chief used the last RFP as a template, but there is no doubt in my mind that his revisions were influenced in great part by the administration's review of it," said Coughlin.

The steering committee includes the chief and representatives from the firefighters union, the mayor's office, the city council and a citizen representative. Last year, Coughlin was selected to represent the council on the committee.

Leaders state that support the council passed [illegible] extensive outlines for the final draft of the RFP to [illegible] approve. [illegible] steering committee. The [illegible] over eight months and [illegible]

Planned Computer, Video Game Store Raises Concerns

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A request for a license to open a computer business and video game store in Quincy Square was continued by the License board Tuesday because of concerns about the location.

Jia Zhen, introducing a new concept called Cyber Cafe proposed to open at the former Abigail's Crossing, 1352 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

He is proposing to install 15 computer stations, set up with one network. He said he will be allowed to filter any type of programs and control it from the main station that the young people are using.

Zhen said he will also sell and repair computers.

Capt. Robert Crowley, sitting in for Police Chief William Falco, had concerns about the area being a "hang-out" for kids and too close to the high school.

He said most persons have computers at home and said he feared that the young kids would play computer games, and added it was not a great area for kids.

Chairmen Joseph Shea asked Zhen if there were any other stores of that kind around. Zhen said there is one is Allston and one in Boston. Shea said he and the board need to take a look at an existing business and maybe determine if another location could be available.

Shea recalled that when his predecessor John Gillis was city clerk, there was an ordinance passed in Quincy that there could be no more than four video games in one establishment.

He said with many changes through the years, he wasn't sure if this business is under that category.

Zhen told the board at the onset of the hearing that the hours would be from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 2 a.m. on Fridays, 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturdays and 12 noon to 11 p.m. on Sundays.

However, Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business & Professional Association suggested that the site open after school hours at 2 p.m. and keep the hour of closing to 11 p.m. every night.

Zhen was born in China and has been in this country for the past six years. He said he graduated from college in China as computer major.

Although the business was his idea, he said his father Chen Zheng who owns a business in China is supporting the idea.

Patrons would pay $4 an hour for the use of a computer Zhen said. He added that if a person becomes a member, the fee would be $3 per hour.

The meeting was continued until April 6.

Quincy 2000 Director Speaker At Montclair/Wollaston Meeting

Dean Rizzo, Director of Quincy 2000 Collaborative, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Mont-clair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association Thursday, April 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room at Work Inc.

He will discuss the business/partnership meetings held with businesses in North Quincy, Wollaston, Squantum/Marina Bay and South/West areas. The goal is to form an affiliate in each area, which will establish programs and initiatives designed to strengthen the economic viability and vitality.

Quincy 2000 is a public private economic development organization, which encourages development through a variety of programs throughout the city. The collaborative encourages business to invest in the community through improving their business.

Phelan Urges Council To Reconsider Saville Hall Vote

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan is urging the city council to reconsider last week's vote and accept the Saville Hall deed without any conditions.

Phelan is refusing to sign city council legislation that would allow the college to continue a 50-year lease on Saville Hall. On a 6-3 vote last week, the council accepted the deed from the owners of Presidents Place while preserving the $20,000 annual rent from the college.

According to the deal, the college would also have to pay $567,000 in back taxes owned on the property.

Phelan said the council placed conditions on the acceptance of the deed and therefore rendered the order "illegal."

"It's an act contrary to law – it's not legally binding," he said. "I urge the council to conduct a special meeting and vote to accept the deed without attaching any conditions, thereby protecting the best interests of the taxpayers and ensuring that a $40 million project moves forward while putting hundreds of people to work."

The privately owned building was constructed by a developer in 1987 to compensate the college for land it lost when Presidents Place was built.

In exchange for approval to build a $40 million apartment complex at Presidents Place, the developer agreed in 2002 to transfer ownership of the building to the city.

For 17 years, the private owner has been leasing Saville Hall to Quincy College for $20,000 a year. The three-story building has been assessed at $2.5 million.

Phelan singled out those who voted against it.

"I commend Councillors Keenan, Gutro and Davis for putting the interests of the taxpayers first," he said.

Barbs, Jabs, But All In Fun

The menu, of course, was corned beef and cabbage but, as usual, there were plenty of political ribs and a little ham as side dishes at the Quincy Partnership's 8th annual St. Patrick's Day Celebration.

It was an afternoon of barbs, jabs and laughs for the near 300 who filled the Quincy Elks hall for the luncheon-roast co-emceed by City Clerk Joseph Shea and real estate developer-manager Dan Flynn.

FLYNN

SHEA

Hardly a political figure was spared as a target with Sheriff Mike Bellotti firing the big salvos, Mayor Bill Phelan getting in some good shots and Shea and Flynn slipping in a few of their own.

Flynn got things rolling, taking a supposed cell phone call: "Yes, that's good. Arthur's back stairs are done. Okay, now you can do Hancock Street and Southern Artery."

He introduced Phelan "as one of the few guys that still has a job at City Hall" in reference to some 40 employees who took early retirement and others Phelan has severed.

"I want to dispel a rumor," Flynn said. "It is absolutely untrue that the last time the mayor went through Logan Airport, he went through the Insecurity Checkpoint . . .

"Actually, the mayor is pretty well balanced. He has a chip on both shoulders."

Phelan took it in stride and did some scoring himself on the laugh-o-meter with the number 1710, the National Fire Protection Association's Standard 1710, the model for a City Council passed ordinance increasing the minimum manning of fire apparatus which Phelan opposes and insists the city can't afford.

PHELAN

"A lot of people have heard about No. 1710," Phelan said, "but don't understand what it really is, so here's the real truth about No. 1710:

"It is really the number of cars Dan Quirk has parked at the shipyard . . . times 10.

"Is not the year Leo Kelly was born but it is the year Frank McCauley graduated from high school.

"It is, I think, the average number of sick days taken by the firefighters each year.

"The number of children Dave McCarthy has adopted in the last two years.

"The number of votes Joe Finn got out of Father Bill's Place last year."

Phelan earlier seemed to be extending an olive branch to Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairwoman of the Quincy College Board of Governors, who in the rent dispute between the city and college called Phelan an "egomaniacal dictator who can't get enough power, the likes of which this city has never seen before."

LORD-PIATELLI

Both Phelan and Lord-Piatelli are lawyers and Phelan said they have decided that at the end of their public service they are going to practice law together.

"We are going to call our law firm Lord Phelan."

If that was any resemblance to an olive branch, Phelan later seemingly took it back during his No. 1710 routine.

"No. 1710," he said, "was the number of innocent chinchillas killed to make Terri Lord-Piatelli's fur coat she wore in the Christmas Parade."

Lord-Piatelli laughed it off and was asked to take a bow. But there were some in the audience who wished she had a turn at the mike.

Phelan held up a photo of Quincy College's Coddington Hall as the site of the new Quincy High School.

He also had a gift for the college — a children's board game called "Operation" to help revive the embattled surgical tech program.

Phelan got a gift, too. A firefighter's helmet from Local 792 with whom Phelan has been at odds for months. The helmet had a bull's eye in front.

Shea and Flynn held up one of Phelan's signs from last year's election campaign with his name in English and wording in Chinese aimed at the growing Asian vote.

They said they had checked with Jimmy Liang and Jonathan Yip and found out that the Chinese wording actually said: "House For Sale. Call My Brother Jed."

New Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis said there were a number of reasons to keep the St. Patrick's Day party in that ward where the Elks Lodge is located.

DAVIS

Among them: "You no longer have to give kickbacks to the Ward 4 councillor to get tickets for this party. Mooring fees won't be charged if you park your boat in the quarries. Where else can you pay $25,000 to join a public golf course?"

Joe Finn gave Kevin Coughlin a photo of an archway-like "Gateway of Shopping Carts" inspired by Coughlin's campaign against abandoned shopping carts.

FINN

Mike Bellotti who could make it as a stand-up comedian if he decides to turn in his badge, had 'em laughing with his "Good News, Bad News" routine, political quotes and headlines.

BELLOTTI

"The good news: The mayor is not angry with Theresa Lord-Piatelli comparing him with Saddam Hussein. The bad news: Saddam Hussein is p—— d.

"The good news: Tom Brady won the Super Bowl and can buy the largest condo in Marina Bay. The bad news: He can't afford the property taxes.

"The good news: Joe Finn is thinking of running for mayor. The bad news: There are no openings in the town of Bedrock.

"The good news: Danny Flynn has moved his office to the space above Alba's in a place he owns. The bad news: He's tried to evict himself three times."

Bellotti held up a Quincy College course catalogue with new offerings. And noted one course has been dropped: "Landlord Tenant Relations."

Bellotti said Bruce Ayers has been named a professor at the college and will teach a new course, "Getting to Maybe."

Dan Raymondi, he said, will teach a course called "The Illegitimate Mayor," and another, "Mussolini, Misunderstood." (Raymondi did not attend.)

Phelan, Bellotti said, will teach a course entitled "Anger Management."

And Richie Meade, Walter White and Jonathan Yip, he said, have a course they will teach together: "Changing Careers In Mid-Life."

Bellotti read a few quotes by various people in the newspapers and "explained" what they actually really meant.

What he said: Phelan, referring to Jim Sheets: "The mayor has overburdened the city with taxes. He has raised property taxes 17 percent in three years."

What he meant: "Vote for me and I'll do it in one year."

What he said: Walter Hannon, Jr. on the golf course: "This is a 100 percent public facility. This will be a working man's golf course."

What he meant: "You'll be seeing plenty of working men: mowing the fairways, cutting the greens and washing the dishes."

What he said: Dan Raymondi on not running for mayor: "It's a position that gives me a lot of personal satisfaction (his Ward 2 seat). I've improved the quality of life for many people across the city."

What he meant: "I've taken a poll and I can't win."

What she said: Terri Lord-Piatelli about Phelan: "He is an egomaniacal dictator and has an arrogance unparalleled by any public official I have ever seen."

What she meant: "The same."

Doug Gutro, Mayor Phelan, Jay Davis.

Name three candidates who ran unopposed in the last election. Gutro and Davis were unopposed. Phelan was an easy winner over Joe Newton.

Little Fenway, new Quincy High School, the Fire Department Study.

Three things you'll never see this year.

Shea and Flynn came up with a few tell-tale signs for city hall employees to know if their jobs are in jeopardy:

Tom Largey smiles at you.

Dave Murphy is pacing in front of your office.

Your backdoor key doesn't work.

Mike Morrissey has a senate citation ready.

It was all in fun (I think).

But on the serious side:

The event was dedicated in memory of Bill Flynn, Patriot Ledger city edition editor who died in January.

It raised approximately $3,000 which will go toward the $75,000 the Quincy Partnership has committed for its latest civic project: a large decorative granite fountain which will be a focal point in the restored Merrymount Park, and is scheduled to be dedicated in June.

And again, a tip of the hat to the Quincy Partnership for the civic and cultural projects it undertakes for the city:

Ed Keohane, chairman; Joyce Baker, Richard Barry, Mark Bertman, Bob Curry, Dan Flynn, Bob Galligan, Tom Galvin, Tom Koch, Mike McFarland, Jim Mullaney, Marianne Peak, Maureen Rogers, Joe Shea, Don Uvanitte and Sandra Williams.

A unique partnership.

Responds To Article On QMC Parking Garage

Regarding Quincy Sun article Thursday, March 11 "Conservation Commission To Inspect Site Proposed For QMC Parking Garage."

This article contained a number of inaccuracies.

It states that the Conservation Commission will be visiting the site to determine if it is wetlands. What they are truly doing is beginning the process to make a "determination of applicability" if all or any part of the Wetland Protection Acts apply to the site upon which QMC plans to build its parking garage.

The meeting was held to begin "determination of applicability" of the Wetland Protection Acts. This will determine whether the site, not the garage which hasn't even had its plans submitted yet, falls under the jurisdiction of the Conservation Commission.

Comments said to be made by me, are incorrect. I never said I had evidence of vernal pools, breeding grounds for fairy shrimp, mole salamanders and wood frogs. The group is still in a data collection stage.

The word evidence is used again. At this stage we are still gathering our data to determine what evidence we have. At the Conservation Commission meeting there was not hard evidence to share as that is what the commission suggested that we collect.

(Ed. Note: In a letter dated Feb. 22 to Edward Browne, Vice President General Services at Quincy Medical Center, Mr. Lorusso said: "It also appears that there are a number of intermittent streams on the property and that vernal pools exist there.")

It (the article) states Jocelyn Sydney has taken steps to begin certifying the vernal pools with National Heritage when in fact we have not made a concrete identification of vernal pools on the site and until we do certification cannot begin. What she did say was that if vernal pools are identified, certification with National Heritage would be a critical next step to getting the site designated as a resource area.

The wording makes it seem like the Conservation Commission made the determination that the Neighborhood Club land does not qualify as a wetland area when in reality this is in reference to a comment made by (Donald) Springhetti, an engineer working for QMC. This statement should have been qualified as such.

The article states Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro organized the association. That is incorrect. Doug Gutro played a part in initially bringing the neighbors together during a public meeting and a subsequent meeting where additional interested neighbors gathered to share their concerns. It was at this meeting the neighbors decided to form the Hospital Hill Neighborhoods Association. Councillor Gutro remained on neutral ground during this entire process and served as mediator between QMC and the neighbors.

Where Do Elected Officials Stand On Dog Banning Issue?

Several years ago, I attended a City Council meeting, the subject of which was banning dogs from parks in the city of Quincy. The meeting was packed with responsible dog owners who implored the councilors not to ban dogs, but to enforce the existing "pooper scooper" law. Nothing was done.

Years later, I have never heard of a single incident of an owner being fined for failing to pick up after their dog. Yet the papers are full of righteous indignation from city officials vowing that "laws will be strictly enforced to restore the quality and conditions of our parks." It's about time!

My family uses the parks and playing fields throughout the city on a daily basis. We are as disgusted as anyone at the amount of dog waste that fouls these areas. However, punishing law-abiding and tax-paying dog owners by not allowing us access to the parks is not the answer. Enforcing existing laws with accompanying heavy fines is the answer. Why not erect signs at parks advising residents that they must obey the waste pick-up law or be fined?

These signs should also include a telephone number that citizens could call to report those who violate the law. Most people who violate the law do so at the same time each day. With a telephone tip from a concerned citizen they could easily be fined the following day. This would not entail diverting police from stopping crime or paying park officials overtime to function as constables.

Our elected officials have remained silent on this issue. I challenge them to let us know how they stand. Let us open it up to a full discourse on how we can best clean our parks without punishing a large portion of the taxpayers. Once we know how our elected officials stand we can then vote for the individual who best represents our interests. That's how a democracy works!

Peace On Earth In Our Time

The war in Iraq, the execution of Saddam's two sons, the imprisonment of Saddam Hussein, and the imprisonment or execution of 55 of Saddam's closest associates created unexpected, multiple tragedies for us and our enemies in Iraq and beyond.

We can only speculate what would happen if Osama bin Laden is killed by us. It seems to me that before the whole world goes up in smoke, that President George W. Bush should engage the Dalai Lama, Senator Edward Kennedy, Senator George Mitchell and Reverend Louis Farrakhan in an effort to achieve "Peace on Earth in our time."

Michael Jovanovic

Lewis Named City Manager At $10,000

This Week
1956
48 Years Ago

The City Council elected Edward T. Lewis to the $10,000 a year post of city manager, replacing Donald H. Blatt who was leaving April 9 to accept a similar position in West Hartford, Conn.

The Council interviewed four candidates — Lewis, George W. Yarrington, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association; William H. Mitchell, an engineer; and William A. Gildea of Weymouth.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said the vote for Lewis was 6-0 with one councillor, Mrs. Edna B. Austin, vacationing in Florida at the time.

Lewis, 50, who held a city job since 1925, had been Blatt's administrative assistant at $5,600 a year. He was to serve as city manager until Jan. 1, 1958, when Plan A was due to replace Plan E.

COSTLY SNOW STORMS

Department of Public Works officials said that three snow storms in eight days had cost the city $175,000 in snow removal expenses, raising the total since the first of the year to $264,000.

The first storm on March 16 cost $42,000, the second $98,000 and the third on March 24 cost $35,000. It was believed to be the most costly series of snow storms in the city's history.

Mayor Della Chiesa said it would mean $1.64 on the tax rate.

BUSINESS UP

The U.S. Census of Business showed that retail sales in 863 Quincy stores were up 33 percent from 1948 to 1954 and store payrolls were up 28 percent over the same period.

"These increases are due fundamentally to our parking program," said William A. O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

QUINCY-ISMS

Edwin D. Crowley, vice president, said that a fare hike from 15 to 20 cents on the Eastern Mass Street Railway will not go into effect for several weeks . . . Det. Lt. Edward Riley and Det. ## Quincy Symphony Spring Concert April 2

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Yoichi Udagawa, will present the fourth concert of its 50th season on Friday, April 2 at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center of the North Quincy High School, 315 Hancock St.

The program will feature 14-year old Sebastian Baverstam, winner of the orchestra's Robert E. Brown Scholarship Competition for 2004. He will perform the Shostakovich Cello Concerto No. 1.

Baverstam is in the ninth grade. He is a student of Ronald Feldman, Andrew Pearce and Nancy Hair, and has also studied with Yeesun Kim, Andres Diaz and Debbie Thompson.

He began his cello studies when he was four, and gave his first solo recital at Harvard University's Dunster House at the age of six, performing Bach's First Cello Suite along with other works.

He won first place in the 2000-2001 and the 2002-2003 New England Conservatory Preparatory School Concerto Competitions. He was also a winner in the International Young Virtuosos Competition for 2001, the Brockton Symphony Concerto Competition , and the Newton Symphony Concerto Competition for 2003.

SEBASTIAN BAVERSTAM

He has soloed with several other orchestras and has appeared in "From the Top" on National Public Radio. He has composed for cello and piano, winning the New England Piano Teachers Association Original Composition Award in 1997, and performed in many other venues.

He has concertized extensively in the United States and Europe with his three siblings, Kristian, Madeleine and Oliver, and is mother, in a group known as the Baverstam Chamber Players.

The orchestra will also perform Mozart's Overture to The Impresario, and Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E minor (From the New World.)

Single tickets, available at the door, are $17 for adults, $12 for seniors and students, and $5 for children under 12 accompanied by an adult.

Following the concert, refreshments are served in the school cafeteria, sponsored by the Quincy Symphony Guild.

NQHS Sixth At Academic Decathlon Championship

North Quincy High School set a school record with a sixth-place finish at last Saturday's Massachusetts Academic Decathlon state championship at Walpole High School.

The championship consisted of 16 teams and 10 events, including essay writing, speech making, interview, economics, art, science, language and literature, mathematics, music and a Super Quiz on the Lewis and Clark Expedition.

Nine students represented North Quincy:

• Matt Palmer earned a bronze medal for his essay and an honorable mention ribbon for science.

• Sue Kim garnered a bronze medal for her interview.

• Lily Luo received the coaches medal for leading the team in overall points.

• Ray Cheng finished third in team points with strong performances in essay, math and art.

• Caitlin Saia contributed with excellent scores in interview and essay and led the team with her speech.

• Rita Wang earned especially high scores for her interview and speech.

• Peter Phan performed very well in the interview.

• Reza Salazar participated as an alternate and contributed to the team's performance.

Permit Granted For Paul Harold Road Race

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board granted a permit for the Paul Harold Memorial Road Race Sunday May 2 as part of the dedication for the new Quincy Center Concourse Bridge to honor him for his 30 years of public service to the citizens of Quincy.

The road race is appropriate because Paul ran and completed the Boston Marathon, as well as other road races and supported youth sports.

The bridge is being named in his honor through a home rule petition initiated by Mayor William Phelan and approved the city council and the state legislature.

The fund will help finance the continuation of causes that Harold undertook during his life such as the Quincy and North Quincy High School scholarships book awards to graduates planning to study American government, or public service sponsorship for Quincy youth hockey and soccer teams, and donations to promote teaching of the American Democratic system to emerging nations.

Michael Linnane, longtime key campaign supporter for Harold told the board that the 3.5 mile road race and 1.5 mile walk will begin at 11 a.m.

He said it will begin and end at the Concourse along the Parking Way, Granite, Adams Streets, Furnace Bk. Pkwy and back to Burgin Pkwy.

The course will include a scenic route passing many Historic landmarks in Quincy.

Free parking will be available at the Ross Parking Garage in Quincy Center.

Super Fitness of Quincy will provide use of their facilities, and will offer a free one-week membership to all registered runners.

A post race party for all runners will be hosted by the Outback Steakhouse and Pat Flannagans.

So, what have Massachusetts Masons been doing since dumping tea in Boston harbor in 1773?

Massachusetts was the birthplace of American Freemasonry in 1733 and, indeed, many famous Masons such as George Washington, John Hancock and Paul Revere built the foundation on which our great country stands today. But, is Freemasonry relevant today? Yes, more than ever before.

Masons operate the Shriners hospitals where seriously injured kids receive state-of-the-art medical treatment for free. Masons are the largest group of blood donors to the Massachusetts Red Cross. We have one of the finest elderly care facilities in the state. And we operate and fund the Masonic Child Identification Program in which more than 175,000 kids have already participated. Yes, Masons, especially here in Quincy keep very busy...and we have fun doing it.

Maybe your dad, your grand dad, an uncle or a neighbor is a Mason. Masonry invites men of good character from all walks of life, all levels of income, from every race, creed and culture to join in its good works. Through its traditions and teachings, Masonry endeavors to instill in its members the desire and means to improve themselves and the lives of others. Our initation ceremonies are serious with no hazing or horseplay.

With Masonic Lodges in almost every community and every country in the free world, you'll have friends wherever you go.

You can go on and become a 32° Mason, a member of the York Rite and a shriner, if you wish. You will have a wide choice of opportunities for community service, personal improvement, leadership, and the fellowship and friendship of Brothers who share your commitment and ideals.

Taxpayers Group Backs Phelan On College Rent Issues

Alan Cousin, president of QTA, said the group is endorsing Phelan's position on the matters involving Coddington and Saville halls.

"Even not-for-profit organizations are businesses," said Cousin, "and apart from being tax-exempt, they need to act and be treated like businesses. The city needs to be run like a business too – producing maximum value at minimum cost for its shareholders, the taxpayers. It's ridiculous for a college to rent space from the City of Quincy for less than market value. The difference is money that should be used to lessen the burdens on taxpayers."

Although the city council voted to accept the deed for Saville Hall in lieu of tax foreclosure, with $567,000 in back taxes to be paid by the college in exchange for continuing to pay $20,000 a year in rent, Cousin said the back taxes are a one-time payment and amount to only four tenths of one percent of this year's tax levy.

On the other hand, the $240,000 to $400,000 a year in rent the city could receive for Saville Hall at market rates could be used every year.

"Coddington Hall, likewise, has been rented for $200,000 a year less than its fair market value," said Cousin. "That has to stop. If only 10 to 20 percent of the college's students are from Quincy, the college is not benefiting the community enough to justify this kind of subsidy at taxpayers' expense."

Cousin said the city still needs to get a reduce spending to prevent this year's tax hikes from happening again.

Police Shut Down Massage Parlor As Prostitution Operation

A prostitution operation run from a massage parlor at 67 Coddington St. has been stopped after police discovered the racket during surveillance.

Police shut down Matrix Health Inc., which is located on the bottom floor of a professional building on the corner of Newcomb and Coddington Sts., across from Quincy High School and South Shore YMCA and on the same block as Bethany Congregational Church.

Police said the business advertised itself as Boston's "premier massage facility," but also solicited customers to pay for sex acts. The solicitations occurred for at least nine months, according to Quincy Police Detective Sgt. Patrick Glynn, whose drug unit led the probe.

The owner and a massage therapist face possible prostitution charges and the company's business permits have been pulled by city officials, said Glynn. In addition, the licenses for 15 massage therapists have been revoked, police said.

"It is highly unusual to have that many massage therapists working in an establishment," said Glynn.

According to police, investigators spent many hours watching employees and customers enter and leave the business, and undercover officers and informants confirmed that sex was being offered to customers for a prearranged price.

Glynn said the ultimate goal is to shut down Matrix Health Inc. permanently.

"It gives a legitimate business a bad name," said Glynn.

Three Ahern Brothers To Attend Memorial For Vietnam Combat Vets

The Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces, Quincy Chapter, will honor 47 Quincy men who lost their lives in the Vietnam War in a memorial service to be held Monday, March 29 at 3 p.m. at the Vietnam Veteran's Clock Tower, Marina Bay, Squantum, across from 500 Victory Rd.

"It is very important that we recognize these 47 young men who gave the ultimate sacrifice - their lives - in defense of their country," said Joseph H. Brooker, president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces, Quincy Chapter.

Three brothers who served with the Marine Corps in Vietnam - Mark, Taylor and Dana Ahern – are scheduled to attend this year's memorial service. They will pay tribute to 47 Quincy men, including their own brother Brian, who lost their lives during the Vietnam War.

At this year's event, two Quincy Vietnam veterans, Lawrence A. Connors, a Quincy Housing Authority employee, and John T. Joyce, former Quincy Postmaster, will read the names of the 47 deceased veterans of the Vietnam War.

Lt. Cpl. Brian Ahern was killed in action on Jan. 7, 1968 while serving with E Company, 2nd Battalion, 9th Marine Corps Division, in Vietnam. He attended St. Ann's School and was a 1966 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Ribs Served At Quincy Partnership St. Patrick's Day Celebration

A DOCTORED PHOTO of Mayor William Phelan, talking to Congressman William Delahunt on the phone with Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi beside him in bed was a highlight of a slide show put on by Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis. The scene was entitled "Strange Bedfellows."

THERE WERE SMILES all around as the barbs, jabs and jokes flew back and forth throughout the luncheon.

CO-EMCEE DAN FLYNN holds up photos of Jim Nabors as TV's Gomer Pyle and Senator John Kerry, noting how much they look alike.

School Committee Tells College To Vacate By End Of May

The school committee demanded that Quincy College move out of three city-owned buildings after the college missed a March 15 deadline on paying outstanding rent.

In a formal letter to Quincy College President Sean Barry, School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro ordered the college to vacate its primary classroom building, Coddington Hall, and two houses on Saville Ave.

The move is the latest development in a two-year rent dispute involving the school committee and college. The issue will likely move to a courtroom as eviction proceedings get underway. The letter will soon be followed by a filing at Quincy District Court requesting a hearing before a judge.

DeCristofaro set a May 31 deadline for the college to vacate the premises.

In 2002, the school committee voted to increase the college's rent from $217,000 annually to $450,000. Since then, the college has been paying the old rent.

After 18 months, the college owes more than $440,000 in back rent, according to the school department.

In a letter dated Feb. 12, DeCristofaro requested the college to pay the back rent and enter into a new lease with the rent increase intact. The college did not respond to the request.

Billiard Club License Suspension Lifted

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Because the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) said it believed that a three-day suspension imposed on the Renaissance Billiard Club, 1585 Hancock St. for after hours drinking, the License Board was "a little harsh" the board voted to lift the suspension and issued a written warning instead.

Atty. Louis Cassis, counsel for the club cited three similar violations that received verbal warnings and said he felt as though the board should have some sort of 'consistency or policy' when considering these kind of violations.

Police Chief William Falco said he agreed with Cassis that in the future some sort of policy should be adopted when dealing with these violations.

At first the board was planning a verbal warning, but Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said he thought a verbal warning was one in which a policeman who discovered after hours drinking (maybe a 10-15 minute infraction) could in fact give the owner a verbal warning.

He said however, if a written warning is issued and recorded and placed in a folder, then the next time, a more severe action would be taken.

Chairman Joseph Shea said when the board issued their decision to suspend back in February for the December, 2003 violation, the club appealed to the ABCC. He said the ABCC agreed with the board that the incident did occur. He said since he and the ABCC have an excellent "rapport" he agreed to change their earlier decision along with the board.

Legislation Would Prohibit Credit Scores In Determining Insurance Rates

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) announces it supports legislation filed on Beacon Hill that would prohibit the use of a consumer's numerical credit score or other credit rating systems as a determinant factor in setting rates for homeowners and renters insurance.

In recent testimony before the state Legislature's Joint Committee on Insurance, MAR officials urged passage of Senate Bill 2093, noting that continued use of credit scores to set insurance premiums could create a new barrier to homeownership for low-income, first-time homebuyers.

The MAR leadership challenged the notion that credit scores are a reliable measure of an individual's likelihood of filing an insurance claim. It argued that poor credit often results from financial hardships that occur following a divorce, job loss or medical emergency, not a predisposition to filing home repair claims or generally poor home maintenance.

In addition, Realtors cited a 2002 study by the Consumer Federation of America and National Credit Reporting Association, which found large discrepancies in the credit scores reported by the three major bureaus, as well as missing information in three-quarters of all consumers' files.

Homebuying Orientation Session April 12 At City Hall

Wasps Are Uninvited Guests

Q: With the weather improving, the wasps are back. They have started building a nest under the edge of my roof. Is there a permanent way to get rid of them? — *Tabitha J., Jacksonville, Fla.

A: While you can probably get rid of wasps this season, there's nothing available out there that is guaranteed to keep them away permanently. Unfortunately, you'll have to check the outside of your home on a regular basis for these pesky insects. They love to build their nests in partially shaded, protected and sturdy areas (anything resembling the crook of a tree limb attached to a trunk) near a source of water. So, the best you can do is to clear away the current nest and reduce the chances of their coming back.

Tackle this task as soon as a nest is discovered. Left too long, it will just get bigger, with more and more wasps in and around it. Wear protective clothing: long sleeves and pants, with the cuffs tucked into your socks. You probably don't need gloves and a beekeeper's hat if the nest is small, but be ready to run just in case.

A chemical spray that can shoot several feet is available at home improvement and gardening stores. This will kill most or all of the wasps in the nest. However, if you don't want to spray chemicals around your home, use the nonchemical method: a garden hose with a pressure nozzle attached. This option works only for small nests, as its chief result is destruction of the wasps' home, but not the wasps themselves.

If you're using chemicals, wait until just after sunset to spray. By this time most of the wasps will have returned to the nest. Send the kids and the neighbors inside and let loose. When finished, go inside and avoid the sprayed area until morning, when the nest should be safe to remove.

To prevent wasps or hornets from returning, get rid of any standing water around the house. Prune tree branches so that they don't touch the edges of the roof.

An important note on wasp and hornet nests: If they're located on a tree many yards from your house, and are out of reach of children, avoid destroying them. The displaced insects could move to the next best location: on or inside your house.

Painting Rooms With Light

(NAPS)—Imagine a window covering that could "paint" your rooms with light, a totally new window fashion — louvers that seem to float in front of your windows, combining the architectural statement of a shutter, the softness, durability and convenience of a shade and the variable light control of a blind.

A company that, ever since inventing the first lightweight aluminum blind in the 1940s, has been innovating new ways to cover windows did imagine such a product, and applied its know-how to producing it. The window covering, from Hunter Douglas, consists of soft, elliptically shaped fabric louvers with a pivoting headrail that is part shutter, part shade, part blind and all about the art of controlling light.

The extra-wide 2 3/4" louvers soften and diffuse light with their elliptical, cellular shape. They also control it by rotating 180 degrees from fully opened or fully closed — and anywhere in between — in either direction. What's more, the louvers raise and lower like a shade and appear to float at the window because there are only two front support cords.

Alouette Light Louvers offer an exclusive Pivotal Operating System so the color-coordinated headrail and bottom rail — which are also elliptical in shape — pivot with the louvers, virtually disappearing into them for integrated form and function.

A myriad of fabric options make Alouette Light Louvers go well with any décor, from traditional to contemporary. The translucent Clair and room-darkening Clair de Lune (considered ideal for bedrooms and media rooms) come in 50 fashionable color and pattern combinations. Fabric options include: a solid print, a traditional linen weave and a print with the look of hand-sponging. There's even a choice in how they are operated: tilt bar, lift tab or tilt shuttle, depending on preference or window type or location.

Due to its unique lightweight fabric construction, the product is available in widths up to 84" and lengths up to a generous 120". The cellular construction insulates against summer heat and winter cold because air is trapped in the louvers. It also protects against 99 percent of UV rays when closed.

Although the window treatment looks light and delicate, the non-woven fabric and carefree, bounce-back features mean it's durable and easy to maintain. The louvers can be easily cleaned with a feather duster, low-suction vacuuming or compressed air. Spot cleaning is also easy using a damp, soft cloth.

Did You Know?

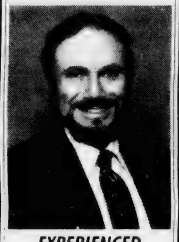
The American Dream of homeownership is being realized at a fantastic rate these days.



Almost 70 percent of Americans are homeowners. One reason may be the popularity of the fixed-rate mortgage compared to adjustable rate mortgages.

Recently, low interest rates have also lured consumers. The generally longer term of the fixed-rate mortgage enables a lower monthly payment, which facilitates lower payments-to-income ratios and therefore, higher levels of housing affordability among moderate and low income buyers, found a new study by the Lusk Center for Real Estate.

Broad Meadows Wins First Championship

BOYS' VOLLEYBALL

The Broad Meadows Middle School boys' volleyball team recently completed a perfect season by defeating Atlantic for its first ever volleyball championship.

Broad Meadows' success was attributable to its serving prowess and its ability to remain calm in pressure situations.

In the deciding game of the championship match, co-captain Brendan Paine aced eight serves in a row to rally the team to victory. Brendan and his brother, co-captain Andrew, led the team all season long.

It was not always easy for Broad Meadows, however. It suffered through an 0-5 campaign the previous season. That team returned again this year but with some added firepower.

A total of 15 boys turned out for the team; each member played an important role. Sixth-graders Justin Nguyen, Ennis Llagami, Jeffrey Dorceley, Yassir Mahmoud and John Correia had great first seasons and head coach Pat O'Brien said he's excited to have them all back again next year.

Seventh-graders Kevin Keefe and Kenny Dorceley turned in fine seasons as well.

The team was led by its strong eighth-grade class. O'Brien said Nick Masoni's skill could carry the team in a close game; Bill Berberan developed into a strong server; Mortada Najem, a two year starter, could play any position well; David Richards and Anthony Acito were key contributors in the playoffs; Fan Li was the most improved of all; and Rasheem Marshall was the spirit of the team.

Another reason for the team's turnaround this season was the addition of Kim Lebel. A sophomore on the Quincy High School girls' volleyball team and former Broad Meadows graduate, she volunteered her time to help coach the squad. O'Brien said her expertise and natural coaching ability were instrumental to the team's improvement.

Boating Safety Course At Houghs Neck Maritime Center

The Quincy Police Marine Unit, in partnership with the Massachusetts Environmental Police, will hold a basic boating public safety course April 10, 17 and 24.

Scheduled for three consecutive Saturdays, the course will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave., next to the Quincy Yacht Club.

An additional course will be held May 1, 8, 15.

The course is designed for citizens of all ages. All members of the boating public are welcomed to attend, regardless of boating skills. The course is provided at no charge to the public.

Completion of the course by youthful boaters between the ages of 12-16 allows them to legally operate a motor boat without adult supervision. All members of the public who successfully complete the course will be issued a Massachusetts Environmental Police Basic Boating Safety Certificate.

For course information or to register, contact the Massachusetts Environmental Police Department Boat & Recreational Vehicle Safety Bureau, 1019 Route 132, Hyannis, MA 02601, at 617-727-8760 or 508-790-9360.

North Quincy Women's Athletic Hall Of Fame Induction Sunday

Kate Mihevc Running In Marathon

Kate Mihevc of Quincy will run in the San Diego Marathon June 6 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's Team in Training.

The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society is a national voluntary health agency dedicated to curing leukemia, Hodgkin's disease and myeloma to improve the quality of life for the patients and their families. Last year the Massachusetts chapter raised nearly $3 million.

It's estimated that leukemia and its related cancers will strike over 100,000 Americans this year alone.

"I have always raised money myself, but now I am running for someone else," Mihevc said. "My brother, Luke, is a leukemia survivor. If it weren't for all the research previously done he may not have survived. Needless to say, this organization holds a special place in my heart. This is my opportunity to give back to those who helped my family and continue to help those in need."

Mihevc needs to raise $3,800 for the society by May. Those who would like to donate can send checks, payable to The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, to: Kate Mihevc, 55 Pleasant St., Quincy 02169.

Squantum Youth Baseball, Softball Registration Saturday

Registration for Squantum youth baseball, softball and T-ball will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon at the Squantum Community Center, corner of Standish Road and Huckins Avenue.

A $10 late fee will be charged for sign-ups after April 1. Space is limited.

Fees are: baseball and softball, $50 per child and $25 for each additional family member; T-ball, $40 per child and $15 for each additional family member.

Registration fee covers the cost of bats, balls, T-shirts and equipment and also pays for the field day events and presentation of trophies after the all-star games.

Baseball is a competitive learning league for players who are 8 to 12 years old on Jan. 1, 2004. Softball is a competitive learning league for players who are in grades 3 through 8 on Jan. 1, 2004. T-ball is for children who are 6 to 8 years old on Jan. 1, 2004.

Walk Your Way To Better Health

(NAPS) — The road to good health may start with a single step. If you are restless, bored, unhappy, overweight or stressed out, walking can be a great remedy, a new book reveals.

Small Steps—Big Rewards (Small Steps Press, $19.95) provides all the information you need to start a "walking for health" program. Health and government agencies recommend that Americans set a goal of walking 10,000 steps a day for better health. To meet this requirement, the book comes with a Bodytronics ProStep pedometer with complete instructions to count your daily steps. You'll also learn:

• How walking can help those with diabetes: Researchers at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control & Prevention report people with diabetes who walked at least two hours per week decrease their overall mortality risk by 39 percent. Other studies prove that regular physical activities can help people with diabetes avoid or delay the development of heart disease, stroke, kidney disease, nerve damage and vision loss.

• How walking can make anyone more fit: Being thin doesn't automatically make a person fit. Overweight people who walk are healthier than thin people who are inactive.

• How to get motivated to walk: The book features tips on making walking a family or social event; there are contacts for organizations that promote challenging group walking activities such as Volksmarching, letter boxing and water aerobics.

Weightlifting Belts

Q. For years I have worn a weightlifting belt to support my back while exercising. Am I doing more harm than good? — C.C., *Asbury Park, N.J.

A. The use of weightlifting belts has been widespread for many years. Unfortunately, many users fail to understand the purpose these weight belts serve and in what situations they should be used.

When the core muscles of the trunk are activated through exercise, especially the transverse abdominis (abdominal muscles that run horizontally around your trunk), pressure is created throughout the intra abdominal wall. This pressure maintains the stability and cohesiveness of the spine, thorax, pelvis and abdominals, in addition to developing tension within the fascia of the trunk. The activation of these core muscles creates an internal weight belt of sorts.

I strongly recommend implementing a comprehensive core stability (abdominal and back) and flexibility routine into your current exercise program to strengthen your natural weight belt.

The use of an external weight belt while exercising to help support a weakness of the abdominal muscles or lower back could make your condition worse. Teaching those muscles to rely on the support of the weight belt instead of on the strength of your muscle stabilizers would be working in the wrong direction.

The weightlifting belt was not designed to correct inadequate musculature, but rather to aid the stabilizers already in place while performing powerlifting exercises. The extreme loads that power lifters use warrant the use of a weight belt as an additional support, not a crutch.

Re-evaluate your fitness goals and decide whether using a weight belt is for you. If you decide to discontinue using a weight belt, do it slowly. Your core muscles will need to learn how to support your exercise routine without the weight belt. This may require you to initially lower the intensity of the exercises so as not to cause injury.

And remember, it's always best to consult a medical or fitness professional for proper exercise technique and program information.

Hearing Aid Tips

By STEPHEN TOBIAS

How does the consumer know the difference between digital aids?

First of all, a "digital" should be "computer adjustable" by the specialist. Some low priced digitals are not adjustable.

The higher priced digital aids also have more "bells and whistles" such as 8-14 individual frequency bands for more precise matching to your audiogram. These digitals may also contain the following: low battery warning tone, multiple programs for different listening situations, adaptive feedback manager (to reduce whistling), smart start auto delay, fast processors (16 bit) and adjustable beep tones.

If you want the smarter more expensive digitals, they should have most of these features.

Not everyone needs or can afford the most expensive digitals; there are in-between products for hundreds less. Know what your getting for your money and make sure you're happy with it or go back to your specialist for adjustments.

You can also save yourself a lot of money by having your aid checked by a professional. My son and I build and repair them right here in Quincy. We carry a 60-day trial period.

DANGERS OF SMOKELESS TOBACCO

An estimated 16% of U.S. high school boys in grades 9 through 12 use smokeless tobacco, with rates as high as 35% in some western states. Far from a safe alternative to cigarettes, smokeless tobacco (chewing or spit tobacco) can lead to oral cancer and gum disease. Despite these risks, a recent survey indicates that three out of four tobacco users in the U.S. have never been screened for oral, head, and neck cancer. Oral, head, and neck cancers are disfiguring diseases that kill about 12,000 people in this country each year. When oral, head, and neck cancers are caught early, however, patients have a good chance for survival and a decent quality of life after treatment.

Have you ever been examined for oral cancer? Your optimum health is always our main concern. We stress preventive health care for the whole family. We want you and all the members of your family to know that our primary responsibility to you is the condition and health of your teeth and mouth. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. According to the American Cancer Society, more than 60,000 Americans will be diagnosed with oral, head, and neck cancers this year.

'Come To The Table' Easter Concert April 4

The Houghs Neck Congregational Church Choir will present "Come to the Table," an Easter communion concert, on Palm Sunday, April 4, at 3 p.m. at the church, 310 Manet Ave.

The concert is free. All are welcome to attend.

"'Come to the Table' tells the story of Holy Week through song and narration, recounting how the fellowship of the Last Supper prepared the disciples for the events of Christ's passion," said Choir Director Lois Zulauf.

Accompanying the choir will be the Chapel Chimes handbell chorus from Randolph.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church is handicapped accessible. For more information, call (617) 479-8778.

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Rev. Dr. Max Olmstead, interim minister, will preach the sermon "Pressing on" at the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

Worship will focus on Paul's encouragement to the church in Phillipi "to strive on in Christ."

Children's Sunday School will begin at 9:30 a.m. Teacher Priscilla Last will present the lesson on "Stories to Remember." A mini-Bible verse will be chosen, breakfast snacks with prayer follows, and special songs enjoyed.

Fellowship over coffee and baked goods follows the service.

Boston Home Seeks Volunteers

The Boston Home, corner of Dorchester Ave. and Gallivan Boulevard, is seeking volunteers to help the residents of the long-term care facility for adults with physical disabilities, primarily multiple sclerosis and related neurological diseases.

For more information, contact Sally Gorman, volunteer coordinator, at (617) 825-3905.

Bethany Congregational

The Rev. William Harding will conduct the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

His sermon title is "Anointed the Feet." There will also be a moment with the children of the Church School before they go to their classrooms.

Scripture reader will be Carolyn Leuchte. Music will feature the Chancel Choir directed by Tom Boyer, organist.

Childcare will be provided for infants and toddlers.

Following the worship service a Fellowship period hosted by Mildred Rickson and Jean Baker will be held in Allen Parlor. Light refreshments will be available.

A mid-week Lenten service will be held in Bethany Chapel Wednesday at 7 a.m. A light breakfast will follow.

An Interfaith Model Seder service will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church. For reservations contact Jaclyn Gronbach at 617-773-5482.

Bethany Church hosts a worship service at the Eventide Home on Adams St. Tuesday, March 30 at 10:30 a.m.

United Methodist

The Rev. Carol Stine will conduct the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Her sermon topic will be "At the Table with Jesus."

Paul Nogueira will serve as liturgist.

The Pastor's Adult Bible Class will be held at 9 a.m. and Sunday School at 10:45 a.m.

Coffee hour will be hosted by Liz Bucella, Nancy Ahonen and Ann Pierce.

Wollaston Congregational

The Rev. Mary Lou Gifford, pastor, will preach the sermon "Water in the Wilderness, Rivers in the Desert" at the 10 a.m.worship service Sunday at Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave.

Quincy Point Congregational

The Sacrament of Baptism will be observed at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The Rev. Ann Suzedell's sermon will be "Friends of Jesus."

Deacon of the Day will be Brian Burgess. Sue Egan will be the Lay Reader, and Laura Del Monte will serve as Acolyte. Greeters will be Dick and Jane Raymond.

Music will be offered by the Chancel Choir under the director of Paul A. Thistle.

Ushers and tellers will host the coffee hour following the morning service. All are invited to attend.

Also on Sunday, a luncheon and orientation for prospective new church members will be held.

If you cannot attend the luncheon, but would like more information about joining the church office, contact Rev. Ann Suzedell or Deanna VanSchagen through the Church Office, 617-773-6424.

An Interfaith Model Seder will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Social Hall of Quincy Point Congregational Church.

The sponsoring faith communities include the Quincy Jewish Committee, First Baptist Church of Wollaston, Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Houghs Neck Congregational Church, Quincy Islamic Center, Sacred Heart Catholic Church, St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Wollaston Congregational Church, Wollaston Lutheran Church and Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Michael J. Kelly, 55

General Counsel For Medical Board

MICHAEL J. KELLY

Michael J. Kelly, 55, a lifelong Quincy resident, general counsel for the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine, died March 15 after a long battle with pancreatic cancer.

Because he wanted his life to be celebrated and not grieved, a reception celebrating his life will be held today (Thursday) from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Road.

Mr. Kelly most recently worked as general counsel for the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine.

He began his career in private practice in 1975. In the early 1980s he served as executive secretary and associate complaint counsel for the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine.

He was the director of government relations and associate counsel for the Massachusetts Medical Society.

From 1997 to 2000, he was a partner in Hinkley, Allen & Snyder, and Hinkley, Allen & Tringale Health Strategies, and Hinkley Allen Policy Management.

Known as an innovator in the field of patient and medical safety, Mr. Kelly was a founding member of the Massachusetts Coalition for Prevention of Medical Error and a founding director of the Professional Liability Foundation.

He invented the Mandated Reporting Systems in Healthcare. He drafted the statutory language for the Physician Profiling Initiative and drafted the Medical Malpractice Reform Package. He helped develop peer review, allowing physicians to review each other's medical cases with confidentiality.

He was a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association and the American Health Lawyers Association.

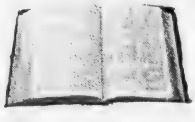
A talented athlete, Mr. Kelly lettered in track and soccer at North Quincy High School. He attended Brandeis University on an athletic scholarship and graduated from Boston University Law School.

He was a Quincy Youth Soccer coach in the late 1980s and coached the boys' junior varsity soccer team at Archbishop Williams in the fall of 2001.

A master at Trivial Pursuit, he captained the North Quincy High School graduates' team in the annual family Thanksgiving Day challenge.

He is survived by his wife, Rita Seegraber of Quincy; a son, Michael J. Kelly of Quincy; his mother, Dorothea (Rose) Kelly of Quincy; a brother, Thomas F. Kelly of California; two sisters, Dorothea Hupprich of Walpole and Joan M. Kelly of Quincy; and five nieces and four nephews.

He was the son of the late Michael J. Kelly.



Arrangements were by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to American Cancer Society, 25 Stuart St., 4th Floor, Boston 02116-4700; or to Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Drive, Box 9060, Braintree 02184.

Grandma loved classic poetry, traveling, and Grandpa.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special. Whether it's reading classic poetry or compiling a memory board of her favorite travel photos, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever noticed those persons who think twice before making a promise can usually be counted on to keep the promise? Careless promises should never be given – or counted upon. A promise that can cause discomfort, harm or injustice to yourself – or to others – should never be made, no matter how much prodding or persuasion is involved.

It is usually very easy to make a promise. . . Expediency or change of mind is seldom a justified excuse for breaking a promise. A promise involves honor, duty and ethics. . . The best promise you can make – is a promise to yourself. . . Promise yourself you will never make a promise to anyone, unless you are fully prepared and able to keep your promise . . . In addition to spiritual benefit, it is a good way to gain honor, stature, praise and prestige among men. . .

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You'll want to discourage well-meaning but potentially ill-advised interference in what you intend to accomplish. Your work has a better chance to succeed if it reflects you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's well-deserved reputation for loyalty could be tested if you learn that it might be misplaced. But don't rely on rumors. Check the stories out before you decided to act.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You've been going on adrenaline for a long time, and this unexpected lull in a recent spate of excitement could be just what you need to restore your energy levels. Enjoy it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Friends can be counted on to help you deal with a perplexing personal situation. But remember to keep your circle of advisers limited only to those you're sure you can trust.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Security-loving Lions do not appreciate uncertainty in any form. But sometimes changing situations can reveal hidden stresses in time to repair a relationship before it's too late.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time for single Virgos to make a love connection. Be careful not to be too judgmental about your new "prospect" — at least until you know more about her or him.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your sense of justice helps you resolve a problem that might have been unfairly attributed to the wrong person. Spend the weekend doing some long-neglected chores.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might feel justified in your anger toward someone you suspect betrayed your trust. But it could help if you take the time to check if your suspicions have substance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Ignore distractions if you hope to accomplish your goal by the deadline you agreed to. Keep the finish line in sight, and you should be able to cross it with time to spare.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your creative self continues to dominate through much of the week. Also, despite a few problems that have cropped up, that recent romantic connection seems to be thriving.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) As curious as you might be, it's best to avoid trying to learn a colleague's secret. That sort of knowledge could drag you into a difficult workplace situation at some point down the line.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Instead of spending too much time floundering around wondering if you can meet your deadline, you need to spend more time actually working toward reaching it.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a natural gift for attracting new friends, who are drawn to your unabashed love of what life should be all about.

Norfolk Division
Docket No. 04E0013-PP1

To Ellen Salvati of Farmington in the State of New Hampshire, Donna Collins of Hanover in the County of Plymouth, Mary Jones of Sedona in the State of Arizona, David Salvati of Braintree in said County, Diana Salvati of Bridgewater in the County of Plymouth, Richard Salvati of Hanover in the County of Plymouth, Francis Salvati of Quincy in said County, John Salvati of Brockton in the County of Plymouth, respondents; and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Nello Salvati of Quincy in the County of Norfolk representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Quincy, being Lot numbered 12 on a "Plan of buildings lots in Quincy, Massachusetts, belonging to Caroline F. Newcomb" made by J.E. Starbuck, Surveyor, and revised by E.C. Hultman, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book of Plans No. 23, Plan No. 1014. Containing 7, 439 square feet of land more or less. See Norfolk Deeds Book 1708, Page 547 setting forth that he desires that - all - of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than one hundred forty-five thousand ($145,000.00) dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Norfolk Probate Court, 35 Shawmut Road, Canton, MA 02021 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the twenty-eighth day of April 2004, the return day of this citation.

Witness, DAVID H. KOPELMAN, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this fourth day of March, 2004.

Citizens Bank Donates $5,000 To Quincy Community Action

Citizens Bank executives recently stopped by Quincy Community Action Programs' (QCAP's) Southwest Community Center to visit Cynthia Smellie, a Citizens employee who is serving at QCAP for three months through a paid sabbatical program from Citizens.

During their site visit, Heather Campion, group executive vice president of Citizens Financial Group, and Julie Connelly, senior vice president of Community Reinvestment for Citizens Bank of Massachusetts, presented QCAP with a surprise $5,000 check from the bank.

QCAP provides a variety of support services – from food and clothing to energy assistance – to local low-income individuals.

Free Landlord Workshop

Landlords can learn the skills they need to be successful landlords at a free workshop sponsored by Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., on Tuesday, April 27 from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the 4th floor conference room of 1509 Hancock St.

Registration is required. Contact Amy Szeto at 617-479-8181, ext. 119 for more information.

Draft Proposal For Fire Study Criticized

to address O'Connell's initial draft at its April 12 meeting.

In addition, the chief includes several points about drug testing of firefighters - areas that should be hammered out at the collective bargaining table, said Coughlin.

Keenan said he didn't see a problem with a study of drug testing of the fire department, because the results of the study are not binding. "Clearly, that is an issue that has to be collectively bargained," said Keenan.

Tom Bowes, president of the Quincy firefighters' union, said the membership is "extremely disappointed" with the chief's initial blueprint.

"The membership is extremely disappointed," said Bowes. "They think it's just a tool for the mayor to cut services and personnel and do whatever he wants. I respect the chief, he's a talented man - but he works for the mayor."

Bowes said he does not think the mayor will convene the steering committee to guide the fire study.

"No matter what happens, the final call is made by the chief and the mayor, and our input means nothing," said Bowes. "The study should be based on the needs of the city."

Deadline For Christmas Parade Theme Contest Entries April 9

The deadline for the general public to submit entries for the 52nd Christmas Parade Theme contest is April 9.

Each year at this time the Quincy Festival Committee asks for public input in selecting an appropriate theme for the annual Quincy Christmas parade held traditionally on the last Sunday in November.

Choosing a winning theme is the first major step in planning floats and other participating units. A special meeting of the Festival Committee members will be held after the deadline to select a winning entry.

The theme contest is open to everyone. Mail entries to:

Mrs. Frances Flynn
79 Freeman St.
Quincy, MA 02170

A winner will be chosen from the entries received. The person submitting the winning entry will be invited to ride in the parade. A special gift will also be given the winner at the awards ceremony following the parade at North Quincy High School.

Other special Christmas events include, turning on the Christmas lights, Santa's arrival with four elves by parachute, elementary school poster contest, Nativity Pageant, and the parade which attracts up to 225,000 to Quincy each year.

MAJOR DOUG JONES, commanding officer at the Quincy Temple Corp of the Salvation Army on Baxter St., recently received news that the Quincy branch was bequeathed $2.5 million from Lily I. Jutila, a Quincy resident who passed away on Nov. 1, 2002. Jones said the funds would go toward expanding programs for the elderly, as well as help to repair the Quincy building.

Quincy Woman Leaves $2.5 Million To Salvation Army

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Shocked. Thrilled. Blessed.

Major Doug Jones was all this and more after receiving news that the Salvation Army was the recipient of a $2.5 million donation from a deceased Quincy resident.

As commanding officer of the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corp, Jones recently learned that Lily I. Jutila bequeathed in her will the equivalent of $2.5 million to the Salvation Army. Jones was informed by the Boston Divisional Headquarters that the Quincy Temple Corps would be the recipient of the large sum. The Salvation Army is given approximately 3,500 shares of Berkshire Hathaway stock. It may not seem like much, but the stock currently sells for $91,000 per share. Jutila had no known heirs, according to Jones.

"I was shocked, but also very grateful," said Jones. "In some respects I'm still in a state of shock. This is the largest sum I've ever had the privilege of receiving since I've been serving in the Salvation Army - 28 years."

Jones said he did not know Jutila when she was alive, but said he senses what was in her heart.

"Obviously, she understood that the Salvation Army meets the needs of people in everyday life, and this gift will help to do that," said Jones. "She knew what we were doing."

Jutila passed away on Nov. 1, 2002 at the age of 82, and bequeathed one third of her estate in trust to the Salvation Army. Another third was given to the Dana Faber Cancer Institute and the rest was donated to Suomi College in Michigan for the education of students of Finnish descent.

According to Leif Thornton, a Squantum resident and friend for more than 30 years, Jutila was a very private person who held the Salvation Army in high regard.

"I suspect someone in her family was quite involved with the Salvation Army," said Thornton. "Her parents and her husband's parents were Finnish and they felt the Salvation Army was very important."

In 1985, Jutila received half of her husband's estate, which included the Berkshire Hathaway shares. Berkshire Hathaway is one of the world's largest insurance and holding companies.

Quincy College Staying In City Under New Pact

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city council Monday night voted to accept the Saville Hall deed in lieu of foreclosure without conditions, paving the way for a negotiated agreement that ends a two-year rent dispute between the city and Quincy College and ensures the college's presence in Quincy for the long term.

On an 8-0 vote, the city council reversed itself on Saville Hall, allowing a $3 million accord between the city and college to move forward. The agreement, hammered out by Mayor William Phelan's office and college officials, ends a two-year rent dispute between the city and Quincy College, resolves a number of issues involving Saville Hall and the two houses and solidifies the college's presence in the city for many years to come. Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro was out of town on business and unable to attend Monday night's meeting. He sent a letter to the council supporting the pact.

The city now accepts the Saville Hall deed from the owners of Presidents Place, who will move ahead on a $40 million apartment complex at Presidents Place. The developer agreed to transfer ownership of Saville Hall to the city [illegible] which includes 200 residential units and 20 affordable

Highlights of The $3M Agreement Between The City, Quincy College

The city receives:

- $1.13 million for the Saville Hall building
- $567,000 in back taxes owed on Saville Hall
- $300,000 for design costs of the next phase of the Quincy Center Concourse
- $200,000 for city services over the past two fiscal years
- $466,000 in back rent for Coddington Hall and two houses on Saville Ave. and $450,000 in rent for fiscal 2004 and 2005.
- Two slots on the board that names the college's board of governors

The college gets:

- Legislation allowing college to buy, sell or lease real estate
- End of eviction proceedings
- Deeds to two houses on Saville Ave. if the land isn't needed for the new high school
- Legislation to define the financial relationship between the college and city
- Guarantees the college will continue using Saville Hall.
- New procedures for city and college to deal with each other

Taxpayers' Association Offers Changes To Proposed CFO Ordinance

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association (QTA) is offering an amendment to Mayor William Phelan's proposed ordinance creating a chief financial officer position for the city.

The amendment calls for the CFO to be nominated by the mayor and approved by a two-thirds vote of the city council, with a three-year contract. It also outlines [illegible] for the post. [illegible] Phelan's original [illegible] nance does not spell out qualifications and made the position "unclassified," meaning mayoral appointees [illegible] to Alex Cossetta, QTA president.

In a letter to the city council, Cossetta said the proposed amendment [illegible] election on Mayor Phelan [illegible]

Board Continues Hearing On Noise Complaints At Distributing Firm

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday, voted to continue the hearing regarding noise complaints at Interstate Distributors, 199 Cdr. Shea Blvd. with a hope of more input and a decision from the City Solicitor.

Those affected by the noise primarily are residents of Louisburg Square.

The hearing will be held April 27.

Although Peter Eleey, counsel for Interstate and Tim O'Sullivan, general manager of Interstate told the board that the morning schedule of trucks delivering magazines had been changed from 3:30 a.m. to 7 a.m. two abutters said they hadn't changed.

One Louisburg Square resident, Bruce Mesches said the noise had not changed and that just Tuesday morning he heard the delivery trucks between 3:40 and 4 a.m.

Kathleen Mesches asked if a permit was ever issued to Interstate allowing early deliveries.

Chairman Joseph Shea said back in 1993 the City of Quincy took Interstate Distributors to court over the noise complaints. No decision was rendered because the ordnance was not applicable to all night businesses.

Shea also said that when Interstate began their business that Louisburg Square and other housing complexes in the area were not built as yet. Shea said "they came after the business had started."..

Eleey said that comparing the delivery of magazines to trucks delivering lumber or wallpaper is a "stretch" and that the distribution of news magazines is "time sensitive " and is not the same as the delivery of lumber or wallpaper.

Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner said she had hoped for a decision from the city solicitor regarding the ordnance, but hadn't rendered a final decision.

She said she hoped Interstate will act in good faith and be a "good neighbor."

Shea said that he would "do anything to work this out: and said the city solicitor has to" go through lots of material" since :the issue dates back several years.

O'Sullivan said they had changed the time of deliveries from 3:30 a.m. to 7 a.m. He added that on Saturdays there would no longer be deliveries made on the North side of the building. And that the time of Saturday deliveries would be later in the day. He promised and that trucks would stop idling for such long periods, and that the gates would be locked on the North side so that trucks could not enter.

S. Quincy Restaurant Basile To Open

A member of the well-known catering family of Frank Basile will open a breakfast and lunch restaurant at the former Angela's 144-146 Franklin St.

The License Board Tuesday granted a common victualer license to John Basile, the son of Frank Basile.

The restaurant will be called Basile's, and will feature breakfast and lunch from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. every day except Mondays.

Basile said he will have some limited take outs, but will concentrate on the basic breakfast and lunch.

He said there would be some cleaning up before opening.

Quincy Business Council Meeting April 8

Accrediting Agency Praises College Over Response To Surgical Tech Issues

The New England Association of Schools & Colleges Commission on Institutions of Higher Education is commending Quincy College officials for their efforts in addressing problems with the school's surgical technology program.

In a letter addressed to College President Sean Barry, the commission, which is the accrediting agency for the school's surgical technology program, praised the college for its response to the problems and for its steadfast efforts to resolve them.

"The Commission notes with favor the aggressive steps taken by Quincy College to investigate and resolve the problems identified in its surgical technology program," stated Terrence J. MacTaggart, commission chairman. "We commend the college for the candor of its response and for the resoluteness of efforts to correct identified problems. The situation with regard to the program was serious indeed, placing in question the integrity not only of the program but of the institution."

Quincy College decided to suspend the surgical technology program after several students complained that they graduated from the course without proper clinical training.

Attorney George Burke, hired by the college to investigate the allegations, found serious lapses in the program and laid the blame entirely at the feet of Faith Tucker, the course coordinator at the time.

Burke's report and the students' complaints were submitted to the state Board of Higher Education, which continues to review the matter.

Barry recommended that the college hire a new dean to oversee all of the college's allied health programs.

In addition, some 50 students currently enrolled in the program will have the option of graduating this year or withdraw from the course and receive a full refund, he said.

The course costs $8,800 and teaches students to become hospital "scrubs."

"Obviously, we are very pleased that the commission has recognized the aggressive efforts by the college and President Barry to address the issues regarding the surgical technology program," said Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairwoman of the college board of governors.

"But the fact remains that no matter how hard we try, nothing is perfect when human beings are involved. So there were flaws in the program, but the fact of the matter is, how someone responds to the issues speaks more to the substance of the issue rather than the fact there were problems at all."

The commission has asked the college to submit a report by Oct. 15, 2004 outlining its progress in a number of areas:

- Assuring that past graduates have sufficient clinical experience in keeping with program requirements;
- Taking steps to ensure the program has suitable leadership, qualified clinical faculty, and taking steps to ensure the program has suitable leadership and is designed, organized and managed in a manner in keeping with the standards for accreditation;
- Having in place effective mechanism for academic oversight at the institutional level.

The Unenrolled Voters

Every year when it gets around to election time I start feeling a little like a second-class citizen.

Or, maybe it's more like an orphan.

I probably shouldn't. But I do.

And I'm sure — well, pretty sure — there are many of you out there that get that same feeling.

I mean those of you who, like me, are designated as unenrolled voters.

Unenrolled. Makes you feel like you're not even registered as a voter.

I liked it a lot better when we were known as independents even with a small "i." It had a nice ring to it.

As independents, we considered ourselves truly independent, voting for the candidates — male or female — not necessarily for a political party.

We voted for Democrats and Republicans but not because they were Democrats or Republicans. But because of where they stood on the issues.

Then along came Ross Perot running for President in 1992 who put a capital "I" on independent as in the Independent Party.

And we independents wound up on voter registration lists as "unenrolled." That was a let-down.

Perot didn't go very far in that election other than helping Bill Clinton oust the first George Bush from the White House by taking votes away from the latter. (Total vote: Clinton: 44,908,254. Bush: 39,102,343. Perot: 19,741,065.)

Asked to check the figures, City Clerk Joseph Shea, keeper of voter registration, says currently there are 69 registered Independent Party members in Quincy.

SHEA

Compared to 21,291 registered under unenrolled. (There are 24,463 Democrats and 6,505 Republicans.)

There are three other parties with more Quincy members than the Independent Party: Libertarian, 297; Green-Rainbow, 88; and Inter 3rd Party, 75.

The unenrolled have been creeping up on the Democrats in recent years. They now trail by only 2,841 in number.

I'm not picking on the Independent Party. But I wish they had taken a different name.

And we unenrolled would still be known as independents as we really are.

Why couldn't the state have used the word enrolled instead of unenrolled?

After all we are enrolled as voters.

Maybe we unenrolled should unite and go for enrolled.

A FEW COLUMNS back we were wondering if local Republicans might come out of what we called political hibernation and challenge Democrats for local state offices.

Republicans have been letting Democratic incumbents run virtually unchallenged for re-election.

Well, it looks like there will be at least two local Republican challengers this year.

Steven Leahy of Billings Rd., North Quincy, has taken out nomination papers to challenge Democratic incumbent Bruce Ayers for Quincy's First Norfolk District state representative seat.

Leahy, who is listed at City Hall as a student, is the second Quincy Republican to take out papers, and apparently making his first run for elective office.

The first, as noted here earlier, was John Rodophele of Grenwold Rd., who has papers out for the Second Norfolk District seat long held by Steve Tobin. Rodophele was an unsuccessful candidate for school committee last year.

The other two local state offices have been long held by Democrats: Senator Michael Morrissey and Rep. Ron Mariano in the Third Norfolk District.

Years ago things were the other way around with Republicans holding all the city, county and local state offices.

Democrats were so scarce back in the 1920s, 1930s, 1940s, the political joke was that they could hold their rallies in a telephone booth.

But times have changed. Democrats are as strongly in command as Republicans were back then.

The only Quincy Republican in elective office right now is former mayor Frank McCauley who is now city council president. And he has said this will be his last city council term, closing out a 33-year political career. Odds are his seat will be taken by a Democrat.

McCAULEY

For Republicans to win, they have got to woo that unenrolled vote.

And that's just what Plymouth Republican Michael Jones hopes to do as he challenges Congressman William Delahunt of Quincy in the 10th Congressional District.

Jones says he plans to open a satellite campaign headquarters in Quincy where he concedes he can't beat Delahunt but where he wants and needs to pull a good vote.

It's not easy being a Republican and running for office in Quincy.

Scenes From Yesterday

Building the Battleship Vermont at Quincy Point, Mass.

THIS IS A 1908 POSTCARD view of the battleship USS Vermont in its final stages of construction at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point. The Vermont was the third modern battleship built at the yard. The first two were the USS New Jersey and the USS Rhode Island. Among the largest and most heavily armed ships in the world at that time, these three ships along with 13 other US battleships were painted white and dispatched by President Theodore Roosevelt on a globe-circling missing, "The Great White Fleet" as it was known, had two objectives: to show goodwill to our country's friends and allies, and to display our vast naval might to potential enemies, particularly Japan. After traveling 46,000 miles, this Quincy-built ship returned home after 18 months at sea. She was sold for scrap in 1923. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Houghs Neck, Squantum Hit By Gale Force Winds

This Week
1958
46 Years Ago

High seas, raised by gale force winds, isolated large areas of homes in Houghs Neck and Squantum and caused an estimated $500,000 damage on the South Shore, largely in Quincy and Hull.

Tides three feet above normal put the Squantum Causeway under one foot of water and homes in the Rhoda and Rockland streets section of Houghs Neck were flooded. Winds were clocked at 53 mph at the Blue Hill Observatory.

Fire Chief Thomas E. Gorman ordered a ladder truck from the Atlantic station to standby duty in Squantum and assisted extra men to the Houghs Neck station which was all but inaccessible from the outside.

'ILLEGAL' SIGNS HELP

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa reported the new "walk" and "don't walk" signs put up in Quincy Square have been very effective in reducing automobile-pedestrian accidents. Unfortunately, he said, the signs are illegal.

Della Chiesa, who is also a state representative from Quincy, spoke in support of a bill that would legalize the signs before the Legislative Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles.

Allow Us To Live Free And Equally

I was present at the State House on March 11 and witnessed the bigotry and hatred directed against me merely because I am gay (e.g. one sign said "Homos God Abhors You").

The brutal and horrific killing of Matthew Shepard in Laramie, Wy., in 1998 merely because he was gay should have illustrated to us that homophobia and discrimination against gays is not a thing of the past. Hatred and intolerance are alive and well in 2004.

Being gay is not a "lifestyle choice that is equivalent to choosing pants or a skirt" as Representative Shirley Owens-Hicks asserted. I believe I was born gay and I am offended by comments like those made by Ms. Owens-Hicks. I think most straight people would agree that there was not a day in their life that all of a sudden they chose to be attracted to members of the opposite sex. On the contrary, puberty kicked in and hormones prevailed.

I have heard much said that the people need to vote. However, voting on human rights has not been acceptable in the past and should not be acceptable now. In his first inaugural address on March 3, 1801, Thomas Jefferson recognized the great power and legitimacy of the people's right to vote but cautioned against using this power to inflict tyranny.

"All, too, will bear in mind this sacred principle, that though the will of the majority is in all cases to prevail, that will to be rightful must be reasonable; that the minority possess their equal rights, which equal law must protect, and to violate would be oppression. Let us, then, fellow-citizens, unite with one heart and one mind. Let us restore to social intercourse that harmony and affection without which liberty and even life itself are but dreary things. And let us reflect that, having banished from our land that religious intolerance under which mankind so long bled and suffered, we have yet gained little if we countenance a political intolerance as despotic, as wicked, and capable of as bitter and bloody persecutions."

Furthermore, in that address, Mr. Jefferson also asserts that equal rights are due for people who may be a different persuasion or religion than you.

"Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none."

In Mr. Jefferson's second inaugural address, given on March 4, 1805, he rightly affirms that religion and civic government must not be intermingled and that the freedom of religion exercises must be maintained.

"In matters of religion I have considered that its free exercise is placed by the Constitution independent of the powers of the General Government."

Living in Quincy, Mass., I could not write this without quoting John Quincy Adams from his inaugural address given on March 3, 1825. Mr. Adams referred to the Constitution and our duty to protect and defend it when he said, "We now receive it as a precious inheritance from those to whom we are indebted for its establishment, doubly bound by the examples which they have left us and by the blessings which we have enjoyed as the fruits of their labors to transmit the same (the Constitution) unimpaired to the succeeding generation."

Please, whether your accept gays or not, allow us to live free and equally.

He Doesn't Live In The Neighborhood, We Do

After reading the article on the North Quincy cinema project being put on hold (after receiving an unfavorable reception), I must take issue with some of Mr. Dickinson's comments.

I was not only present, but also quite verbal (and polite). Perhaps, Mr. Dickinson, the residents became "raucous" because the proposed 12-theater plan became a 16-theater plan.

Or maybe learning that land would be taken from the fire station and North Quincy to alleviate the daily traffic jams in that area (a good thing) only to add more congestion and drivers to an already saturated area (a bad thing).

Or maybe because (and in a condescending manner) you wafted with much of your information — a lot of "maybe's," "I think's," "could be's" — about the restaurant or hotel or, as many of us have heard, possibly dorms for UMass.

Or maybe it was how you stressed the fact that this project would enhance the neighborhood, even luring us with the promise of an upscale restaurant much like Applebee's. Upscale? I think not. Sorry Applebee's. Our neighborhood has been developed (enhanced) enough.

If there are 13,000 people in our ward and most of the people that you polled were in favor of this project, I can guarantee, Mr. Dickinson, that they do not live in the six-block area of the MBTA station. Yes, they'd enjoy the theaters, restaurants, etc. but they will also then be able to go back to their quiet own areas of Ward 6.

Originally the intent was to build office space, but Mr. Dickinson admitted at this meeting that it would not have been lucrative, and that this project was much more profitable for him as a businessman. And that's understandable for him. But he does not live in this neighborhood — we do.

QPS Robotics Team Champs

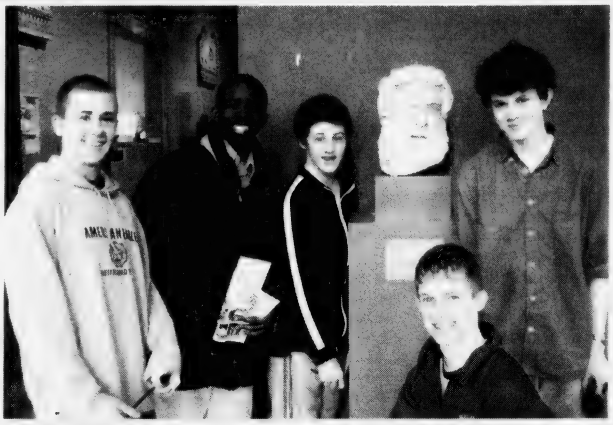
The Quincy Public Schools robotics team took top honors among a field of 51 teams during the New England FIRST Competition in Manchester, New Hampshire.



Team HYPER (Helping Youth Pursue Engineering and Robotics) completed the preliminary seeding rounds undefeated, they allied with West High School from Manchester and Windsor Locks High from Windsor Locks, Conn. to form an unbeatable combination. They dominated all corner, and emerged from the final elimination rounds as a champion.

The robot was also awarded the "driving tomorrow's technology" award for its unique design, which incorporates an expanding wheel base.

The competition is run by FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) and caps a six-week design and build period, during which teams create a remotely controlled robotic device which plays a game involving two different size balls, various goals, a platform, steps and a ten-foot high chin bar.

Quincy's team consists of students and teachers from both high schools and is sponsored by the Gillette Company. Engineers from Gillette have been working with and guiding the students in the robots design. This is the third time in their seven-year history that the team has been able to capture first place and become regional champions.

The team is in Los Angeles this week to compete in the West Coast regional competition. Students collected bottles and cans, as well as sell candy to pay for the west coast trip.

Patrick Collins On Scavenger Hunt At MFA

Patrick T. Collins of Quincy, a sophomore at Boston College High School, recently went on an interactive learning project at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston to help his teacher, Emil Penarubia of the Latin and Greek Department.

Penarubia presented a teachers' workshop, called The Ancient Olympics, at the Classical Association of New England's conference at The Brooks School in Andover recently.

In preparation for this, he took Collins and four other students to the MFA to see the Greek Art Exhibit. They went on a scavenger hunt for depictions of athletes on the vases on display. When the students returned to class, they presented their findings in small groups to their classmates.

In 2003, Penarubia gave part of a teachers' workshop at the Boston MFA called Reviving Excellence: Olympics at the MFA. This was in anticipation of the MFA exhibit, which will be opening this summer, called: The Ancient Athlete, celebrating the return of the Olympic games to Athens, Greece.

Boston College High School is a Jesuit, Catholic, college-preparatory school for young men founded in 1863. The school enrolls approximately 1300 students from some 80 communities in eastern Massachusetts.

Chris Campbell, Jake Tawakoli Earn Rank Of Eagle Scout

Boy Scouts of America's Troop 20 recently bestowed the rank of Eagle Scout to Christopher Campbell and Jake Tawakoli.

For the past seven years, Campbell and Tawakoli have been earning the various merit badges and skill awards in addition to performing the requisite troop service as they climbed through the ranks.

They've developed a healthy respect for the environment as they explored the New England country side and camp grounds.

Campbell, a senior at North Quincy High School, is looking forward to attending college in the fall and his interests include music, mathematics and business.

Tawakoli, a senior at Quincy High School, plans to pursue an environmental related degree as he begins college this fall.

Troop 20 Scout Master Ken Belovaric closely monitored their hard work and development. He has led Troop 20 for the past eight years and is assisted by his wife, Marilyn, Bill Farrell and Jon Melick. Under this leadership and tutelage, the young men of Troop 20 are ahead of the bell curve by having 22 percent of their members earn the rank of Eagle Scout.

BSA Troop 20 is sponsored by St. Ann Parish, 757 Hancock St., and conducts weekly meetings at the Scally Center off of St. Ann's Road.

Boy Scouts of America was incorporated to provide a program for community organizations that offers effective character, citizenship, and personal fitness training for youth.

House Overrides Romney Veto On Delayed Medicaid Estate Recovery Expansion

The Massachusetts House recently overrode Gov. Mitt Romney's veto to delay the controversial estate recovery expansion, which makes it easier for the state to recover the cost of medical care by putting a lien on the homes of seniors.

Quincy's three states representatives, Bruce Ayers, Ron Mariano and Stephen Tobin, supported the override. The final vote was 154-0. A two-thirds majority of both houses is necessary in order to override a veto. The measure now goes to the Senate.

The real estate recovery expansion, passed in last year's budget, allows the Division of Medical Assistance (DMA) to recover the cost of medical care from the estates of deceased MassHealth members beyond the probate estate to non-probate assets, which generally include property owned as joint tenants or tenancy by the entirety, or property in which the member held a life estate. The new regulations applied retroactively to the estates of persons who passed away after July 1, 2003.

"Although the Commonwealth is operating under a strained budget forecast, this is not the time for Massachusetts to depend on revenue generated from the private estates of seniors and the disabled," said Ayers. "This provision is controversial and needs time to be examined."

Tobin agreed, saying, "Changes to estate recovery and eligibility are highly sensitive and complex matters that have raised many concerns among citizens and legislators. Citizens of the Commonwealth deserve a proper examination of the impact this provision will have on seniors and the disabled and a fair and equitable solution to protect their independence."

In November, the Legislature voted to delay implementation of the provision until July 2, 2004. This delay allowed time for membership to better examine the new provision and how it would impact seniors and the disabled. Romney, facing tight budget constraints, vetoed the delay, making this provision law. The provision is expected to generate $8 million in revenue.

Mariano urged the Senate to follow the House vote.

"The development of this provision and the pace at which it became law demonstrates the need to delay its implementation," said Mariano.

What goes on inside the Quincy Masonic Building? Who are the Masons? What do they do?

The imposing Indiana limestone building at 1170 Hancock Street, has been a familiar landmark and the home of Quincy's Masonic community since it was dedicated in 1927.

To most people the Masonic fraternity is a mystery, and that's largely our own fault because, over the years, we have chosen to let our good works speak for themselves. But too many folks still believe that Freemasonry is a secret organization.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Yes we have some secret handshakes but, if we were truly a secret society, we would not have our familiar square and compasses emblem over the door and our members probably wouldn't wear lapel pins and rings. We're proud of who we are and what we do as Masons.

Masons have been helping to make Quincy a better community since the formation of Rural Lodge in 1801. And many of the things we do might surprise you.

Certainly you're familiar with the Shriners Burns Hospital in Boston. Every child receives treatment absolutely free. The hospital has no billing department. But, did you know that every Shriner first belongs to a Masonic Lodge?

Masons seek men of good character, who believe in God, to join in our good works. But, Masonry is not a religion. We are the world's oldest and largest fraternity of men based on a foundation of brotherly love, relief and truth. In fact, we like to say that Freemasonry makes good men better!

In future issues of this newspaper we'll be telling you more about the Masons of Quincy, what we do and how you can become a part of our good works while sharing fellowship and having fun. Yes, fun!

Masonry offers you the opportunity to improve your community and to improve yourself. For more information without any obligation, call the number below.

Openings Available At St. Ann School

St. Ann School in Wollaston announces there are still a few openings available in several grades for the 2004-2005 school year.

St. Ann School recently hosted an open house and has begun processing applications for next year as part of its annual enrollment.

Sister Catherine Lee, Principal of St. Ann School, said, "We are very proud of the strong and diverse student body that makes up our school. We would be happy to speak to any parents who may be considering a private school alternative for their child in any grade this fall."

St. Ann School is a primary and middle school for grades pre-kindergarten through grade 8. All of the kindergarten classes at St. Ann's are full-day and there is an on-site afterschool program available.

Theresa King, director of the Afterschool Program at St. Ann's, said, "There are many families who take advantage of the afterschool program at St. Ann's. Parents have a lot of peace of mind knowing their children don't have to travel anywhere after school.

"And for the older kids – it is a great chance for them to get their homework started – so there is less to do when they get home," King added.

St. Ann School offers a full academic program including computer classes beginning in kindergarten as well as music, art and physical education and many extracurricular activities.

"St. Ann School has had an excellent year with an impressive number of our eighth grade students being accepted into their first choice of private high schools, including B.C. High, Xaverian Brothers, Fontbonne Academy, and Notre Dame Academy," Sister Catherine Lee said.

Interested persons are encouraged to contact Sister Catherine at 617-471-9071 to inquire about available openings.

St. Ann School is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

housing units.

Calling it "very good news for the city" and "a good deal for the taxpayers of the City of Quincy," Mayor Phelan outlined the terms of the city/college agreement to the city council.

"The agreement ensures that the college will have a place in the downtown area for many years to come," he told the council.

During his presentation, Phelan thanked members of his staff, members of the school committee and Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, who also sits on the college board of governors.

Phelan said he and Raymondi "have always been respectful of each other's views and have always been advocates for the City of Quincy."

Under the terms of the agreement, the college will not face eviction from its primary classroom, Coddington Hall, and the city will receive approximately $466,000 in back rent it has demanded.

The agreement extends beyond the rent dispute to encompass the fate of Saville Hall, which was pushed to the forefront recently after the city council voted to accept the deed to the building with conditions.

The tentative pact, which requires the mayor's final approval, gives the city more than $3 million over the next year and a half.

Quincy College is technically a city department but is run by an independent board of governors. It is the only municipally owned community college in Massachusetts.

As part of the agreement, Phelan and college officials would lobby for passage of a home rule petition that would allow the college to own, lease, buy or sell real estate, and allow the mayor to appoint two members to the college Governors' Appointing Council, which chooses members for the board of governors.

Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairwoman of the college board of governors, said the home rule peitition allowing the college to own, lease, buy or sell real estate will be very important to the college's future.

"The home rule petition to be drafted will result in the autonomy, stability and security for the college for the long term," said Lord-Piatelli. "These are fundamental principles of self-determination. The college will have the opportunity, in many respects, to determine its own destiny."

The legislation would also define the manner in which fees for services provided by the city to the college are calculated and outline other procedural aspects of the financial relationship between the city and college.

In exchange for occupancy and/or ownership of Saville Hall, the college pays:

- $567,000 in unpaid real estate taxes on Saville Hall by June 30, 2004;
- $300,000 for the design of the second phase of the Concourse road improvement project, by June 30, 2004;
- $1.13 million for the Saville Hall building.

In total, the city will receive approximately $2 million from Saville Hall, which is assessed at that approximate value.

In addition, the college will pay the city:

- $200,000 by June 30, 2004 for city services used in fiscal years 2003 and 2004;

Phelan said the agreement does not specifically address the issue of the college's pension costs. Both parties will address the matter at a later date, he said.

With regard to Coddington Hall and the two Saville houses, the college has agreed to pay the city $233,000 for fiscal 2003. In addition, the college has agreed to pay the city $450,000 in fiscal 2004 and 2005 for rent to occupy the three buildings until June 30, 2005. This puts the rent issue to rest for the immediate future. The two sides would have to negotiate a new deal on Coddington Hall beyond 2005.

If the city determines that the Saville Houses will not be needed in connection with the new Quincy High School/Central Middle School project, then it will transfer ownership or long term 99-year lease to the college without additional consideration no later than June 30, 2005, according to the pact.

At Monday night's meeting, Phelan proposed putting the $1.13 million from the college toward the city's excess tax levy, reducing the amount of taxes paid by residents by that much for fiscal 2005.

"The taxpayers of the City of Quincy will get what they rightfully deserve," said Phelan.

The agreement came to fruition after a week of tough negotiations between the mayor and college officials and effectively ends one of the most contentious issues to hit the city in recent years.

Political rivals Phelan and Raymondi initiated talks that led to the tentative agreement. The mayor's office met with college officials last week to lay the foundation for the eventual deal.

The college board of governors approved the plan on March 22, and the school committee followed suit two days later during a closed session meeting.

"This is one of the most significant events" in the college's history, said Raymondi. "It's a tremendous achievement. We can determine our own destiny, in that sense."

Although calling the agreement a "good, positive step," Councillor John Keenan expressed concerns with portions of the pact.

"I do think it's a step in the right direction," said Keenan. "But I don't think there has been any great gain for the taxpayers over the past two weeks," he said, referring to the council's vote two weeks ago. In its current form, the agreement shortshrifts taxpayers in the long term, he said. He added that he would not support the home rule petition in its present form.

Keenan also asked the mayor to reconsider his proposal to place $1.13 into the tax levy, saying it would burden taxpayers the following year when the funds are used up.

"It creates a structural deficit the next year," said Keenan.

All councillors praised both sides for putting together the agreement in such a short period of time. Some suggested that the council's vote two weeks ago proved to be the catalyst for broader agreement.

Councillor Joe Finn praised Phelan for "crafting a dilemma into a win-win situation."

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis said, "I look at this as a victory, because we were able to resolve a number of issues. I'm delighted an agreement has been reached."

Council President Frank McCauley said the big winners are the students, "both the present students and future." "We should have clear sailing from now on."

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said, "This pact was completed in 24 hours, and it shows that the bickering and name-calling were not necessary," said Kelly. "People were tired of the bickering that was not productive or good government."

Jews, Muslims, Christians Take Part In First Interfaith Model Seder

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

The sharing started Saturday night in the kitchen at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

As they peeled 10 pounds of potatoes, chopped seven pounds of apples and danced to the tunes of the Beach Boys, the motley cast of cooks preparing the dinner for the interfaith seder started talking. They chatting about their different traditions, explained what they do in their [illegible] and some even told [illegible] personal account [illegible] they felt they were [illegible] Egypt.

[illegible] Ellen Hart [illegible] Quincy [illegible] Co-Chairs of the [illegible] Committee [illegible] of sharing [illegible] David Ezickson, president of the Quincy Jewish Committee, made up mind when he came up with the idea several months ago to hold an interfaith model seder. His idea came to him [illegible] and afternoon at the restaurant at Quincy Point Congregational Church, [illegible] over 120 Muslims, Jews and Christians gathered to partake in Quincy's first interfaith model seder.

"Share, share, share," said Ezickson. "Those who live together should eat together, should play together. This is how you make this whole neighborhood a richer place to live."

Ruth Ezickson, David's wife and Quincy Jewish Committee member, led the participants in the two-hour model seder, a shortened version of the traditional seder, which lasts several hours over the first two days of Passover. The seder, which in Hebrew means "order," celebrates the story of the exodus of Jews from Egypt when they were freed from slavery.

A seder consists of several components that must be observed in order. Participants read along in a haggadah, a booklet that outlines the seder. Ruth Ezickson explained each component of the seder in English, then read each prayer in Hebrew. The participants then repeated the prayers in English.

In the middle of each table sat a seder plate. Divided into six sections, it consists of foods that are meant to symbolize different parts of the Jews' struggle. It includes: the bone of a lamb or chicken (z'roah) to represent oppression; greens (karpas) to represent spring; bitter herbs (maror) to represent the bitterness of slavery; lettuce (khazeret), which starts out sweet but if left in the ground too long becomes bitter, as those under slavery do; and a hard boiled egg (baytzah) to represent the hardened resolve of oppressed people for freedom. In the center is a course mixture of nuts, apples and cinnamon to represent the bricks used by the slaves.

"If the kids want to know, yes, you have to try everything," said Ruth Ezickson, evoking laughter from the crowd.

After lighting the candles, blessing the wine and washing her hands, she instructed the participants to dip the greens in salt water. This, she said, reminds one of the tears shed by the slaves in Egypt. She then told them to break the matzah, unleavened bread, on their table in half.

Kerry and Brianne Phelan, who attended the seder with Mayor William Phelan, their father, read four questions about the foods of the seder. Ruth Ezickson explained that the unleavened bread was eaten because the slaves, as they fled from Egypt, had no time to let the bread rise.

Four boys from Houghs Neck Congregational Church read the story of the exodus.

Ruth Ezickson then instructed each participant to dip a finger in a glass of wine and sprinkle a drop on his plate 10 times, for each of the 10 plagues that the Bible says God brought upon the Egyptians to free the Jews.

She invited Iman Talal Eid of the New England Islamic Center to read to the participants the meaning of foods on the seder plate.

His wife then told participants to place the bitter herbs on the matzah to make a Hillel sandwich. The participants obeyed, albeit with scrunched faces.

As dinner — kosher Hillel beef, green beans and potatoes — was served, a once-quiet room filled with the din of conversation. Participants talked to one another about themselves and learned about different traditions.

"I came here to learn," said Mayor Phelan, "to celebrate (Quincy's) diversity." Such diversity was reflected in the crowd.

Talal Eid, who came to the seder with his wife, Hend, and two sons, Yusuf and Safwan, said he thought it was important for people of different faiths to find ways to learn about each other. He said the Koran, the Muslim holy book, addressed this.

"People should build bridges of understanding, not bridges of quarrel," said Talal Eid.

Syed Nuruzzaman, also a member of the Islamic Center, said, "I think all religions have some similarities."

Talal Eid added, "We all acknowledge the bounties of God."

John O'Brien, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, said the story of the Passover is at the root of the Easter liturgy in the Catholic Church.

Gus Oster, head chef for the event and member of Wollaston Congregational, said, "Passover is where Christians get communion from."

Participants included members from: Quincy Jewish Committee, Wollaston Lutheran Church, Quincy Point Congregational Church, First Baptist Church of Wollaston, Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Sacred Heart Catholic Church, St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Wollaston Congregational Church, Islamic Center of New England, Houghs Neck Congregational Church, United First Parish Church, Quincy Community United Methodist Church, Bethany Congregational Church and members of the Quincy Human Rights Commission and Work Inc.

The planning committee included: David and Ruth Ezickson, Quincy Jewish Committee; Jaclyn Gronbach, Wollaston Lutheran Church; Anita Farber-Robertson, pastor, First Baptist Church of Wollaston; Nathan Pipho, pastor, Good Shepherd Lutheran Church; John Salenius, deacon, Sacred Heart Church; Glenn McGhee, Deanna Van Schugen, Joyce Romeri and Ann Suzedell, pastor, Quincy Point Congregational Church; Gus and Laurel Oster, Wollaston Congregational Church; and Zaida Hassan Shaw, New England Islamic Center.

David Ezickson said he was very pleased with the outcome of the seder, but said that he hoped those present would go back to their parishes and discuss the event with others in order to generate more conversation about diversity.

"This is not the end product," he said, "but only the beginning."

Six From Quincy Candidates For Kerry Delegates

State Senator Michael Morrissey and five other Quincy residents are candidates for delegates pledged to Senator John Kerry at the Democratic National Convention July 26-29 at the Fleet Center in Boston.

Five delegates and one alternate delegated representing the 10th Congressional District will be elected at a district caucus Saturday at 10 a.m. at Plymouth South High School, 490 Long Pond Rd.

In addition to Senator Morrissey, the five other Quincy candidates are:

Janet Coughlin, Aileen Eleey, Michael Berry, Peter Eleey, and Benjamin Wak.

Residents of the 10th Congressional District who are registered Democrats as of Feb. 11 may participate in the process to elect three male, two female and one male alternate delegates who will represent the district at the national convention.

Sixty one delegates pledged to Kerry will be elected through the state.

"This is a very special year for all Massachusetts Democrats," said Congressman William Delahunt. "Not only are we hosting the Democratic National Convention, we will be nominating a native son, Senator John Kerry, as the Democratic Party nominee. Democrats throughout the state are anticipating once in a lifetime event this summer in Boston. For that reason, we anticipate hundreds of Democrats at our caucus. We invite all registered Democrats to participate in this exciting process and to witness firsthand an event that is truly democracy in action."

For more information, please call Congressman Delahunt's district office at 617-770-3700.

Atlantic House Cited For Assisting Mentally Ill

The Atlantic House, a clubhouse of the Center of Health and Development, Inc., located on 338 Washington St., will be one of 33 employers honored by the Massachusetts Clubhouse Coalition at the State House on Monday, April 5 at 11 a.m.

The group will be cited for helping to secure employment for those with mental illness.

Department of Mental Health Commissioner Dr. Elizabeth Childs will join more than 50 state legislators in honoring key employers for providing critical jobs while recognizing the accomplishments of people who have disabilities as they overcome obstacles and return to work.

The Atlantic House has more than 300 active members throughout 10 South Shore cities and towns. Last fiscal year, 56 members were employed with the support from Atlantic House.

Clubhouses are centers funded by the Department of Mental Health to provide a welcoming place in the community for people who have mental illness. The clubhouses foster an environment where members focus on their strengths and weaknesses rather than their illness.

Atlantic House has been working with Boston Scientific for more than a year, and has chosen it as the employer of the year.

Gay Marriage Debated At Human Rights Forum

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

More than 100 people on both sides of the gay marriage issue exchanged opinions in a sometimes heated but civil forum Monday sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission at the Thomas Crane Library.

About an hour before the forum started, the Massachusetts Legislature voted 105-92 for an amendment that would ban gay marriages and establish civil unions. If the measure is passed by the legislature in the 2005-2006 session, it would be voted on by the electorate in November, 2006.

Monday night's panel featured two gay-marriage supporters and two opponents. Page Kistler, a Quincy resident and family law attorney, and Paul J. Meoni, a Randolph resident and co-chair of Speak Out, a group which organizes speakers on gay rights, debated in support of gay marriage. Bill Kerrigan, a Quincy resident and parishioner at St. Ann's Catholic Church, and the Rev. Richard Brondyke, pastor at Fort Square Presbyterian Church, argued in opposition. The Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister United First Parish Church, was the moderator.

Bennett said the goal of the debate was to "provide the community the opportunity for a thoughtful and respectful discussion" on the issue of gay marriage. He gave each member of the panel 7-10 minutes to assert their opinion.

Kistler and Meoni focused their comments on gay marriage as a civil rights issue. Both shared stories of how they had been discriminated against as a lesbian and a gay man.

"I definitely think this is a civil rights issue . . . civil rights are issues that are not to be voted on . . . I ask you that even if you don't believe or don't agree to consider the promotion of equality, liberty and dignity for all."

Meoni recounted a night he brought his partner, who thought he was having a heart attack, to the emergency room. His eyes grew emotional as he said he feared not being let in the hospital room in the event that his partner would die.

"We've been together for 16 years, loving and caring for each other, and we don't get these rights," said Meoni, holding back tears.

Kerrigan and Brondyke focused their comments on gay marriage's effects on traditional marriage, which they said is an institution created for procreation. They said gay marriage would contribute to what they said is the demise of marriage and family.

"Marriage provides the important legal and normative link between heterosexuals and procreation on the one hand, and family values on the other," said Kerrigan. "Marriage is not merely a contract between the two parties, it is the foundation of the family, it is a social institution of the highest importance."

Brondyke pointed to studies conducted on Scandinavian countries, which allow gay marriage. He said in these countries, the institution of marriage has been degraded and divorce rights are high.

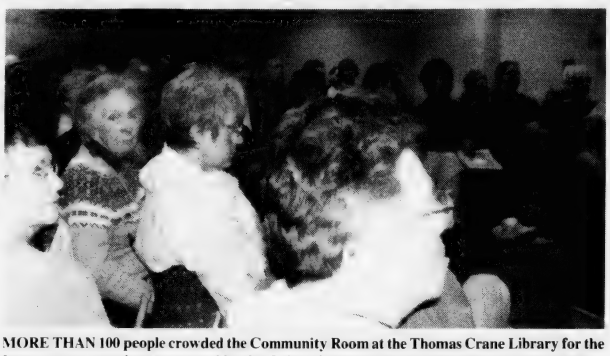
"There must be a basis for morality, even in the public sphere," said Brondyke. "There is a ruling one day in the court of heaven and that decision is far more significant and one for which we all should be concerned."

The crowd shot their hands in the air and nearly jumped out of their seats when Bennett announced it was time for the discussion portion of the event.

Many in the crowd pointed out that scripture had been used to justify discrimination of blacks and women.

Brondyke answered, "Scripture has been abused, but that doesn't mean that it doesn't speak to us with truth."

Many in the room stood up to tell what they had experienced as gay and lesbian people. The crowd applauded loudly their statements.



Janet Lawn of Quincy said she, as a lesbian, was raised in a Catholic household. She said she wanted to remind those in the room of the discrimination Catholics had faced in history, and that her struggle was no different.

Opponents of gay marriage received an equal amount of applause for their statements.

Michael Jovanovic of Quincy, who was born in Serbia, said that his opposition to gay marriage is based on biology.

PARTICIPANTS IN THE forum on gay marriage included, from the left, Page Kistler, Paul J. Meoni, the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Bill Kerrigan and the Rev. Richard Brondyke.

MORE THAN 100 people crowded the Community Room at the Thomas Crane Library for the forum on gay marriage sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission Monday night.

"From the beginning of time, marriage was a biological union between a male and a female, this is science, this is biology," he said.

"Yes we should love homosexuals," he continued. "They are also children of God. Give them all benefits of (civil marriage), but their union is not marriage."

Meoni said Monday's ruling did not surprise him. He said he was confident that in 2006 people would vote for gay marriage.

"People are not going to vote for discrimination in the Constitution," Meoni said.

Lawn said she was disappointed in the ruling.

"The sad part is that (the Legislature) really started the process to write discrimination into the Constitution," she said.

Kerrigan said the stay, which would delay the legalization of gay marriage set to go into effect May 17 until it is voted on in 2006 by the electorate, proposed by Governor Mitt Romney to the Supreme Judicial Court, would be a successful point.

"Confusion is what will reign," he said.

Quincy Youths Attend Youth & Government Conference

Matthew T. McCabe and Eric R. Still of Quincy, freshmen at Boston College High School, and members of the B.C. High Youth and Government delegation, recently attended the 21st annual YMCA Youth & Government Conference at the State House on Beacon Hill.

McCabe, along with seniors, Matthew Stoller of Milton, this year's youth Governor, and Andrew Cullen of Duxbury, this year's youth Lieutenant Governor, assisted Still and Michael Petersen of Winthrop in passing their co-sponsored bill.

Their bill would dissolve the statute of limitations on child rape (located in the MGL of Section 63 of Chapter 277); it was passed in both committee and the House of Representatives.

Since BC High became involved in Youth & Government, many of its students have held the coveted offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor and have won recognition for their outstanding service. This year, Cullen was awarded "Outstanding Officer" for the conference.

Youth & Government is one of the YMCA's oldest programs established in 1936. According to Jo-Ann Berry, State Director of the YMCA Youth & Government program, "the program teaches young people about state government, while at the same time helps them to develop their own character through learning values stressed by the YMCA - caring, respect, honesty, and responsibility."

Boston College High School is a Jesuit, Catholic, college-preparatory school for young men founded in 1863. The school enrolls approximately 1300 students from some 80 communities in eastern Massachusetts.

Matthew Moran State Finalist

Matthew Moran of Quincy, a senior at Boston College High School, has been selected as a state finalist in AAA Travel Challenge.

Moran, along with other state finalists, have "demonstrated strong knowledge of United States and world geography, and will represent Massachusetts in the national finals," said William Sutherland, vice president of Travel for AAA Southern New England.

5K Event April 24 At Pageant Field

Applications Available For Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight

Applications are now available for the 7th Annual Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight, to be held Saturday, April 24 beginning at Pageant Field.

Sponsors of this year's event include Eastern Bank, Quirk Auto Dealers, South Shore Savings Bank and the Outback Steakhouse.

Applications for the 5K charity event are available online at www.quincylions.org or by calling (617) 328-1384. Registration fee is $5 for children, $20 for adults and $17 for those who pre-register before the day of the event.

Day-of-race registration will begin at 9 a.m., followed by the children's 1K race at 10:30 a.m. The 5K Run/Walk – which is on a course certified by USA Track & Field – will begin at 11 a.m.

Following the race, a steak and chicken buffet will be provided by the Outback Steakhouse, along with free massages for runners and walkers courtesy of Brown Chiropractic Centers, PC.

The event will also feature prize raffles, a disc jockey, medals for race winners and t-shirts for all registrants.

In addition, the Lions Club Eyemobile will be on hand to provide free vision, hearing and blood pressure screenings to attendees.

Proceeds from the Run/Walk will be used to fund eye research and support the Quincy Lions Club's service activities in the local community.

Fred Cobban Joins Central Real Estate

Fred Cobban has joined Central Real Estate of Quincy as a full-time Realtor.

"We are thrilled to have Fred join us," said Central President Vin Moscardelli. "His longtime roots in the community will be a valuable asset to the company."

Cobban, a former business owner in the Wollaston area for 25 years, and his wife, Jane, a Quincy school teacher, are life-long residents of Quincy.

Cobban was educated in the Quincy public schools and at Merrimack College. He hopes to combine his business experience and knowledge of the South Shore area into a successful real estate career.

Central Real Estate has two locations: 128 Mayor McGrath Highway, Quincy, and 339 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Conway School Offering Real Estate Courses

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is offering four-week courses on the fundamentals of real estate.

Those interested in becoming licensed real estate agents can take the 25 hours of coursework to meet the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' requirements prior to taking the salesperson's licensing exam.

Students of the Conway Country School of Real Estate also have access to professional career counseling to discuss joining the Conway sales team, although enrolling in the prelicensing class does not obligate students to work for Conway.

Tuition is $200 and the classes are at the Hanover Campus (at the intersection of Routes 53 and 139) on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The next class starts on March 30 and runs through.

For more information on future license courses, call (781) 826-0088.

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co., which is the largest independent real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 810 agents in 42 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Two-Bedroom Single-Family Homes In Lakeville

Neighborhood Housing Services Affordable Housing Lottery

Robert Poillucci and South Shore Custom Builders, Inc., is developing 36 two-bedroom single family homes on Ebony Farm Road (Route 105) in Lakeville.

Eighteen of these homes will be sold as "affordable" housing for $155,000 to income eligible buyers.

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will be conducting a lottery process to determine the buyers of the affordable units.

Applications are available through May 27 at the Lakeville Town Hall, Lakeville Library, South Shore Custom Builders, and by calling Neighborhood Housing Services, based in Quincy, at 617-770-2227 ext. 24.

Applicants must meet the following income guidelines:

- Family of one: no more than $40,250 per year.
- Family of two: no more than $46,000 per year.

Priority will be given to Lakeville residents, town employees and applicants with family members residing in Lakeville for 13 out of the 18 units.

The lottery is scheduled for mid June.

- You can extend the life of salad lettuce by prebagging it and adding a few chunks of raw potato, cut into 1-inch chunks.
- "Fabric softener has really gotten expensive, and I found that I was using too much of it anyway. To save a little money, I added liquid softener to a clean spray bottle and cut it with water. I keep the spray bottle and a few washcloths next to the dryer. I mist a washcloth and add it to the dryer load. It really stretches out the softener and saves me money, and there is less waste." — V.B., via e-mail
- Health Alert: Cosmetics have a shelf life. Six months is the time limit for eye products; nine to 12 months for foundations and powders. Lipwear shouldn't be kept for more than a year, although you can extend that by shaving a bit off and using a lip brush to apply it from the cut-off portion. Bacteria can breed in anything that touches your face, so be sure to clean brushes and sponges regularly.
- Fred J. of Jacksonville, Fla., writes: "I was cleaning up some financial details and was surprised to learn that my joint banking account with my wife does not have survivorship benefits. Apparently, it didn't come automatically, but was an option I needed to choose. Needless to say, I took care of it, but I thought others might want to check. I guess all those years ago, I thought 'joint' would be enough."

Clean Up Your Act – Exterior Style

(NAPS) — Now is the time to get a jump-start on exterior projects for parts of your home that need sprucing up.

• Tackle the gutters: Many leaves and twigs can accumulate in your gutters. Cleaning out the gutters to prepare for rain may prevent possible damage to your paint and water leaking into your basement. Also check to see if your spouting is in good condition and in proper alignment for drainage.

• Cleaning house: With the latest developments in exterior siding, clean-up can be a snap. Most vinyl sidings are virtually maintenance-free, but Crane Performance Siding's newest product, CraneBoard Double Seven (D7) Solid Core Siding goes a step further. It features an authentic design, an attractive seven-inch profile for unmatched aesthetics and versatility, never requires painting, and is formulated not to crack, so the only clean-up necessary is to hose off collected dirt. For more information or to find a Crane Performance Siding dealer, call 1-800-366-8472 or visit www.cranesiding.com.

• Top-down perspective: Snow, rain, ice and other harsh conditions can significantly damage your roof. Take a couple of moments to grab your ladder and investigate your roof's appearance. Clean off excess debris by using a broom or brush, to prevent moisture build-up, possible decay and also aid in rainwater run-off. Also check for loose, split or broken pieces of shingle. For a fast repair, use a premium grade roof tile adhesive, such as the Pro-Series RT 600 Roof Tile Adhesive from OSI Sealants, Inc., that will withstand the high roof temperatures and create a water- and weather-resistant seal. For more information, visit www.osiproseries.com.

• Seal of approval: Concrete driveways tend to dry out and crack from exposure to harsh weather. Be sure to check for cracks, depressed areas or holes. Fill in any cracks or depressed areas with caulk to keep water from getting under the driveway and causing future problems.

After completing necessary repairs, keep your driveway looking its best by applying a coat of sealant. Not only does it give your driveway a fresh, new look, but it protects from everyday wear and tear while providing protection from the sun, gasoline and oil drips.

Space-Saving Boilers Provide Quiet, Energy Efficient Heat

(NU) – Dana Morton never wants to see another oil furnace or hot water tank in his home again.

Morton is among the growing number of cost-conscious and environmentally concerned homeowners throughout North America who are discovering the value of heating their entire home and hot water supply with the Baxi Luna wall-hung boiler.

Fire by gas or propane, Baxi Luna is a combination home comfort system that cuts monthly utility bills by up to 53 percent. Measuring 30 inches high, 18 inches wide and 14 inches deep, the Baxi Luna is no bigger than a small kitchen cupboard and frees up valuable living space. It operates with modulating gas valve and soft light burner technology that ensure silent operation and a gradual lighting of the flame.

What is the key to its quiet operation and high efficiency? Baxi Luna's internal sensors detect and control thermostat and hot water needs on demand.

Morton, a professional engineer living in Kennebunkport, Maine, says that for years he up with a groaning oil furnace in the cellar beneath his bedroom and could hardly wait to turn it off in the spring. Today, he enjoys peace and quiet year-round.

Developed in Europe, the Baxi Luna has been customized for North American use and is approved by the American Gas Association.

Allow For Faster Construction Of Rte. 128 Project

Add-A-Lane Approved By Transportation Committee

Legislation aimed at addressing growing traffic congestion south of Boston has been approved by the Transportation Committee, Sen. Brian Joyce announces.

The bill, filed by Joyce, would exempt Route 128 "add-a-lane" project from the current lengthy design-bid-build requirement in favor of a more efficient and cost effective method cutting the estimated completion date in half to five to seven years. The legislation is now headed to the Ways and Means Committee.

The project is designed to widen Route 128 from three to four lanes in each direction to alleviate traffic congestion from Randolph to Wellesley and has been in the works since the mid-1980s, when 120,000 vehicles traveled on Route 128 daily. Today, more than 200,000 vehicles travel the highway daily.

The legislation allows for the "design-build-finance" method now employed in 12 other states. Under the procedure, the risk is transferred to the "design-build" team by holding it accountable to the initial timeframe and bid on the "final product."

"As a legislator I find that the worthiest of projects often meet some sort of resistance from affected interest groups," said Joyce. "However, in the case of the add-a-lane project, we have amassed wide-spread support from residents, businesses, environmentalists, safety officials and elected officials."

The project is estimated to cost $150 million with an additional $50 million to redo the Interstate 95/Rte. 128 interchange from a combination of federal and state funding sources.

Susan Schepici Executive Director Of Development, PR At Milton Hospital

Milton Hospital announces Susan M. Schepici is the new executive director of Development and Public Relations.

Schepici has been the department's director for the past eight years, leading the hospital's efforts in fund raising, community benefits, marketing, media relations and special events. The promotion expands her responsibilities, which now include major gifts, planned gifts and program management.

Schepici joined Milton Hospital in 1986 as an assistant in the Development and Public Relations Department. She was promoted to coordinator in 1990 and to director in 1996.

As director, Schepici raised $800,000 annually through special events and fund drives. She created a community benefits plan to identify the health care needs of area residents and developed an education series that serves 3,000 people a year through free lectures, workshops and screenings.

As the leader of the hospital's centennial fund-raising campaign last year, Schepici set a goal of raising $1 million; the hospital raised $1.9 million during the campaign. She was involved in marketing and fund-raising efforts for the hospital's new Magnetic Resonance Imaging Center and the expansion of women's health services.

Schepici serves as Milton Hospital's spokesperson. She oversees the writing and production of all internal and external publications.

A graduate of Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy, Schepici has a bachelor's degree in business administration. She is a member of six professional associations, including the American College of Health Care Executives, Boston Women Communicators and the Association of Fund-raising Professionals.

Schepici lives in Middletown, R.I., with her husband and two children.

Milton Hospital is a 130-bed community hospital. Its medical staff provides a wide range of services, including primary care, a range of surgical specialties and sub-specialties, emergency medicine, critical care, neurology, ambulatory surgery and other services in affiliation with Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. The hoospital has served Milton and surrounding communities since 1903.

The Sneezing Season

(NAPS) For many, spring means another season of allergy battles. While it may not seem serious, allergies are responsible for 3.5 million lost workdays and 2 million school absences each year.

Generally, sufferers are most severely affected by pollens, grasses and ragweed and prime season is spring and fall. For relief, many turn to prescription or over-the-counter antihistamines and decongestants. While somewhat effective in relieving symptoms, many of these remedies come with potentially serious side effects such as nervousness, fatigue, headache, drowsiness and bleeding. They also don't attack the root cause.

On the supplement side, there are a number of herbal, vitamin and mineral supplements that claim to help boost the immune system, thus, increasing the body's resistance to allergens. Some, like vitamin C and zinc, can be quite helpful. The verdict is not so clear with others such as stinging nettle, licorice, gingko and milk thistle. Often there is little scientific evidence to support their health claims and symptom relief tends to be minimal.

However, there is a promising new entry to the markets called Aller-7. It represents the culmination of more than 10 years of research. The process began with a study of more than 50 plants known for their immune-promoting properties. Applying modern techniques or investigational science, numerous combinations of extracts were prepared and tested. In the end, one formula stood out above all others — a unique combination of seven standardized herbal extracts that became Aller-7.

Subsequently, numerous clinical and sub-clinical studies were conducted and published in peer-reviewed scientific journals. These multicenter, double-blind, placebo-controlled studies validated both the safety and efficacy of Aller-7. They revealed that this unique blend of seven herbal extracts helps promote healthy respiratory and immune systems, clear airway passages and easy breathing. It stabilizes mast cells, thus preventing the release of symptom-causing histamines and neutralizes free radicals that can damage the body's respiratory and immune systems. This new natural ingredient just may put the enjoyment back in spring for millions of people.

Designing an Exercise Program

Q: I recently changed my exercise program from a total body workout to a split routine. How do I determine which routine is right for me? — *K.D. Newport News, Va.

A: Designing effective exercise programs that will help you reach your goals is extremely important but often tricky. An exercise program that yields little success can create frustration and become discouraging. Sifting through myriad exercise methods and deciding which is right for you will require effort on your part — but it will make all of the difference when done correctly.

To understand whether an exercise program is designed to meet your goals, there are a few questions you must ask yourself:

What is my level of training?

When choosing a program, consider your fitness level. You're considered a beginner if you've been doing consistent exercise for less than four months, and advanced if you've been at it for more than a year. If you are a beginner, it may take several weeks for you to develop proper exercise techniques, understand your body's response to exercise (i.e. soreness) and learn how to nutritionally support the demands of your exercise program.

What are my fitness goals?

Whether your fitness goal is to decrease body fat, improve balance/coordination, or develop overall strength — or all three — the design of your exercise program will determine your success in reaching your goals.

If you are working out three times a week for one hour each time, a split exercise routine which focuses on a selected muscle group such as upper body (chest, back, shoulders and arms) one day and lower body the next may not be beneficial for developing overall strength.

How much time and how many days a week am I committing to exercise?

The amount of time you devote to exercise should affect the type of exercise program you choose. If you commit one hour, three times a week to your exercise program, it may be necessary to develop a total body workout for each session in order to receive the reinforcement you will need to see change.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTAL IMPLANTS

Dental implants are composed of a crown that is fitted to a metal screw implanted in the jaw. The first step toward getting an implant involves having an x-ray or CT scan of the jaw performed to see if there is sufficient bone to hold the implant. Next, the implant is inserted into the bone by making an incision in the gum and drilling a hole in the underlying bone. The gum is then stitched over the implant. Several months later, after the bone has integrated with the implant, an incision is again made in the gum and an "abutment" is placed in the implant. This little metal cylinder accepts the crown on the fourth, and last, appointment.

Your oral health requirements, from implants to cosmetic considerations, will be met with the latest available technology by our caring staff. We want to provide you and your family with the best dental care possible in a comfortable, professional environment. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. # Presidents Shut Out Holbrook In Opener, 11-0

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School baseball team heated up a chilly Merrymount Field Monday afternoon with a convincing 11-0 victory over Holbrook in an early season opener.

"We're probably the only ones playing in the state right now," said head coach Michael Draicchio. "I'm very happy that we won, believe me. It's one game right now. I told the guys we have to take it one game at time."

Quincy is scheduled to host Brighton today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. and travel to Archbishop Williams Saturday morning at 10, both games weather permitting.

"I'm happy that we got the game in at this point because if we're rained out Thursday, we could be rained out Saturday with the way the weather is looking," Draicchio said.

The three starters this season — juniors John Santon, John Folino and Steve Sullivan — all got in work and combined for a two-hit shutout. Santon received the starting nod, overpowering the Bulldogs with 12 strikeouts and one hit over five innings. Folino tossed an easy sixth frame and Sullivan escaped a minor jam in the seventh.

"All three juniors are going to be huge for the pitching staff, as long as they can be consistent," Draicchio said. "Santon pitched a great game for five innings. They only had that one hit off him. Folino has already won at this level. And Sully pitched well."

The Presidents took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Junior Steve Priscella led off with a ground-rule double, moved to second on a groundout and scored on senior Ian Jorgensen's pop-up infield single.

In the third, Quincy pushed across six runs all coming with two outs. Sullivan singled, Cosgrove reached on an error and Folino crushed a towering three-run homer to right-center for a 7-0 lead. Copson (walk) and Priscella (hit by pitch) scored when Chris Kirschner reached on error. Senior tri-captain Joe Priscella plated Kirschner with a single for a 10-0 advantage.

Quincy added a run in the fifth inning when senior Scott Flaherty ripped a double down the third-base line and later crossed home plate when senior Brendan Craig reached on an error.

"I think we played well," Draicchio said. "A key to a successful season will be our hitting. We hit today. We'll see what happens later on."

Defensively, the Presidents looked sharp as they committed no errors and made several outstanding plays.

In the first inning, Joe Priscella gunned down a runner trying to steal second to complete a strike 'em out-throw 'em out double play. In the third, they tagged out a runner caught in a pickle between first and second. And in the seventh, they executed a game-ending 1-6-3 double play.

As of right now, though, the defensive positions are not set in stone. Quincy is overloaded at catcher, with Joe Priscella and Marchand battling for playing time behind the plate. Jorgensen, Flaherty and Tim Randall can go back there as well.

"I have a dilemma there," Draicchio said. "I have five kids that can catch. But a lot of catchers is nice to have. There's going to be some flipping around with all the positions."

In the opener, Sullivan started at first base and Marchand fielded second base. Kevin Lafferty and Craig can also play second. Copson manned the hot corner with Folino at shortstop. When Folino is on the mound, Kirschner will take his position.

"I think it's a very strong baseball group," Draicchio said. "They don't have a lot of experience at this level because we had a lot of seniors last year. Our goal is always to make the tournament. But I'm not going to put any pressure on them. I don't want to make any predications and put the heat on them. A lot of them haven't played at this level yet."

Quincy Rallying Around Teammate Rachel Sorensen

SOFTBALL

QUINCY HIGH SOFTBALL captains Alysia DiMuzio (kneeling), Rebekah Sorensen, Rachel Sorensen and Katie Walsh will lead the Presidents this season. Rachel will miss the season with an illness.

The Quincy High School softball team huddled together at practice last week and before it broke to begin a drill it chanted a teammate's name, "Rachel."

Rachel Sorensen, its senior starting pitcher and quad-captain, was diagnosed a couple of months ago with Guillian-Barre Syndrome, a disease that attacks the neurological system, and will miss the remainder of the school year.

The Presidents, who have her name on their helmets, have dedicated the upcoming season to her.

"The thing with Rachel has taken on a life of its own," said head coach Mike Sedar. "She was probably having the best of season pitching. I hadn't seen her throw that well. She was just flying. All of a sudden she had these flu symptoms and the next thing you know she's in the hospital.

"She has a mental disease right now and is not walking. It's a huge loss. We'll see how it goes. It's will either make us stronger as a team or it won't. We've dedicated the season to her."

The season begins next Tuesday, April 6, when Quincy hosts Dennis-Yarmouth at 4 p.m. at Pageant Field, followed by home games against Sandwich April 8 and Stoughton April 10.

In addition to Sorensen, Quincy will also be without starting junior left fielder Marissa Powers, who had head surgery, for two months. And the program saw a low turnout this year with only 20 girls, forcing Sedar to drop a team from the junior varsity team.

"We're a [girl] team," Sedar said. "But what we have is OK. We have a lot of sophomores and juniors. We only have one senior starter right now. If we just take care of business we should be in the thick of things. We're fast in many areas from disaster. We don't have any depth and that's a problem."

Despite the losses, Quincy still has a talented club and has its sights set on getting into the tournament and making a run for a title.

Our assistant, the nice Sedar said. "We want to get to the playoffs and go deep in the playoffs. The other things will take care of themselves. If we do all that, then we'll win the YCT again."

Stepping into Sorensen's workhorse role will be her younger sister, junior quad-captain Rebekah, who received only spot innings last season from the mound. Senior catcher Rose Bell will

Bantam A Travel Team Captures State Championship

The Quincy Bantam A travel hockey team recently captured the Tier II State Championship in dominating style.

The top 16 teams in the state earned the opportunity to compete in the final tournament by surviving a rigorous play-down process involving Bantam A teams throughout the state.

Quincy went 4-0-1 in the tourney, outscoring its opponents by a 28-6 margin.

After opening the tourney with a 2-2 tie against Acton-Boxboro, Quincy came out on fire the following day. It controlled both ends of the ice with its high-powered offense and stingy defense, blanking Medford, 5-0, and Burlington, 9-0.

In the semifinals, Quincy pulled out a 5-4 victory over a resilient Arlington squad. In the championship game later in the afternoon, the offense and defense once again came together to punish Norwood, 7-0, behind the outstanding play of game MVP Casey Conley.

Coached by Dave Finnegan, Wayne Foley, Jack McInnis and Jim Dunn, the team has been recognized as one of the strongest teams in the state all season long.

First-year players Sean Dunn, Joe Vialpando, Chris Brown, Jeff Giordani and Conley will return next season to defend the title.

back her up.

"Rebi is a little stronger than Rach and has more pitches," Sedar said. "She has four pitches she's working on. She has a real good drop, a good fastball. She's a little bigger, little stronger, longer fingers. She hasn't pitched a lot of varsity ball, but I don't think it's going to matter. She's a great athlete."

With the injuries to Rachel and Powers, Sedar has had to make changes to his defense. Sophomore Courtney Hall will take Rebekah's position at shortstop. Sophomore Leanna Lam will be at third, junior Rebecca Williams at second and junior quad-captain Alysia DiMuzio at first.

In the outfield, sophomore Kim Lebel will play left field in place of Powers. Junior quad-captain Katie Walsh will patrol center field and senior Caitlyn Callahan will be in right field.

"I thought we had the best infield going with Rebi at short," Sedar said. "That would've been the best infield I ever had. But with Rach down we had to revamp a little bit. I think we'll be all right. I'm a little concerned about the outfield because we have some new kids out there. But we're working on keeping the ball down and making sure the infield is tight."

Offensively, Sedar believes he has a stronger lineup, top to bottom, than last year's potent unit. Lead-off hitter Lam, No. 3 Walsh, cleanup hitter DiMuzio and Hall should provide most of the offensive punch.

"I think one through eight we're a little stronger at the plate than last year, believe it or not," Sedar said. "We're very strong defensively. We throw as well as any college team. And we'll see how Rebi does. Whatever we do on the mound will dictate what we do."

QHS Students Create Cable TV Sports Show

A group of Quincy High School students has created a new sports television program entitled "Sports Wrap."

The show will be broadcast every week on Quincy Educational Access Television (Channel 22).

The show touches all the bases of Boston sports and features host Matt McLaughlin, Celtics expert Mike Tally, Red Sox analysts Ed Fillipides and Todd Schofield, NFL buff John Hanlon and odd job man Derek King.

Post shows include segments in Fenway Park, at Gillette Stadium and interviews with Bobby Hamilton and Pro Bowler Willie McGinest. Future shows will include segments on the NCAA basketball tournament and an interview with former Celtic and current Cleveland Cavalier Eric Williams.

South Shore YMCA Men's Basketball League Begins April 15

The South Shore YMCA, 70 Coddington St., Quincy, will offer a men's basketball league this spring.

Registration begins today (Thursday) and the season begins April 15. Open to eight to 12 teams, games will be played Thursday and Friday evenings. For more information, call 617-479-8500, ext. 161.

Granite Baseball Club Seeks Catcher, Pitcher

The Quincy Granite baseball club is seeking a catcher and pitcher for the upcoming season.

Quincy is part of the Mass. Independent Baseball League, a competitive 18-plus Sunday only league featuring teams from Dorchester to Rhode Island. The Granite is made up of Quincy residents ages 18-39.

Quincy is looking for a young and or experienced catcher to perform full duties, which includes 14 innings a week (two seven-inning games on Sundays), and a pitcher with a strong arm and leadership qualities and a winning background.

Last year, the Granite missed the playoffs by one game, finishing the season with a 9-11 record.

"It wasn't our lack of offense," said coach Jason Riley, referring to the team's 7.5 runs per game. "It was the depth of our bullpen. Two starters and a closer is not what it takes to win. We need a middle man and a setup guy."

With the addition of Rob Celata to the staff and a player to be named later, Riley hopes Brian Deptula and ace Sean MacLean, the 2003 team MVP and two-time all-star, can relax and have some fun.

"These guys (Deptula and MacLean) worked hard for this club last season," Riley said. "Brian Deptula was our heart, always kept us breathing. And MacLean was the soul who led his team by example. Not to take away from any of the other guys because I think they're all great ballplayers."

The Quincy Granite (formerly the Quincy Royals (1998-2002) began with the idea of two friends, Eric Ricupero and Riley. After two years in the National Adult Baseball Association and not playing as much as they had hoped, Ricupero suggested to start their own team.

Six years later, the league has become more competitive and the team has surpassed any expectation ever imagined.

"To watch these guys play and to be part of it all makes me feel good, still hanging around 'the boys of summer,'" Riley said.

Those interested in sponsoring or playing for the Quincy Granite baseball club are asked to contact Jason Riley at 617-592-0029.

CHECK ENGINE

When the "CHECK ENGINE" light comes on, many vehicle owners wonder if they should pull off the road, rush to a technician, or ignore it. Generally speaking, the check engine light provides an indication that the vehicle's computer has detected a malfunction of an engine, fuel, or emissions component, or a system failure. If the light stays on momentarily, it may just be showing a passing problem in the system that may no longer be occurring, but the computer has stored a diagnostic trouble code in its memory. If the light remains on, there may be an ongoing problem that affects performance, gas mileage, and emission levels. If the light flashes on and off, the vehicle requires immediate repair.

Pay attention to your vehicle's on-dash warning lights. It can save you much money in repairs. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, for most all of your car's repairs, we have modern test equipment, the right parts, and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Get acquainted with us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Walk To Benefit Cystic Fibrosis At Marina Bay

The annual Great Strides Walk to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation will be held Sunday, May 16, at Waterworks at Marina Bay.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. with the walk to follow at 10 a.m. The day will start out with coffee and doughnuts and a post-walk party will be held with music, raffles and food.

Last year, walkers from all over the South Shore attended the event and raised over $40,000. The goal this year is to raise $50,000.

Cystic Fibrosis is a genetic disease affecting 30,000 children and young adults in the United States.

A defective gene causes thick, sticky mucus in various glands throughout the body. The pancreas becomes obstructed, blocking important digestive enzymes and results in malabsorption.

The primary concern, however, is the toll on the lungs where obstructed airways lead to chronic infections and accelerated loss of lung function. One-half of all individuals with CF live to the age of 31; however, one-half does not. Currently there is no cure.

The CF Foundation receives no funding by the Federal Government and it's not a profitable market for pharmaceutical companies due to the small patient base.

Sponsorship can be either individual, corporate or in the form of a gift certificate or merchandise. Tax-deductible donations can be made payable to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and mailed to 220 North Main St., Suite 104, Natick, MA 01760.

For more information, contact Cindy Macgowan at the CF Foundation at 800-966-0444 or visit the CF Web site (www.cff.org).

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Bethany Congregational

Holy Week services will begin Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, with Palm Sunday worship at 10 a.m.

The Rev. Gary Smothers, associate pastor, will preach a sermon entitled "Applause or Decision?"

The service will also feature a church school pageant.

Music will include the chancel choir directed by Tom Boyer, organist; a duet by Alita Norkus, soprano, and Paul Frazer, baritone, as well as a solo by Marie Opie of the church school.

Scripture reader will be Kristen Vaillancourt.

Child care will be provided for infants and toddlers.

Steve and Judy Fields will host the Fellowship Hour after the service. Light refreshments will be available.

Also after the service, children of the church school will have an opportunity to ride a colt as they reenact the ride into Jerusalem. This will take place on the lawn on the Coddington Street side of the church.

It will also be Pantry Shelf Sunday to benefit the Interfaith Social Services food bank.

On Maundy Thursday, there will be a supper at 5:30 p.m. followed by a service of Communion and Tenebrae at 7 p.m. featuring a portrayal of the Last Supper. The chancel choir will sing under the direction of Tom Boyer, organist, as well as a solo by Alita Norkus, soprano.

On Good Friday, April 9, at noon at Quincy Point Congregational Church, the Rev. Gary Smothers, associate minister at Bethany Church, will preach a sermon entitled "It Is Finished."

Easter Sunday worship will begin at 10 a.m. Both ministers, the Rev. William Harding and the Rev. Gary Smothers, will participate. Following the service, there will be a period of Fellowship in Allen Parlor hosted by Tom Starr. Light refreshments will be available.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Some of the world's most talented people have never been paid a cent. They are called volunteers. They take time from their work, their leisure, their home-life to volunteer their talents and their energies. Volunteerism is in the spotlight this week. It is the time to publicly thank them for their work and let them know that it is valuable and important to us. This week is the time to make an effort to look around and see who is doing what to help out. . . Look at the nursing homes and hospitals and you'll see men and women finding time to visit with the residents and help the staff. . . Look at the schools and you'll see people who serve on committees, who donate materials, who help raise funds all for their love of doing. . . Look at the churches and you'll see people who give their time to sing in the choir, and work on committees. . . You'll see people who deeply care about their community and want to work to make it better, honor it and tell others about it.

When asked why they volunteers, the most popular reason heard will be, "Because I care, I want to help." . . . We ask that our readers join us in saluting the volunteers in our community. . . Let us show them that because they care, we care about them.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Putting yourself in someone else's shoes isn't easy for you. But if you do it, you'll gain a better perspective of what you need to do to achieve your goals. Be open to new ideas.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) There are still some problems you might have to deal with before moving on to your next project. It's a good idea to accept help from those who share your objectives.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's time to recognize the difference between those who are truly concerned for you and those who simply plan to use your good nature to their advantage. New ideas become increasingly attractive.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Depending on a promise made becoming a promise kept could be more than a mite unwise at this time. Best to proceed on your own rather than wait for aid that might never arrive.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A recently revitalized relationship might not be quite what the Big Cat expected. But give yourself more time to deal with the changes. A little flexibility can go a long way. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A major change could prompt more adjustments. Some of them might be difficult to deal with at first. But hang in there, and before you know it, you'll be coasting to your next goal.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your sense of justice prompts you to speak out against an unfair situation, even if you seem to be the only one who feels that way. But you soon learn that many others agree with you.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creating a fuss is not usually your style. But that doesn't mean you should tolerate an ill-mannered attitude. Speak up for yourself, and you'll earn the respect of others.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might have a few loose ends to tie up before you can stamp your project as complete. But once that's done, you might want to celebrate with someone special in your life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A disappointment darkens the Goat's mood. But close friends rally to pull you through with words of encouragement. Use their confidence in you to rebuild your own self-esteem.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An upcoming decision might be more difficult with inaccurate information. Best to recheck the data you have at hand right now to be sure it won't mislead you later.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An offer you previously turned down might no longer be available. But if you do some checking around, you could find something else that would suit you just fine.

BORN THIS WEEK: You believe in helping those who cannot help themselves. It embarrasses you, but the fact is, people like you and tell you so.

Kate Mihevc To Run In San Diego Marathon

Kate Mihevc of Quincy will run in the San Diego Marathon June 6 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's Team in Training.

The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society is a national voluntary health agency dedicated to curing leukemia, Hodgkin's disease and myeloma to improve the quality of life for the patients and their families. Last year the Massachusetts chapter raised nearly $3 million.

It's estimated that leukemia and its related cancers will strike over 100,000 Americans this year alone.

"I have always run for myself, but now I am running for someone else," Mihevc said. "My brother, Luke, is a leukemia survivor. If it weren't for all the research previously done he may not have survived. Needless to say, this organization holds a special place in my heart. This is my opportunity to give back to those who helped my family out when we needed it most."

Mihevc needs to raise $3,800 for the society by May. Those who would like to donate can send checks, payable to The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, to: Kate Mihevc, 55 Pleasant St., Quincy 02169.

Boating Safety Course At Houghs Neck Center

The Quincy Police Marine Unit, in partnership with the Massachusetts Environmental Police, will hold a basic boating public safety course April 10, 17 and 24.

Scheduled for three consecutive Saturdays, the course will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave., next to the Quincy Yacht Club.

An additional course will be held May 1, 8, 15.

The course is designed for citizens of all ages. All members of the boating public are welcomed to attend, regardless of boating skills. The course is provided at no charge to the public.

Completion of the course by youthful boaters between the ages of 12-16 allows them to legally operate a motorboat without adult supervision. All members of the public who successfully complete the course will be issued a Massachusetts Environmental Police Basic Boating Safety Certificate.

For course information or to register, contact the Massachusetts Environmental Police Department Boat & Recreational Vehicle Safety Bureau, 1019 Route 132, Hyannis, MA 02601, at 617-727-8760 or 508-790-9360.

13 Students Graduate Youthbuild Program

The Quincy YouthBuild Program recently graduated 13 students between the ages of 16 and 24 who completed comprehensive training.

The students are:

Sean Donahue, Joshua Doyle, Christopher Haynes, Shane Johnson, Brandon Lemanski, Daniel Mazzeo, Antonio Mina, Alphonse Montes, Brian Pham, Anthony Piccarini, Michael Ricketts, Xi Pan Wu, and Edward Young.

YouthBuild is a nationwide network of more than 200 programs that provide comprehensive training to youth between the ages of 16 and 24 who meet low-income guidelines, are not in school and have not received a high school diploma or GED.

The program challenges participants to take a giant step by rebuilding their own lives and their communities with a commitment to obtaining their GEDs, learning construction skills through the creation of low-income housing units, acquiring life/work skills and becoming responsible citizens.

With support of the Quincy Housing Authority, Quincy YouthBuild students are helping to rehabilitate 400 units at the Snug Harbor public housing development and replace roof/siding/windows at 180 buildings in the Riverview Family Development in the Germantown neighborhood.

The young people's efforts have helped to improve the quality of life for many Quincy residents, while providing the youth with an opportunity to turn their lives around and experience success.

The YouthBuild graduates are very enthusiastic about the program. "For the first time in my life I truly feel like I'm a part of program that works," said student Shane Johnson.

"I owe my life to YouthBuild," added student Daniel Mazzeo.

The program is supported by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the Massachusetts Department of Education-YouthBuild funds, and local resources.

Graduation ceremonies took place at O'Brien Towers, 73 Bicknell St. Invited guests included Mayor William Phelan, State Reps. Stephen Tobin and Bruce Ayers; Jacquelyn Loud, acting Executive Director, Quincy Housing Authority; and Christopher Cato, YouthBuild USA regional coordinator.

The Quincy YouthBuild partnership is comprised of lead agency, Mass. Job Training-Quincy, a division of Training Resources of America Incorporated, and the Quincy Housing Authority.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail)

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all the things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine." The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. Thank you. SMG 4/1

SISTERS ALLIE AND Jessie Tappen recently visited the Quincy Animal Shelter after donating gifts to the shelter from Jessie's sixth birthday. In lieu of gifts, Jessie asked her birthday party guests to bring something for the cats and dogs at the shelter. The girls were given a tour of the shelter and a chance to meet the animals.

Quincy Woman Leaves $2.5 Million To Salvation Army

Bay Club for 10 years.

The large sum of money will be put into a trust, and the Salvation Army will derive a benefit from the interest on the funds, said Jones. They will only dip into the principal in an extraordinary circumstance. He expects about $100,000 in annual interest from the $2.5 million. "We have to replace the roof on our building, which will cost about $200,000," said Jones. "We will use the money to help us there."

Since the Quincy Temple Corps has an operating budget of $700,000 annually, Jones said the infusion would help but not solve all budget concerns.

"This is by no means a cure-all," said Jones. "We still have budgetary needs. This will help us with anticipated shortfalls. It means we will not have to decrease any programs because of a budget shortfall. We are interested in making these funds last as long as possible, and help as many people as possible," said Jones.

In addition, the extra money will go toward expanding the Salvation Army's Adult Day Health Program, said Jones. The program provides seniors and disabled adults with nursing care, social services and recreational activities.

Jones said the new funds will allow the Salvation Army to hire a bilingual employee to reach out to the Asian community for the program.

"We have taken steps already to hire a new aide and make this program available to the Asian community," said Jones. "We had trouble finding volunteers to the Asian community, but now we can hire someone for the program. Now we can move forward and reach out to them."

The gift will also helps the organization's preschool program, emergency assistance program and character-building curriculum for youths, he said.

"It doesn't matter how much money we get, but we want to be a good steward for every dollar of it," said Jones. "Whatever the donation we want to honor the wishes of the donor. Obviously, Mrs. Jutila wanted the Salvation Army to help the poor for years to come, and that's what we intend to do."

Quincy Tourism Enterprises Determined

All-Out Effort To Boost Tourism

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

This time, things will be different.

That's what members of the nonprofit Quincy Tourism Enterprises Inc. (QTE) truly believe as they move ahead with plans to re-energize the city's tourism industry. Over the years, past promotion efforts have fallen short of expectations, but QTE believes this will be the Year of the Tourist, so to speak. A number of new initiatives, coupled with adequate funding, will help to generate interest and tap into Quincy's tourism potential, they contend.

In 2002, Mayor William Phelan created Quincy Tourism, a 23-member coalition made up of mostly business and civic leaders with an interest in boosting the city's tourism industry. The board eventually turned into QTE, which considers itself independent yet still a close partner with the city.

During the past five months the agency has claimed a number of accomplishments, including the establishment of partnerships with the National Park Service, the Quincy Historical Society, and the Greater Boston Visitors and Convention Bureau. In addition, the group has set up shop in President's Place with assistance from Quincy 2000.

According to Phelan, the board has been laying the groundwork over the past two years to make way for an exciting tourism season.

"The accomplishments of the board this year will be very tangible," said Phelan. "I am very excited about the upcoming year."

If all of QTE's efforts come to fruition, Quincy will finally find itself mentioned alongside Salem and Plymouth as a significant tourist destination. But success hinges on the outcome of a number of initiatives.

QTE divides itself into five subcommittees: Funding, Literature and Marketing, Transportation, Site and Executive Director Search Committee. Each committee meets on a periodic basis to address issues specific to the group. The Executive Director Search Committee will finish up its work soon.

Economic Impact

A byproduct of expanding the city's tourism industry will be an increase in the commercial tax base, according to officials. Ultimately, an expanded commercial base will have a positive impact on the city's taxpayers, according to Phelan.

Since the city's commercial tax base has eroded over the past few years, Phelan said the board's tourism initiatives should help to bring about a revival.

"I recognize the economic impacts that tourism can have on our local economy," the mayor said. "I envision our tourism efforts as a vital cog in the economic development efforts to revive downtown Quincy and increase our city's commercial tax base. Quincy residents should understand that the board

200 Roads Targeted For Work This Year

City Unveils $23M Street Repair Plan

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city unveiled a 10-year, $23 million pavement management plan designed to immediately repair about 200 of Quincy's roadways but also puts off for a year or two some of the city's worst streets.

At Monday night's city council meeting, acting City Engineer George Clark and a representative from a consulting firm outlined the long-term plan, which will focus on repairing streets before they fall into disrepair.

Mayor William Phelan is seeking approval of a $5 million borrowing package to begin the new project, which uses computer programs to rate the condition of the city streets and outline the most logical use of the city's funds earmarked for road repair.

According to the pavement management plan, the city will need an additional $2 million annually to repair some of the worst roadways and continue with preventive maintenance.

The pavement management plan was placed into the council's public works and finance subcommittees for further review.

The $5 million bond for the street repair plan is part of a larger $10 million bond for various items, including the purchase of new DPW equipment, financial software and building maintenance. About $1 million will go toward the purchase of new DPW equipment, which will allow the city to do more work in-house, said Clarke.

"Public Works will be a lot more aggressive with this new equipment," he told the council.

Last summer, a consulting firm took an inventory of every public street in the city, assigning a PCI (pavement condition index) to determine its condition. On a range of 0 to 100, the city's streets averaged about 53 on the PCI index, meaning many of them are in need of preventive maintenance soon or they will fall into poor condition.

The city will focus on the streets that are in need of preventive maintenance because it costs less money to repair when compared to the amount of money that must be poured into the worst streets. The council was provided with a list of streets scheduled for work this year. Councillors indicated that

Some Wollaston Beach Homeowners Impacted

Possible Solutions To Sewer Project Problems

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Some homeowners who have erected their property [illegible] Wollaston Beach can expect to hear of possible solutions from the state this week, according to a spokesperson for the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR).

Although the sewer project has plenty of upside for the City of Quincy, the plan is also causing friction with some homeowners who are being impacted by the work.

Beginning last fall, the state began replacing 11,600 feet of deteriorating sewers along Quincy Shore Drive and 11 adjacent streets.

ALICIA GARDNER

DOUG GUTRO

The project's goals include reducing sewage backup, upgrading utilities, repaving streets and replacing aging sidewalks.

But a byproduct of the project has caused quite a stir with some residents.

Over the past 80 years, homeowners have erected fences, stone walls and other personal property items in front of their homes and adjacent to the sidewalk for safety and aesthetic purposes.

Because of the work being done along the roadway, homeowners were forced to take down those items to make way for the project. Homeowners are learning that much of the land they thought they owned is actually state-owned.

According to DCR, these items are encroaching on state land. The Commonwealth's permit does not allow for this personal property to be reinstalled in its prior location. The contractor will reinstall items on the property line at no cost to the homeowner.

Some residents have lost five feet of lawn, while others may lose up to 20 feet of land in front of their homes. About 30 homeowners have been affected by the loss of land, and the number could grow as the project moves forward on adjacent streets.

After hearing the concerns of residents, DCR will present possible solutions to the community by the end of the week, according to Felix Browne, department spokesperson.

He said DCR Commissioner Katherine Abbott has asked her engineering staff "to develop some options that will work for the residents of Quincy Shore Drive and the DCR."

"She expects to make a decision by the end of this week," he said. "We will communicate those options to the community, possibly to the city councillors in that area. The residents' concerns have been taken under advisement."

DCR was prompted to act after Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner wrote a letter to state officials seeking answers. In a joint letter, the councillors asked DCR Commissioner Abbott to tour the area to gauge a better understanding of the situation.

"We believe property owners and all Quincy and South Shore residents who frequent Wollaston Beach deserve a commitment by the Commonwealth which brings about an intelligent and mutually desirable outcome for this stretch of roadway," the councillors wrote to Abbott.

Gutro and Gardner said they understand the underlying premise of the state's decision, but added that the impact of compliance will have "undesirable" and "unintended" consequences for both property owners and visitors who go to Wollaston Beach Reservation for recreational purposes.

"If the state does not change its mind the aesthetic appearance of the boulevard will not look great," said Gardner. "It won't be aesthetically pleasing, but we are making a last ditched effort."

Eric Stoeckel of 619 Quincy Shore Drive said the state told him to remove six-foot high by 80-feet-long hedges from his front yard to make way for the project. His home has been in the family for 40 years.

"Apparently, we've maintained this land for 40 years, even though it was owned by the state," said Stoeckel.

He questions who will maintain the land when the project is completed.

"History tells us the state's record for maintenance in this area hasn't been good," he said. "Certainly, the state won't maintain the land like myself and my neighbors."

In addition, the state has placed a Memorial Day deadline for all work to be completed on Quincy Shore Drive by contractors to make way for the start of the summer season. Work will continue on nearby streets during the summer.

Ideally, the state should allow homeowners to retain the land, said Gutro. But at a minimum, the state should enter into some sort of agreement detailing how it will maintain the land if it decides to retain it, he said.

"We are talking about little, narrow strips of land that the general public will not benefit from," said Gutro. "But it could dramatically alter the appearance of Quincy Shore Drive."

It is incumbent upon the state to make a decision as soon as possible, he said.

"You don't want to keep homeowners in limbo all summer in terms of whether they can put their personal property back or where the property lines are," he said.

National Commander On Visit Here

American Legion Aids Soldier Who Lost Both Hands In Iraq

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

American Legion National Commander John A. Brieden, III made Quincy his first stop on an official weekend visit to Massachusetts.

At Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post Friday afternoon, Brieden joined Past National Commander John (Jake) Comer of Quincy in presenting a $5,000 check to National Guard Sgt. Peter J. Damon of Brockton who lost both hands in an accident in Iraq.

The money was allocated from the American Legion Massachusetts Department's Family Support Network Fund and will go toward building a new home for Damon and his family.

Comer said an additional sum will be presented to help pay bills incurred by Damon's family while he was on duty in Iraq.

"It's what the Legion is all about," said Comer.

"Uncle Sam called him up. Uncle Sam needs to take car of him," said Brieden, who served in the U.S. Army as an Infantry Officer from 1972-1976 and is from Brenham, Texas.

On Oct. 21, 2003, Damon, 31, a member of the National Guard's 126th Aviation Battalion, was changing a tire on a Blackhawk helicopter when the tire exploded. The blast caused him to lose both hands and it killed 19-year-old Pfc. Peter Bueche of Alabama.

Damon had been away for two years at the time and now spends most of his time at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., where he is undergoing rehabilitation and getting fitted for prosthetic devices. Damon said he hopes to return home by June, though he is not sure if he will be able to.

Comer first heard of Damon while on a radio program in Brockton. The host put Comer in touch with John Gonsalves, a Wareham resident who was inspired by Damon's plight to start Homes for Troops. The program raises money to build houses for soldiers returning from Iraq.

Damon does not remember any of the accident. But it has not caused him or his wife, Jennifer, 27, to lose their indomitable spirits.

"There hasn't been a day when I've been moping around all day," Damon said.

Jennifer has managed to, while working full time at CVS in Brockton as a day-shift supervisor and photo lab manager, take care of the couple's children, Allura, 6, and Daniel, 22 months. She said she sees Peter about once a month.

"It's only as hard as you want to make it be for yourself," she said.

Damon said adjusting to his accident involves rethinking different ways to do everyday tasks. He even thought of a way to hold his son Daniel: he takes off the temporary prosthetic device he wears which consists of two hook-like fingers.

Brieden complimented Damon's upbeat attitude. He said he has visited many injured soldiers and said that like Damon, most maintain a positive outlook toward the war in Iraq, despite their injuries. He said media coverage of the war focuses too heavily on the casualties in Iraq and not enough on the progress the soldiers have made in the country.

Damon agreed.

"The Iraqi civilians were happy to have us there. All seemed pretty positive about the whole thing. . . . We did do the right thing in Iraq. We can't get out of there, that's for sure."

Comer also said he has visited soldiers and formed a similar impression.

"There isn't anyone who doesn't understand why they were there and what they were doing there," said Comer.

At the beginning of Friday night's presentation, Damon signed up for membership into the American Legion. Comer said the Legion would pay his, and Jennifer's, should she join the American Legion Auxiliary, dues for life.

Comer said he hopes to return to school in a year or so, depending upon how he feels. Brieden said the Legion will help him with job training.

"I can't even put it into words how great this feels for an organization like this to give us the extra support that we need," said Damon.

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"

(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

Some additional facts: Annual Percentage Rate (APR) applies to 1-2 family owner-occupied homes and assumes a maximum 80% loan-to-value and first mortgage position. A 15-year loan would be repaid in 180 equal monthly payments of $7.84 per $1000 borrowed. This rate is effective as of 04/02/04 and may vary by property type, loan amount, credit-worthiness and loan-to-value ratio. Other rates & terms are available, including 10-Year and 20-Year loans. ## Dates, Anyone?

Not much doing on the local political front but a few of these dates might be of interest to you.

Toying with the thought of running for state senate, state representative or Norfolk County commissioner or register of deeds? You have until Tuesday, April 27 to take out and file nomination papers.

You need to collect 300 names for senator, 150 for state representative and —1,000 for county office.

If you aren't a registered voter and want to have a say in the state primaries, you have to register by Wednesday, Aug. 25.

The deadline for changing party enrollment for the primaries is also Aug. 25.

Unregistered and planning to skip the primaries but intending to vote in the final state and presidential election? If so, you have until Wednesday, Oct. 13 to register.

The state primaries are Sept. 14. The final and big one is Nov. 2.

Time marches on.

WARD 6 COUNCILLOR Alicia Gardner has a Springtime Reception coming up Wednesday, April 28, 6-8 p.m. at the Adams, 1 Adams St.

GARDNER

A range of ticket prices: $25, $50, $75, $100.

They may be obtained by calling her husband, Bill Gardner, who is also her committee treasurer, at 617-328-9382.

Alicia is only Quincy's fourth woman councillor in the city's history but the second in Ward 6.

First woman elected was Edna Austin in 1943 more than a half century after Quincy became a city. Joanne Condon Walsh preceded Gardner as Ward 6 councillor in 1978. Pat Toland was elected at-large in 1981.

Four women councillors in 115 years.

But still no woman mayor.

JOE KEEGAN, who ran for the Ward 1 city council seat last year, has opened a law office on the second floor at 1495 Hancock St.

KEEGAN

Keegan, a member of the Quincy Police Department, graduated from the New England School of Law last year after four years studying nights and passed the Massachusetts Bar exam.

Keegan, making his first run for political office, won one of the two nominations in a five candidate preliminary election field for the Ward 1 seat vacated by Greg Hanley.

In the final election he lost to former councillor and old pro, Leo Kelly, by 268 votes.

"It was a great experience," Keegan says.

Will he run again?

"I think I will," he says. "Maybe for Ward 1 —I'll see what Leo does. Or for councillor at-large."

JOE LYDON, Ward 6's "Mr. Democrat," is a patient at Carney Hospital.

Long-time energetic chairman of the Ward 2 Democratic Committee, he has also been active in the AFL-CIO.

Joe is a recipient of the prestigious Dennis F. Ryan Award bestowed by fellow Democrats for outstanding service and living up to the principles of the Democratic party.

The award was named for the late Denny Ryan, former clerk magistrate at Quincy District Court and a role model for Quincy Democrats.

If you would like to send Joe a card — or drop in to visit — he's in Room 208. The hospital's address is: 2100 Dorchester Ave., Dorchester, MA 02124.

He would be happy to hear from you or to see you.

BENJAMIN

Mike will start work April 14 as the Commercial Director for Imagine 94fm in Manchester, England. He will be only the second American to hold an executive level position in the UK radio market.

Mike was at WJDA 14 years, rising through the ranks from salesman to sales manager and executive vice president/director.

He was only WJDA's third sales manager in the station's near 57-year history.

"That says something for the caliber of WJDA," he says.

The first sales manager was Ken Fallon who was with Jim Asher when he put WJDA on the air in September, 1947. The second was the late John Nicolson.

"We're going to miss Mike," says Jay Asher, son of the founder and present president-treasurer. "He's going to be hard to replace."

Asher and WJDA colleagues gave Benjamin a farewell party send-off the other night.

Mike muses that he thinks his biggest challenge in England will be to "find a good tuna sandwich at lunchtime and a cold beer at quitting time."

Good luck and good hunting, Mike.

Should Supreme Court Retain 'Under God' In Allegiance Pledge?

Does the phrase "under God" in the pledge of allegiance to the flag of the United States violate the First Amendment to the Constitution forbidding the establishment of a state religion?

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in California has ruled it does since the phrase "impermissibly takes a position with respect to the purely religious question of the existence and identity of God."

The ensuing controversy has driven a deep rift among Americans who have taken the question to the Supreme Court for a final decision which is expected to be handed down this spring.

| YES | NO |

The nine justices of the Supreme Court can affirm the appellate court decision or they can overrule it or they can refuse to rule and let it stand.

The Quincy Sun would like to know how you feel about the issue.

Simply put a check mark in the box of your choice — "Yes" to affirm the decision; "No" to overrule the appeals court — and send it to:

Remembering Those Who Gave Their Lives In Vietnam War

On Monday, March 29, the Vietnam Combat Veterans combined Armed Forces, Quincy Chapter honored the 47 Quincy men who lost their lives in the Vietnam War in a memorial service at the Vietnam Veteran's Clock Tower at Marina Bay.

As Joe Brooker said in The Quincy Sun, "It is very important that we recognize these 47 young men who gave the ultimate sacrifice — their lives — in defense of their country."

Three brothers who served in the Marine Corps in Vietnam, Mark, Taylor and Dana Ahern, were there paying tribute to those 47 Quincy heroes, including their own brother, Brian, who lost their lives in Vietnam.

Also remembered was Alan Brudno whose story was printed recently in the Patriot Ledger. Brudno spent seven and a half years as a POW in North Vietnamese prisons, including Hanoi Hilton. He came home at age 33 and committed suicide four months later.

For all these years his family has fought to get his name up on the Memorial Wall in Washington, D.C. His name will be added to that national shrine on Memorial Day this year. He always belonged on the Wall. I was glad to hear those kind words about Alan Brudno delivered by Jake Comer.

Someone once said our greatest heroes are ordinary people doing extraordinary things. Few set out to become heroes. It usually happens by accident.

As I stood by the Clock Tower hit by the cold wind off the waters of Marina Bay, I was talking with someone who turned out to be a former POW in Vietnam. He looked like everyone else there. No one walks around wearing "hero" pins or thinking they're heroes.

The Vietnam War era was a terrible chapter in American history. It produced many ordinary heroes who did their duty when called. There is a quote on the Clock Tower from President John F. Kennedy. I can't remember exactly what he said but it was about how America's greatness isn't in the men it produces, but in the men it honors and remembers.

Our greatest heroes are those who lost their lives for the rest of us and also those who risked their lives and made it home safely. Vietnam produced many heroes, both men and women, who shined brightly even in the darkest moments of a war.

Kudos to those who turned out at Marina Bay on March 29. Kudos to all those veterans who went to battle for the rest of us. Kudos also to Larry Norton who continues to serve his country in these times. We remember those whose names are on the Clock Tower and in our hearts.

Faith Lutheran Church Parking Spaces Limited

After 115 years in the neighborhood, Faith Lutheran Church is having its first parking problem. For years, for one hour every Sunday several cars have parked along Granite St., while attending church – no problem. Surprise, on March 14, several cars received a $15 parking ticket. This comes after giving to the weekly church offering as well as the tree will offering to Father Bill's.

The rules at the station aren't very consistent. One member has her ticket cleared after explaining the signs are not very clear, and another one calls and is told to pay the $15. To alleviate any further problems should we have parking stickers "FLC"? Otherwise, we are not encouraging church attendance so sorely needed in today's world.

Aren't we the same church that was recently opened up by Pastor Kimmell to draw on highlights as they fought the Carlson St. fire?

Opposes Computer, Video Game Store

I'm opposed to the proposed computer business and video game store at the former Abigail's Crossing storefront in Quincy Center.

Not only would this business be close to Quincy High School, but also Quincy College, the Crane Library and City Hall. This store would be a sharp, opposite contrast to the educational and civic atmosphere in the area.

In addition, the Quincy Center MBTA station was recently "cleaned up" of rowdiness and being a "hang-out." This proposed video game store will bring back this negative, unsafe environment not only around the MBTA station, but also the surrounding neighborhood.

I hope there's an ordinance that doesn't allow this type of business in any part of Quincy.

Display Our Flag To Thank Our Troops

Dear Fellow Americans,

In the next couple of weeks our military will be making the biggest troop exchange in the history of our country.

We think that our fellow Americans should hang up an American flag somewhere around their house. We must show our brave and strong soldiers how much we thank them for risking their lives to protect us from Saddam Hussein and Osama bin Laden.

If you don't have a flag, we suggest you buy one, make one or improvise; use red, white and blue ribbons, paint a sheet, or dress yourself or your car patriotically. When they return and others go to replace them, there should be parades and celebrations to honor them. It is the least we can do to show our support.

We ask that you pass on this challenge to every American you know.

Injunctions Granted In Shipyard Strike

This Week
1960
44 Years Ago

Federal Judge George C. Sweeney granted injunctions sought by the National Labor Relations Board ordering the Bethlehem Steel Co. to bargain in good faith and the striking Shipbuilding Workers Union to halt mass picketing at the Fore River Shipyard.

Meanwhile, Union President John J. Grogan made an offer to Bethlehem President Arthur B. Homer which he said would return 1,900 Fore River shipyard workers to their jobs while further efforts are made to end the three-month strike.

One of the proposals called for submission of the dispute to a presidential fact finding board, a suggestion that was rejected by Homer, citing the company's "opposition to any so-called fact finding board as a substitute for free collective bargaining."

Said Grogan to Homer:

"The adamant position taken and the bargaining methods pursued by some of your highly placed subordinates make it clear that no agreement can be reached unless the union abjectly surrenders.

"Our union's striking members and their families are not willing to sacrifice the heritage of American freedom."

QUARRY DUMPING HIT

The State Department of Public Health recommended that the city stop dumping its refuse in Hitchcock's Quarry, cover it with two feet of clean fill and find a new dumping area pending future construction of an incinerator.

The advice was issued after the department's Sanitary Engineer Harold Rose toured the quarry area, where the city had been dumping for some three and a half years, at the instigation of Quarry St. residents who complained of bugs, rats and stench.

PAYROLL STOLEN

Thieves entered the Wollaston Fire Station and stole a $1,571 payroll from the desk drawer of Capt. Francis Moriarty while the eight men were answering a false alarm at Pine and Granger Sts., eight blocks away.

Capt. Moriarty said he would arrange a $1,000 loan for a few days to tide the men over.

Beechwood Center Spring Fundraiser On April 22

Beechwood Community Life Center's 10th annual "Spring" fundraiser will be held April 22 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club with proceeds dedicated to the center's expanding public services.

"This is a difficult economic time for all of us, so the proceeds from this annual event are the most important than ever!" said Executive Director Sharon Beals.

"We are most appreciative of the commitment and energy of an enthusiastic Development Committee. Generous people and creative planning guarantee this year's event a "best ever."

Beals said she is grateful to a major underwriter Granite Links Golf Club at Quarry Hills and sponsors Bay State Federal Savings Charitable Foundation, Fallon Ambulance Service, and Sprague Energy.

Masters of ceremonies will be City Clerk Joseph Shea and Don Uvanitte.

Only 200 tickets will be sold. Tickets are available from committee members and at the Center.

For tickets, tables reservations or more information, contact a member of the Development Committee or call the Beechwood Center at 617-471-5712.

Dedicated To Former School Superintendent

Lincoln Hancock Media Center Renamed John Osterman Center

The Lincoln Hancock Community School Media Center was renamed The John A. Osterman Center on March 24, in memory of the former school superintendent and 35-year employee for the Quincy Public Schools.

During the most recent school committee meeting, held at the Lincoln Hancock School, school officials honored Osterman, citing his years of service and dedication to improving the education system in Quincy. He began his career as a 6th grade teacher and ended his service to the city as school superintendent.

During his 35-year tenure in the school system, Osterman was a teacher at a number of Quincy schools, including Daniel Webster, Great Hill, Quincy, Snug Harbor and Washington. He teaching career began in 1952.

Osterman was the director of personnel in 1969 and assistant superintendent for Personnel, Business and Plant in 1971.

He was the president of the Quincy Education Association from 1965-1966.

Osterman was the principal at the John Hancock and the Lincoln Schools in 1966.

He was the superintendent of schools from 1984 to 1987.

He retired in 1987 and died on Nov. 11, 2003.

Assistant School Supt. Carmen Mariano gave a moving speech at Osterman's tribute, calling him someone who "planted the seeds and watered the soil of what has been and what is now the Quincy Public Schools."

"How did he do that? By following the commandments. Whose commandments? His commandments.....'tell the truth,' 'do what's right' and 'be yourself'" Mariano told those in attendance.

"He never did anything to be thanked," Mariano said of Osterman. "He never did anything to be applauded, admired or respected. But he is. He is respected. He is admired and he is applauded."

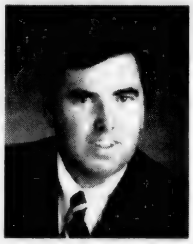
State Representative and Quincy School Committee member Ron Mariano said Osterman was a big influence on his life.

"This dedication was especially important to me because I knew John since I was a boy," said Mariano. "I stayed in touch with him throughout college. He had a tremendous influence on my life and the lives of everyone who grew up in Quincy Point."

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said renaming the media Center in Osterman's name was "truly fitting."

"This gentleman gave 35 years of his life to students, teachers, parents and administration in the City of Quincy," said DeCristofaro.

Dennis Carini, current principal at the Lincoln Hancock Community School, called Osterman "a positive influence on me personally and as an educator."



"Your guidance and friendship will never be forgotten," he said of Osterman.

Morrissey, Two From Quincy Picked For July DNC In Boston

By TOM HENSHAW

The "Bring It On!!" slate of delegates, fashioned by Sen. Michael Morrissey and pledged to cast their ballots for Sen. John Kerry at the July Democratic National Convention in Boston, swept to victory in the 10th District party caucuses in Plymouth Saturday.

Morrissey and two fellow residents of Quincy, Michael Berry and Janet Coughlin, were chosen as were John Walsh of Abington and Linda Broadford of Weymouth. Jim Cantwell of

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

Marshfield was named alternate.

"The coordinated effort and campaign by the slate featured mailings, personal contact, telephone calls and newspaper advertisements," said Morrissey.

"We ran the caucus effort like we would run a campaign," said Cantwell, who is chairman of the South Shore Democratic Caucus.

"They were clearly better organized," Sen. Robert O'Leary of Barnstable told the Cape Cod Times. O'Leary had rented buses in a vain effort to pack the caucus with as many Cape residents as possible.

Some 750 registered Democrats as of Feb. 11 gathered at Plymouth South High School to pick three male and two female delegates and one alternate to the DNC July 26-29 at the Fleet Center in Boston.

In all, 61 delegates were chosen from 10 Congressional districts around the state. Twenty at-large Democrats will be picked by the Democratic State Committee May 1 from among minority, disabled, elderly and gay members of the party.

Voting for female delegates went like this: Coughlin 534, Broadford 492, Thelma Goldstein of Falmouth 176, Meghan Buhr of Hingham 46, Johanna Murray of Chatham 16.

Voting for alternate delegate went like this: Cantwell 338, Fred Koed of Cohasset 126, Johnson 36, Mackey 22.

Berry, who is vice president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the "Bring It On!!" slate turned out almost 600 of the 750 Democrats who voted in the caucus.

"The gathering brought together people from all walks of life, including business owners, members of the building trades unions, teachers, firefighters, nurses and workers for the public and private sectors," said Morrissey.

"It included a wide variety of young and old members of the party," said Broadford. "People who have been active Democrats for over 50 years were present in large numbers."

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Cabbage, Kielbasa And Beans

With the cold weather we've had day after day, and eating in most of the time, I ran out of ideas until one day I was shopping with my husband, (he usually shops without me) and I bought a large head of Savoy cabbage with the thought of sautéing it for a side dish.

However, when we went into the meat section, I bought a Kielbasa Polish sausage which we sometimes grill outside in the summer. I decided to blend it with the cabbage for a great entree.

Cabbage, Kielbasa and Beans

1 large head of cabbage (I used Savoy, the curly kind but any kind will do.)
1 large Kielbasa sausage
2 cloves garlic
2-3 tablespoons olive oil
3 or 4 tablespoons tomato sauce
salt and pepper to taste
1 can navy or white cannellini beans

Cabbage takes a while to cook, begin to sauté it with the hot oil and garlic, then after a few minutes, cover and add the tomato sauce and a little water.

I added a bit of water every once in a while until the cabbage was thoroughly cooked. The addition of the tomato sauce is optional, however, it gives the cabbage a vibrant pink-ish look.

While this is cooking, put little holes sporadically in the sausage with the point of a knife, and place it in a baking pan with a cup of water on the bottom.

Bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven until done.

After it cools a bit, cut the Kielbasa in small pieces and place it with the cabbage. Add the beans and cook until blended.

It is so delicious, that you will want to eat any leftover the next day!

Quincy Community Action Programs Announces New Apppointments

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) has hired Robert T. Coneys as the agency's Director of Administration and Finance and Trish Appert as Director of Operations.

"I am thrilled to have these two talented people join QCAP's Administrative Management Team, said Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo. "With these appointments, QCAP is has a full contingent in our administrative department and better able than ever to keep moving forward and be responsive to the needs of our constituents and the community."

Coneys, a CPA, brings over 30 years of accounting and financial management experience in the private and not for profit sectors to QCAP.

In addition to providing financial management consulting services to a variety of organizations, Coneys served for six years as Chief Financial Officer of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, a Boston-based not for profit organization. Prior to that, he was the Chief Financial Officer at the National Fire Protection Association in Quincy.

ROBERT CONEYS

TRISH APPERT

For the past three and a half years, Appert has been QCAP's Housing Program Director, managing the comprehensive array of housing services QCAP provides in Quincy and surrounding Norfolk County communities. Under her guidance, QCAP's Housing Program has grown in scope, and gained local and national recognition for high quality service.

Prior to her work at QCAP, Appert managed housing and properties at Bay Cove Human Services, Inc. She brings over 14 years of experience, both as a funder and administrator, and as a direct service provider to her new role.

QCAP is a private, non-profit organization that provides a variety of services to low and moderate-income people to help them improve the quality of their lives and achieve self-sufficiency.

The agency was established in 1965 as one of Massachusetts' 25 Community Action Agencies (CAAs) and was designated to address the causes and consequences of poverty in Quincy. Since then the agency has grown and now provides assistance to 19,000 unduplicated individuals annually in Quincy and surrounding South Shore communities.

Cleaner, Greener Quincy Project Set For May 1

The 15th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy project will be held Saturday, May 1, Mayor William Phelan announces.

The cleanup will occur at beaches, marshes, neighborhood parks, playgrounds, schoolyards and open space areas city-wide from 9 a.m. to noon. Rain date is Saturday, May 8.

The annual cleanup draws close to 1,500 volunteers each year. Last year, more than 20 various public areas were designated as cleanup sites, many at the suggestion of residents who worked together in targeting areas in their neighborhoods ultimately improving the aesthetic conditions of their surroundings.

"It gives me great pride to witness the tremendous community spirit that makes Cleaner, Greener Quincy such a success," Phelan said. "This event is a testament to what we can accomplish by working together. The long-term rewards of this one-day event not only translate into a more aesthetically pleasing environment, but offer a chance to strengthen bonds in our neighborhoods and instill the importance of stewardship of our parks, beaches and open spaces in our youngsters."

Following the cleanup, Phelan will host an appreciation barbecue for all volunteers at the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex. The barbecue will last from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

Phelan urges those who wish to participate in Cleaner, Greener Quincy to organize a team of volunteers and designate a cleanup site. The Park Department will support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools including rakes, brooms, gloves and other equipment.

All volunteers will also receive a Cleaner, Greener Quincy T-shirt.

Those that wish to volunteer or have questions about the program, may call the Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Homeland Defense Center Promoted By Delahunt

A homeland defense center on Cape Cod as envisioned by Congressman William Delahunt and Major Gen. George Keefe of the Massachusetts National Guard has moved a step closer to reality.

AMEC, an international engineering services company, this week presented the findings of an eight-month feasibility study to senior leaders of the State National Guard for their review.

The study was funded by a $1 million appropriation obtained by Delahunt.

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

The study examined the joint military requirements for homeland defense training that could be conducted at the Massachusetts Military Reservation on Cape Cod and identified military and civilian needs.

The National Guard has scheduled a public information meeting to be held in concert with the Military Reservation Civilian Community Council Wednesday, April 28, at 5 p.m. in Mashpee.

Mad Science Workshop Registration At Library

Registration is underway for the Mad Science Workshop at the Thomas Crane Public Library on Washington Street, Quincy Center.

Two sessions will be held Saturday, April 17. The first, at 10 a.m., is for ages 7 and older. The second, at 11:15 a.m., is for ages 4 to 6.

Registration is required and limited to Quincy residents.

Participants will learn the basic parts that make up a rocket and explore the three points of a rocket flight with a balloon-rocket race.

They will also learn about pre-launch safety procedures and witness the launch of a model rocket.

Roche Brothers To Raise Funds For Senior Night Out

An evening of shopping at Roche Brothers supermarket on Falls Boulevard, Quincy Point, this evening will help fill the coffers of Quincy High School's Senior Night Out.

Parents of the students are encouraged to shop at the supermarket tonight (Thursday) from 5 to 8 p.m., then donate their sales slips to the volunteer parents to help support the event.

Senior Night Out is a safe and entertaining all-night event got graduating seniors after the Senior Prom.

All-Out Effort To Boost Tourism Planned

will improve our local economy without spending city tax dollars."

In the past, the city focused on "event driven" occasions, such as memorials or commemorations, rather than focusing on the big picture, which includes promoting local businesses, according to Edward Fleming, chairman of QTE's board of directors. Business owners looking to move to the city would see more incentives if they are the beneficiaries of tourism, he said.

"Not only do we want people coming to see the historical sites, but we want people to utilize our local businesses, like the Best Western Adams Inn or Marina Bay shops," said Fleming.

Phelan has taken the lead in trying to coordinate efforts and harness the economic benefits from this summer's Democratic National Convention (DNC). In the coming months, QTE will work with a Phelan-led task force and Congressman William Delahunt's office to come up with plans to attract visitors, delegates and elected officials from the convention. An event or two will be planned during the week of the convention and tourism officials will be looking for ways to transport visitors to the city.

The group has also been in contact with the Boston 2004 Host Committee to ensure that Quincy is listed in a binder full of locations and events in the Greater Boston area, according to Dave Murphy, the mayor's representative on QTE.

"If you can make a favorable impression on people coming in, then you have made an investment for the future," said Murphy. "We have put ourselves on the map, so to speak."

Cash, Grant Infusions

Money isn't everything, but it does help. And QTE is increasing its chances of success with a steady stream of cash.

The city council recently approved the release of $55,000 to the agency from the hotel/motel tax account. Under a law enacted in 2001, the city sets aside 15 percent of the taxes paid by guests at the city's hotels and motels rooms for tourism.

QTE recently secured a $25,000 grant for each of the next three years from the Greater Boston Convention & Visitors Bureau. Fleming is also optimistic about securing funds this year from the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority.

In addition to grant monies, QTE has received support from Phelan, who is using the power of the mayor's office to raise funds for tourism. Last year, "The Mayor's Garden Party" raised about $18,000 for tourism. He is planning another event this year.

In addition, Phelan is looking into the possibility of holding an annual golf tournament at Granite Links Golf Course to raise funds for tourism. That event is still in the planning stages, according to Murphy.

These funds will go toward a wide variety of initiatives, such as the hiring of an Executive Director, the production of marketing literature, such as brochures and rack cards, maps, a tourism logo and a website.

Fleming said the group will work with city officials to find a permanent flow of funds from the city's hotel/motel tax.

A Transportation Link

Fleming points to the idea of a "transportation link" as integral piece of the puzzle.

Moving visitors from one area to another poses a great challenge. If people cannot get to the sites then the entire tourism initiative remains dead in the water.

Currently, the National Park Service operates one trolley, which traverses some of the city's most famous historical sites, such as the Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St. and the Adams Mansion on Adams St.

The National Park Service Alternative Transportation program provided an $800,000 grant for the purchase of three trolleys this year, according to Marianne Peak, superintendent of the National Historical Park. An additional $465,000 was secured by Delahunt's office to operate the trolleys for at least two years, according to Corinne Young, district representative from Delahunt's office.

But QTE, with the help of the National Park Service and Delahunt's office, will eventually expand the trolley service to include stops at local hotels, Marina Bay, Harbor Express and the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, among other places.

Two trolleys will be moving visitors around the city this season, but the possibility of having two more online is a distinct possibility, said Peak.

The National Park Service, Delahunt's office and QTE is working with Brush Hill Tours to enhance trolley service for the parks and city. Eventually, the trolleys will connect not only the Adams Birthplaces, but also Harbor Express, Quincy's hotels, Marina Bay and other points of interest.

"Quincy is going to have a first class tourism/transportation system," said Young. "It's quite exciting."

Since Harbor Express recently negotiated a new contract to service the Boston Harbor Islands, the new travel routes will reconnect the community to its coastal heritage, according to Young. In the future, visitors will be able to visit many of Quincy's historical sites without using their automobiles, said Young. For example, visitors will get picked up in front of their hotel, visit Marina Bay or the Harbor Islands, and then return to their hotel, with trolley transportation and Harbor Express. Other visitors will be able to take the MBTA to Quincy Center, board a trolley and visit Quincy's historical sites, again without an automobile.

"Eventually, this will be a completely integrated system," said Young.

Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park, said teaming up with QTE and Delahunt's office will prove to be a boon for the city's tourism industry.

"If we can increase the number of trolley trips we will provide a better experience for people," she said. "People want to get out and look around, not worry about when they have to get back for the return trip."

Peak said it is her goal to have at least three trolleys running this summer. Specific trolley routes are still being ironed out, said Peak.

Another $2.5 million has been earmarked for the Boston Harbor Islands marine infrastructure, to build and repair piers, moorings and floats, said Young. This will make it easier for Harbor Express and ferrys to dock and visit the Islands, she said.

Kiosks

With the help of QTE member South Coastal Bank, the group will soon unveil a new kiosk that will be located on Hancock St. near City Hall. The new kiosk will feature handsome historical plaques with portraits of Quincy's favorite sons, John Adams and John Quincy Adams. The plaques will contain a list of the city's landmarks, as well as visitor attractions, local restaurants and retail shops. Murphy credits Kristen Priscella, former employee in the mayor's office, with laying the groundwork for the new kiosk.

The new kiosk will replace the white kiosk on McIntyre Mall.

Murphy said it has not been determined whether the new kiosk will be staffed on a full-time basis.

Executive Director: Putting It All Together

QTE's most valuable player is still a mystery. This Spring, the board hopes to hire an executive director - a jack-of-all-trades community liaison, figurehead, and manager entrusted with tapping all available resources to boost tourism in the city.

Current board members volunteer their time on a part-time basis, so there is a need for a director who can devote a significant amount of time to seeing it all come together, according to Fleming.

"The executive director is going to be the key player in the organization," he said.

Some of the executive director's tasks may include conducting site visits to other communities, tapping state and federal government for funding, and networking with other tourism agencies to ensure the word gets out about Quincy. The executive director will also work with the group's subcommittees. Fleming said the position of executive director position will be modeled after similar jobs in Plymouth and Salem.

QTE is developing a job description for the position and expects to advertise it next month, he said.

Phelan said the hiring of an executive director is an important step in the progression of the city's tourism efforts.

"The board has developed many positive ideas that now need to be implemented," said Phelan. "We need a person that can dedicate the time it takes to establish key professional relationships, write grants, raise funds and oversee all that it takes to launch a successful tourism campaign."

Elections For Neighborhood Representatives To Board Of Directors To Be Held

QCAP Annual Meeting, Awards Ceremony Tonight

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) Board of Directors will induct new board members and officers at its 39th Annual Meeting and Awards Ceremony tonight (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

The meeting is open to the community.

As one of Massachusetts' 25 Community Action Agencies (CAAs), one-third of QCAP's board is comprised of low-income Quincy residents. These representatives are elected to serve on QCAP's board by low-income residents of the Atlantic, Germantown, Quincy Point and Southwest neighborhoods of the City of Quincy.

Residents of these neighborhoods, who are at or below 175% of the poverty level, are encouraged to vote in the QCAP board election.

Voting sites include the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, HRCI office on Figurehead Lane, the Germantown Neighborhood Center, the Fore River Clubhouse and the Southwest Community Center at 388 Granite St.

The Board of Directors will also recognize several community members at the meeting with Extra Mile Community Awards for their dedicated support of QCAP, our clients and the community. This year's award recipients include Quincy City Councillor Joseph G. Finn, Quincy resident Valerie Palmer, and Head Start volunteer Anne Morrison.

In addition, Susan Fitzpatrick, QCAP's main office Secretary, will be presented the Lois Craig Memorial Employee Award, for her exemplary service to the agency, clients and community.

Head Start Education Specialist, Nancy Botelho and Elder Advocate, Nancy Barry, will be recognized for their 20 Years of Service to QCAP and families, individuals and children

"This event is a wonderful opportunity for QCAP to celebrate with the community, the achievements and dedication of our employees and community partners. These people support our mission, and enable us to provide low-income families and individuals with opportunities for self-sufficiency," said Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo.

To attend QCAP's 39th Annual Meeting, or for more information on the board election, contact Susan Fitzpatrick at (617) 479-8181 extension 100.

Human Rights Video, Discussion April 13

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI) in collaboration with the Quincy Human Rights Commission, will co-host a free reception open to the public to screen and discuss a Cantonese/English video entitled "Human Rights and You" Tuesday, April 13 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library's Community Room.

The program addresses human rights through a series of interviews with Robert Leikind, executive director of the Anti-Defamation League; Edward Grogan, chairman, Quincy Human Rights Commission; Ying Choi Chiu, vice chairman, Chinese Progressive Association and David Yi Zou, board member of the Quincy Human Rights Commission and QARI.

The project was made possible with a grant from the Anti-Defamation League through the Quincy Human Rights Commission with matching support from Rogers Jewelry and the Quincy Jewish Committee.

'The Trial of Anthony Burns'

Students Learn About Slave Case

Nearly 80 high school students were able to turn back the hands of time - at least for a day - when they witnessed the trial of runaway slave Anthony Burns at Quincy District Court last week.

Students watched history unfold, but were also afforded the opportunity to have their say in the matter. They viewed an interactive play, "The Trial of Anthony Burns," a performance put on by the Arts and Law program, which falls under the umbrella of Discovering Justice: the James D. St. Clair Court Education Project, a non-profit organization located at the John Joseph Moakley Federal Courthouse in Boston.

The play, performed by actors from Boston's Theatre Espresso and based on true events, is set in 1854.

Anthony Burns escapes from a Virginia plantation and ends up in the Boston area. He is arrested and tried by Judge Edward G. Loring, who upholds the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850 by ruling that Burns must continue to be a slave.

Loring's decision was unpopular at the time, and the Massachusetts Legislature removed him from office because of public outrage over his actions.

But students were able to turn back the clock and make their own decision. They played the part of the Senate and proceeded to keep the judge in office, going against history.

Before casting their vote, student were afforded the opportunity of asking questions of the characters.

Most students said they disagreed with the Fugitive Slave Act, but realized Judge Loring was simply doing his job to uphold the laws.

After students reached their verdict, Judge Mark S. Coven, the presiding justice at Quincy District Court, fielded questions about the difficulties of making decisions that go against an individual's moral principles. Coven also explained the roles of judges and the public in cases such as this.

ACTORS FROM BOSTON'S Theatre Espresso, engage in the play, "The Trial of Anthony Burns" recently at Quincy District Court. About 80 high school students participated in the interactive play, which was produced by Discovering Justice, a non-profit organization based at the Moakley Federal Courthouse in Boston.

Quincy 2000 Meeting With Marina Bay, N.Q. Businesses

Quincy 2000 Collaborative, Quincy's public/private economic development organization, is holding business partnership meetings for all businesses in the Squantum/Marina Bay and North Quincy areas.

The role of these affiliate organizations is to develop programs and resources to strengthen the economic viability and vitality of the business area, and the businesses that reside within them, said Dean Rizzo, executive director.

The Squantum/Marina Bay meeting will be held today (Thursday) from 8 to 9 a.m. at the Marina Bay Skilled Nursing & Rehabilitation Center, 2 Seaport Drive in Marina Bay.

The North Quincy meeting will be Thursday, April 15, from 8 to 9 a.m. at the North Quincy Public Library, Hancock Street.

Those wishing to attend one of the meetings are asked to call 617-984-5717, ext. 2.

Quincy 2000 Collaborative encourages all business owners, employees and interested individuals to attend the meeting to learn how easy it is to partner in the growth and prosperity of your business district, Rizzo said.

Project Bread Walk For Hunger May 2

Project Bread will have their 36th annual Walk for Hunger May 2, dedicated to alleviating, preventing, and ultimately ending hunger in Massachusetts.

Proceeds help fund emergency food programs across Massachusetts including the Quincy Community Action Program.

"We have seen an increase of 29 percent in the number of people coming to us for help," said Tracy Donahue, director of planning and development at Quincy Community Action. "We are seeing a lot of families, unemployed and underemployed people, and the elderly. The grant provided by Project Bread and The Walk for Hunger is so important to our program. We are very proud of the relationship that we have with Project Bread."

Over the past three decades, Walkers have raised more than $50 million to help hungry individuals and their families. This year, 40,000 people are expected to take part walking with friends, family or as part of a team. Participants can walk all or part of the scenic 20-mile route, which weaves through Boston, Brookline, Newton, Watertown and Cambridge.

Registration will take place Sunday, May 2 from 7 to 9 a.m. at the Boston Common. The MBTA will offer free rides to Walkers with registration forms between 6 and 9 a.m. on any subway, bus or commuter train.

For more information, call Project Bread at 617-723-5000 or on-line at www.projectbread.org.

Plymouth Republican Michael Jones Challenging Delahunt

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Republican Michael Jones is putting Congressman William Delahunt on notice: This will not be another ordinary challenge.

Since 1998, Delahunt has defended his 10th Congressional District seat three times against challengers who couldn't muster much more than 30 percent of the vote.

Things will be different this time, according to Jones. The 31-year old Plymouth resident said he is well-connected, well-funded and promoting fresh ideas. Jones describes Delahunt as "too liberal" for the district, which encompasses the South Shore, the Cape and the Islands.

"I am running because we are represented by a member of Congress who is completely out of step with the mainstream of the district," Jones says of Delahunt. "I don't feel that his voting record represents the mainstream values of the district."

Jones, who started his political career as a 16-year-old member of the Orleans Republican Town Committee, is founder of Capitol Capital Group, a lobbying, consulting and public relations firm. The business has represented companies that train air traffic controllers, provide security to nuclear power plants and governmental facilities and promote United States business interests in the Middle East. He earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science from American University in Washington, D.C.

Jones is the U.S. Representative of the American Business Council of the Gulf Countries, an affiliate of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. The council represents more than 700 U.S. companies doing business in the Persian Gulf and focuses on promoting U.S. trade and exports.

MICHAEL JONES

He was the former executive director of Republicans Abroad, an organization that promotes absentee voting to more than 6,000,000 Americans residing overseas.

In order to pull out a victory, Jones said he must make a strong showing in Quincy, Barnstable and Plymouth. Two Democrat strongholds, Brockton and Fall River, are no longer part of the district and could boost Jones' campaign. Approximately 50 percent of registered voters in the district are designated as unenrolled, which means the people are basically "independent-minded," he said.

Over the past seven months, Jones has raised more than $120,000, which he said pales in comparison to Delahunt's $1.7 million war chest. Jones has set his sights on raising $1 million by the election. Mass mailings, radio spots and door knocking will be part of his campaign strategy, he said.

"Delahunt feels as though he can't be beaten and is not beholden to his constituents," said Jones. "To bolster his campaign, he has received assistance from prominent Republicans such as Mass. Sen. Susan Collins and former White House Chief of Staff John H. Sununu who spoke at recent fundraisers.

As the campaign kicks into high gear he expects help from Gov. Mitt Romney and the Republican State and National Committees.

Demographic shifts and voting trends also strengthen Jones' argument that he will put up a good fight. In the 2002 race for governor, Mitt Romney defeated Shannon O'Brien by more than 20 points in nearly half of 40 towns in the district.

The 10th Congressional District is also home to a large number of Republican state officeholders compared with other parts of the states. Of 23 Republicans in the State House, six have part or all of their districts within the 10th.

On the issues, Jones says he and Delahunt couldn't be further apart. He criticizes the incumbent for not supporting President George W. Bush on initiatives such as a ban on partial birth abortions and tax cuts designed to stimulate the economy.

He also faults Delahunt's voting record on the war on terrorism, citing his vote against authorizing Bush to use military force in Iraq, and the subsequent $87 billion appropriation to fund the war.

"The American troops in Iraq are giving those people a chance at a dignified future," said Jones. "Their work is profound and important to the future of the human race."

Jones supports a ban on partial birth abortion but does not want to see a Constitutional Amendment banning all abortions because "Roe versus Wade is the law of the land."

Personally, he does not support gay marriage but would like to see voters determine the outcome.

"I don't care what people do in their own homes, but at the end of the day this should be up to the voters," he said. "People will feel cheated unless we have a vote by the general population."

In addition, he supports the recently passed Medicare prescription drug program for senior citizens. Delahunt voted against it.

Jones said he would ask Delahunt to engage in a series of debates.

"If we can debate everyday from now until Election Day, I'm all for it," he said.

Jones is married to his wife of nearly two years, Brett. The couple do not have children.

Steering Committee Meets On Fire Study Proposals

A steering committee charged with drafting a final proposal for a comprehensive fire study will meet again today (Thursday), according to committee members.

The committee began its work last Tuesday when Fire Chief Paul O'Connell called a first meeting. Members are reviewing an RFP (request for proposals), which will guide a fire study of the department's long-term staffing, space and equipment needs.

"I thought it was a productive first meeting," said Tom Bowes, firefighters' union president and committee member. "We want to make sure it's a comprehensive study, so let's do it once and do it right. I look forward to working with the city on this."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, also a member of the steering committee, said he hopes the group can present a "workable product" to the city council's oversight committee at its April 12 meeting.

"It is my hope we will have a product to present to the oversight committee," said Coughlin. "I think we will get there."

Bowes, Coughlin, O'Connell and Dave Murphy, the mayor's representative, attended the meeting. Coughlin said he hopes a resident or community activist will serve as the fifth member of the committee.

QTA Suggests 'Tax-Targeting' For Fiscal 2005 City Budget

"The Quincy Taxpayers Association (QTA) has called upon Mayor William Phelan and the City Council to develop a municipal budget for Fiscal 2005 "with a tax target in mind."

Specifically, said Alan Cousin, president of the QTA, the group would like to see a budget that would not increase the average annual property tax bill on a single-family home by more than 5 percent.

Cousin released an analysis showing that the city could indeed budget with a tax target in mind, even though it would require assumptions about other revenue growth and growth in property assessments.

The assumptions of future revenues listed by the QTA include:

• New growth in the tax levy to remain level at $3.6 million.

• Local receipts to increase 5.9 percent to $44,666,844, the overall trend since 2000.

• State aid to increase very slightly to $33,225,625 based on Gov. Mitt Romney's proposal for a 2.3 percent boost in aid to education.

"They make assumptions every year anyway," said Cousin.

"As of now, they draw up budgets based on how much they can get from taxpayers. We simply say they should budget based on what's fair for taxpayers to have to pay."

"Under Proposition 2 1/2," the QTA calculated, "the city can spend up to $216,191,173 in Fiscal 2005. This spending creates a 13.5 percent increase in the annual tax on the average single family home.

"Assuming total residential valuations continue the long-term trend of increasing 14 percent a year, and total commercial valuations decline 7 percent a year, if the city wanted to limit the tax increase on the average single family home to 5 percent in Fiscal 2005, the budget could not be more than $205,648,635.

"(This would be) a decrease of four-tenths of one percent from this year's total of stated tax levy, local receipts and state aid. But this figure would have to include all appropriations for the year, not just the budget proposed in May and adopted in June."

If current trends in other revenues and property valuations continue, Cousin said, such tax-targeted budgeting would probably result in a level-funded budget.

"That sounds harsh," he continued, "but it might be the fairest way to ensure sustainable taxation anyway to level-fund every department."

Cousin said he feels that residential values will continue to skyrocket because of a shortage of housing and developable land, while commercial property value will continue to languish or decline.

"In that case," he said, "there is no other way to stop unsustainable tax increases than to budget with a modest tax target in mind."

Cousin called Mayor Phelan's plan to apply $1.133 million from the sale or lease of Saville Hall to reduce next year's tax levy "a very mixed blessing for taxpayers."

"It would mean," he added, "that the average single-family homeowner might save $34 in Fiscal 2005 but would pay more than double that in added taxes the next year" if the city continues to spend all the money it can get.

It's National Alcohol Screening Day Today

Bay State Community Services, 13 Temple St., Quincy Center, will host National Alcohol Screening Day today (Thursday) from 12 noon to 3 p.m. Admission is free.

The day is an effort to raise public awareness of the consequence of at-risk drinking and alcohol's effect on the general health. Educational materials will be available.

For those who wish to take advantage of the free alcohol screening, alcohol assessment forms will also be available and health professionals will be on hand to give advice.

For further information, contact Bill Spinks, director of Prevention and Intervention Services at 617-471-8400, extension 124.

Topics to be discussed will include:

- What Neighborhood Housing Services can offer in assistance
- Credit awareness
- Introduction to the mortgage process.

To register, call (617) 770-2227 x 31, or visit the website www.neighborhoodhousing.org

Don't Skimp On Grass Seed

ON THE HOUSE
BY PAUL O'MALLEY

Answers To Some Common Questions From Homeowners

Question: Why is it that I have to paint my front stairs every year?

Answer: It may not neccessarily be your paint's fault even if you're using the best paint on the market. Here's why. I don't care how good a paint is or claims to be. Any outside floor surface will need repainting or staining yearly, on areas that are heavily treaded on.

Most paints and stains will hold up pretty good to weather alone. It's the constant foot traffic that will cause the real wear and tear. Also you want to make sure you are using a paint designed for floors. Rain water dripping from a door awning or overhang will also wear away paint pretty quickly.

What's the best way to repair a bare spot on my lawn?

It's not as easy as just throwing down grass seed. It's not that difficult but there are a few important steps.

Let's say for example you have a 3x3 spot you want to fix. First get a good quality grass seed, one that will be mostly perrenial seed. Careful not to get the quick grow kind, unless that's what you want. Quick growing grass seed is all annual. It will come up quick but it won't come back next year.

I would loosen the soil at least 2-3 inches deep. Apply the seed and don't skimp. You don't want to have to do this again. Throw down a fist full of seed. Then take a metal rake and stir that seed into the soil. Repeat this two more times. Don't worry, grass seed doesn't need light to germinate. Overseeding insures protection from any runoff from heavey rain and birds.

By the way, heavy rainfall is not good for grass seeding. So if heavy rain is expected, hold off. Seed only needs to be slightly damp, not soaked.

After you have planted the seed, lightly tamp the patch with your foot or the back of a shovel. Then apply a thin coating of starter fertilizer. 10/10/10 fertilizer which is an all purpose food also makes a great starter fertilizer. It really does make a difference if you don't use a fertilzer. Results will suffer if you don't.

And remember that applied properly, a good quality seed will take maybe two weeks to show some life. The best time to reseed is actually in the fall but the spring will work too. The reason is if you seed in the fall which is usually damp, the seed will germinate, have the winter, all of spring and part of a summer to get mature enough to handle a drought.

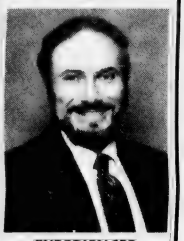
If you seed in April or May, the young grass could face a severe drought and not have a developed root system to handle it.

New grass planted in the spring will require more watering in a drought. Being generous with the seed will insure great results. The thicker the lawn, the less room for weeds.

When people tell me about their lawn bare spot, the first thing I think of is what caused it. If you find birds and skunks are digging up you lawn, chances are you have grubs. The way to test is to get a hand trowel and lift up some healthy grass near a dead spot. If you find what looks like tiny shrimp like insects in the root system, that's grubs. It can be controlled with lawn fertilizers with grub control.

If let go unchecked, they can destroy a lawn quickly.

Tip of the week: Whenever you need an item especially a plumbing item and you're not sure what you call it, when at all possible bring it to your hardware store. Don't feel silly. We actually love it when people can bring in the item there looking for. It takes any guess work we might have to do out the the picture and allows us to get you the right part.



Paul O'Malley is the owner of O'Malley Ace Hardware, 53 Billings Rd., North Quincy. If you need an answer to a common house hold question, call him at 617-773-0808.

Conway & Co. Golf Tournament To Benefit Homeless Coalition

The Jack Conway & Co. realty firm announces it will sponsor the 20th annual charity golf tournament to benefit the MainSpring Coalition for the Homeless on Thursday, June 10 at the Easton Country Club.

Contributors may sponsor a hole for $250, a tee or a green for $125, a cart for $25, or can donate raffle prizes as a way to participate in the event, said Denis Lilla, Conway's vice president of sales.

To participate, golfers donate $110, which includes the cost of the greens fee, golf cart, a luncheon buffet and tournament prizes.

Since 1985, Conway's annual tournament has raised more than $200,000 to help defray operating costs of the MainSpring shelter in Brockton and Conway House in Middleboro.

This year's goal is to raise more than $15,000 for homeless services in Southeastern Massachusetts.

Founded in 1982, MainSpring House provides shelter, food, clothing and services such as adult education courses, case management and referrals to individuals and families in need. The Conway House, MainSpring's facility for homeless families in Middleboro, was named in honor of Jack and Patti Conway to recognize their support of the organization.

A third site is under development in Stoughton.

Registration for the MainSpring House Charity Open begins at 7:30 a.m., and play opens at 8:00 a.m. with a shotgun start.

To participate, sponsor a green, tee, or cart, or to make a charitable donation, call Denis Lilla, (781) 871-0080, ext. 327.

The one-day workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

Topics include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals.

A $10 fee per person covers the cost of workshop materials. Advanced registration is required. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Finding Money For Your Home

(NAPS) — If you're among the many prospective homeowners lost in a welter of ARMs, FRMs, caps, bridge loans, PITIs and balloon payments, here are a few facts on financing that may help.

For starters, you should know than an ARM (adjustable-rate mortgage) is a loan with an interest rate that is periodically adjusted to reflect changes in a specified financial index.

A FRM is a fixed-rate mortgage, a home loan with an interest rate that will remain at a "fixed" or "steady" rate for the term of the loan. About 75 percent of all home mortgages have fixed rates.

A balloon payment, alas, is not nearly as much fun as it sounds. It's the final lump sum payment due at the end of a balloon mortgage. On the other hand, PITI is not as pathetic as it sounds. PITI stands for Principal, Interest, Taxes, Insurance. When a buyer applies for a loan, the lender will calculate the principal, interest, taxes and insurance. The figure is designed to represent the borrower's actual monthly mortgage-related expenses.

As for caps and bridges, they have nothing to do with teeth. A cap is a limit on how much the interest rate on an ARM loan can change in an adjustment period or over the life of the loan. For example, if your adjustment cap is 1 percent and your current rate is 6 percent, then your new rate will be between 5 and 7 percent. A cap payment is a limit to how much monthly payments on an ARM can change at each adjustment period. A bridge loan, also known as a swing loan, lets a borrower get financing for a new house before his present house is sold. The present home is used as collateral.

Other terms it may pay you to understand include:

• Adjustment period: The amount of time between interest rate adjustments in an adjustable-rate mortgage.

• Amortization: The process of paying the principal and interest on a loan through regularly scheduled installments.

• Compound interest: The interest paid on the principal balance in a mortgage and on the accrued and unpaid interest of the loan.

• Estimated tax savings: The amount of a tax a renter would save by owning a home based on property taxes and interest paid.

• Mortgage-interest deduction: The tax write-off the IRS allows most owners to claim for interest paid on real estate loans.

• Variable rate mortgage: A loan with an interest rate that hinges on factors such as the rate paid on bank certificates and Treasury bills.

Furniture Designs

Antiques discovered on the PBS series "Antiques Roadshow," were adapted by Pulaski Furniture for an eclectic 60-piece collection that includes bedroom, dining room, curio cabinets, grandfather clocks and accent pieces.

Century Sun Valley was inspired by the furniture the company's designers found in elegant country homes throughout the American West.

Senate Adopts Senior Tax Relief Package

The State Senate has passed legislation aimed at making it easier for certain senior citizens caught in spiraling real estate values to obtain a reduction in their property tax bills.

"This legislation could help many seniors on fixed incomes who face skyrocketing property tax bills as communities cope with budget outs and property assessments escalate," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

The legislation makes it easier for elderly citizens to qualify for state tax credits and creates new opportunities for communities to offer property tax exemptions to seniors.

The tax breaks and credits for which senior citizens could be eligible could mean the difference between them remaining in their home or being forced to sell, he said.

Cities and towns have the authority to help if they choose to allow seniors to take advantage of the programs in the legislation.

Programs contained in the legislation include:

• A local option to offer to seniors 70 or older a new property tax exemption equal to 10 percent of the average assessed value of property in a community. The exemption could also be increased to 20 percent.

• Cities and town are allowed to set a lower interest rate on any property taxes a senior might postpone paying until the property is sold. Currently the statutory rate is 8 percent.

• An increase from $750 to $1,000 the limit on the amount of property taxes that may be "worked off" by seniors through volunteering the communities.

• Seniors living on fixed incomes are eligible for a state income tax credit that is triggered when property taxes exceed 10 percent of their incomes. The eligibility limit rises from $432,000 to $600,000.

Beginning Jan. 1, the new assessed property value limit will be indexed to housing values rather than inflation.

The legislation also includes an amendment filed by Morrissey to reduce the filing fee with the State Appellate Tax Board for low income senior citizens from $100 to $25. Qualifications include a household income of 300 percent or less of the poverty level and property valued at $500,000 or less.

The legislation now goes to the House for further approval.

Michael Benjamin Leaving WJDA For Radio Post In England

MICHAEL BENJAMIN

Michael Benjamin, WJDA executive, is leaving the station after 14 years for a new post in England.

Benjamin, general sales manager and executive vice president/director for WJDA and its sister station WESX in Salem, will begin work in Manchester, England, April 14.

He will be the Commercial Director for Imagine 94fm in Manchester and only the second American to join the United Kingdom radio market in an executive level position.

He is a contributing writer for Radio Ink Magazine, a sales and management publication for the radio industry. He is a certified worldwide Dale Carnegie Sales Course instructor.

Benjamin is a past director of South Shore Catholic Charities and a past member of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association board of directors. He is a 10-year member of the Quincy Rotary Club.

Benjamin and his wife, Heidi, originally from Liverpool, England, have two children, Charles, 3, and Harry, 2.

They will live in Hale, England, home to many Manchester United Professional Soccer team members.

Kai Lau Pledges Commitment To Teaching Profession

Kai Lau of Quincy was one of 80 Boston University students to pledge their commitment to a life of teaching at the School of Education's recent Junior Pinning Ceremony.

Sponsored by the school's Alumni Board, the ceremony signifies the beginning of her career in the classroom. Lau recited the "Educator's Affirmation," dedicating her life to the ideals of the teaching profession, in front of family, friends and fellow educators.

Lau is a junior majoring in elementary education. A 2001 North Quincy High School graduate, she is the daughter of Lung Sun and Isabella Li Lau.

National Event For 14-Year-Olds At Adams Field In 2005

Babe Ruth World Series Returning To Quincy

By CHRIS POISSON

When the 2003 14-Year-Old Babe Ruth World Series concluded last August, an exhausted Dick Lombardi said he hoped the national event would be back in Quincy — soon.

A little more than seven months later, his wish has been granted.

Lombardi, president of Quincy Babe Ruth, has received word that it will host the 14-year-old division of the Babe Ruth World Series in August 2005 at Adams Field.

Debra Horn, vice president of Planning and Development of Babe Ruth League, Inc., last week announced to Lombardi the organization's decision to return to the City of Presidents.

"It was so good last summer," Lombardi said, "to get it back so soon is a compliment to all the volunteers. That's why we are getting it back so soon. The Babe Ruth officials were impressed. They were really happy with the volunteers. You can have a great committee, but if you don't have volunteers it doesn't come off.

"And they were happy with the city. A lot of the parents from out of town told them they felt welcomed as a family, not just as guests."

The tournament is tentatively scheduled for Aug. 19-27 and will feature host Quincy, the Massachusetts state champion and representatives from the following eight regions: Pacific South west, Pacific Northeast, Ohio Valley, Southwest, South east, Midwest, Plains, Mid west Atlantic and New En gland.

And there is the possibility the Italian National team will participate in the tournament again as well.

Last year's Babe Ruth World Series was a huge fan attraction, as 56,647 fans over the 29 games spanning nine days. Lombardi believed the attendance could have topped the 60,000 mark if it weren't for a thunderstorm before the anticipated Quincy-Italy contest.

"It was a great experience," Lombardi said. "I think a lot of the little stuff we got whacked with, we'll be more prepared this time."

Many parties were involved in the event's success, including the World Series committee, the park department, local unions, host families, local business and the numerous volunteers.

One of the memorable stories took place before the first pitch — the renovation of Adams Field under a tight deadline, which was still being worked on less than an hour before the opening game.

Sacred Heart Girls Win State Basketball Championship

The Sacred Heart girls' basketball team, recently crowned state champion by grabbing their state championship with a 57-54 victory over St. Ann's of Readville at Tsongas Center in Lowell.

Sacred Heart posted a 22-1 record this season and won the Boston Vicariate just before moving on to the state tournament.

"It was a little bit of a nerve-racking game," said head coach Ron Barden. "These girls worked hard all year and I could tell they were ready to play and ready for them."

Sacred Heart started St. Ann's as the favorite to win the game before coming alive and going on a 10-0 run to capture a lead it would not relinquish.

"It was a little bit of a nerve-racking game," said head coach Ron Barden. "These girls worked hard all year and I could tell they were ready to play and ready for them."

Sacred Heart [illegible] St. Ann's [illegible] favorite to win the game before coming alive and going on a 10-0 run to capture a lead it would not relinquish.

"It was a little bit of a nerve-racking game," said head coach Ron Barden. "These girls worked hard all year and I could tell they were ready to play and ready for them."

Sacred Heart relied on the defensive prowess of Kelly Barden, Barden, Kelly and Shannon Malone, who had St. Ann's scrambling all day.

"Just as they shut down one of the girls, someone else would step up and make a play," Barden said.

Ahead 39-27 at the half, St. Ann's cut Sacred Heart's lead to seven points with a [illegible] quarter, but Sacred Heart [illegible] Kelly Barden [illegible] Lisa McKeon, [illegible] defense.

The last two minutes produced a see-saw battle, with each team making hoops. Suzi Sweeney's clutch steal and layup and Melissa Mendall's huge free throws toward the end of the game sealed the victory.

"This is a total team effort," Barden said. "Everyone [illegible] contributed [illegible] and the state championship [illegible] and I'm so proud of [illegible]."

North Quincy Softball Preseason Skills Clinic At O'Neil Field Saturday

The North Quincy High School Red Raiders softball team will hold a preseason skills clinic Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to noon at O'Neil Field, behind Atlantic Middle School.

The coaches, senior varsity captains Michelle Boyd, Beth Goodrich, May Ho, Kimberly Walsh and the entire squad will hold the workout featuring batting, pitching, catching and fielding.

Fee is $15 for one clinic and $10 for each additional child. The clinic will be canceled if it rains. For more information, call Denise Goodrich at 617-472-9063.

Stefan Miranda Volleyball Captain

Stefan Miranda of Quincy was named captain of the Xaverian Brothers High School volleyball team for the second straight year.

Last year he led the Hawks in digs (fifth all-time) and serving and placed fourth in kills. This will be his fourth year as a starter.

An honors student, he is a member of the Quincy Youth Soccer under 19 travel soccer team and a silver medal winner in volleyball at the Bay State Games. He is the son of Karen and Larry Miranda of North Quincy.

KEEP IT CLEAN

One adage that most Americans love almost as much as a car is to have everyone washing his or her vehicle every weekend. The reality is decidedly different, however. According to a recent survey of 1,000 U.S. car owners by the International Car Wash Association, 62% of car owners believe that appearance is essential, but only 53% wash their cars less than once a month. Sixteen percent of those surveyed never wash their cars, which subjects vehicles to exterior damage caused by acid rain, salt, bird droppings, road grime, and tree sap, etc. According to such auto trade-in experts, vehicles in excellent appearance and mechanical condition can be valued as much as $1,500 higher than those in good or fair condition.

Maintaining your SUV, van, truck, or car is important in maintaining its value. Keeping it clean may be the appearance. For more [illegible] maintenance and repair needs, bring it to the professionals at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, and trust its care to our experienced, ASE Certified technicians. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Our friendly staff will gladly answer all your questions at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: According to the survey mentioned above, 61% of respondents admitted to leaving garbage in their cars and 27% said their cars either smell or used to smell as a result. Wonder why?

Billy Allen Inducted Into American Power Boat Hall Of Champions

Billy Allen of Squantum was inducted into the American Power Boat Association Hall of Champions for the second straight year at a recent ceremony in Milwaukee, Wis.

The award, the highest achievable in outboard racing, is based on a driver's performance over the course of a single racing season.

In the 2003 season, Allen captured the National Championship closed course title in Whitney Point, N.Y., where he placed first in both elimination heats and both finals.

He also took the National High Point title, which is based on the average of the first 10 races, plus the Divisional and National Championships.

In addition, he earned the Paul Kalb award for accumulating the most points in one modified outboard class in a single season. He then broke the three-mile, three-lap competition record in B Modified Hydro in Ocoee, Fla., completing the course at an average speed of 62.832 miles per hour.

BILLY ALLEN took first place in the Taunton race last September on Watson's Pond. John Lester photo

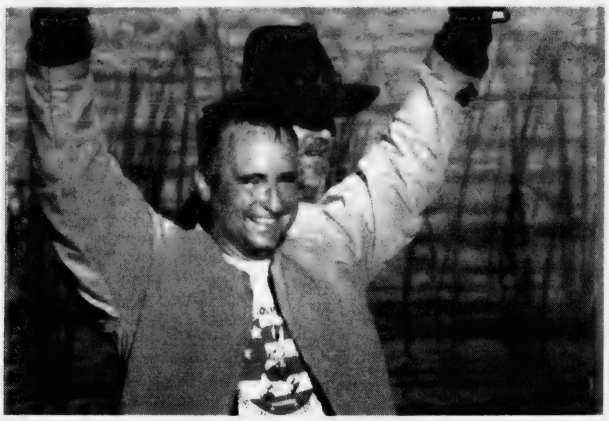
And Allen is off to a pretty good start for the 2004 racing season. In March, he won the Winter National Championship title in Bakersfield, Calif., in the B Modified Hydro class.

The following weekend in Ocoee he broke his own speed record, upping the mark to 63.219 mph.



"I had a problem with my steering and came in fourth in the first heat," Allen said. "I knew I couldn't win the race that day so I just drove as hard as I could in the second heat and went for the record."

Allen's grandfather, Ramsey Allen of Quincy, was the first Mercury outboard dealer in New England. Billy's father, Bill "Racer" Allen of Quincy, raced for more than 30 years and was also inducted into the Hall of Champions in 1982.

"I really have to thank my father," said Allen, who started racing in 1974 at age 9. "Not only did he get me into the sport, he's been a great supporter over the years. He even drove the boats and equipment all the way from Quincy to California and to Florida and back because I couldn't take the time off from work."

Eight years after he started racing, Allen won his first national title (B Stock Runabout National High Point Champion) and 10 years later captured his first national closed course championship (A Stock Hydro National Closed Course Champion).

Allen is a member of the South Shore Outboard Association, which will host a race at Watson's Pond in Taunton June 19-20. "The Taunton race would be a great opportunity for people to come out and watch and maybe even get into the sport," he said.

Pitching Should Be Strength For Young Red Raiders

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Rick Beach realizes the state of the North Quincy High School baseball program he has inherited as the new head coach.

As an assistant the previous four seasons, he knows the program hasn't really developed the past two years. The class of 2002, a talented group of 12, dominated the roster for two years, leaving no spots for the underclassmen to gain experience.

"The kids haven't really gotten a lot of varsity experience the last couple of years," he said. "Tag (former head coach Larry Tagheri) had a 12 member senior class, a huge class that played together as juniors and seniors. Nothing really got developed after that. Last year no kids had varsity experience and this year is almost the same with just five kids with experience."

Beach quickly notes, though, that the future appears to be strong. Scanning the program, there are 19 sophomores (five on varsity, 14 on junior varsity) and 10 juniors (eight/two) and an athletic freshman group. And next season North Quincy moves from the Old Colony League (Division 1) to the Atlantic Coast League (Division 3).

"The future at North looks really bright, and next year we go to a new conference which should help out a lot," Beach said. "We're just a young, young team. Hopefully, we can be competitive and hold our own. Making the tournament would be nice."

With that as the backdrop, the Red Raiders (4-15 record last year) got their season underway this week. They opened with Silver Lake Tuesday and today (Thursday) they host Taunton at 4 p.m. at Merry mount Field.

The five returnees with experience are the tri-captains, seniors Steve Reardon and Andy McAllister and junior John Fitzgerald, along with senior Sean Sullivan and sophomore John Allen.

Allen and fellow classmates Paul Doolan and Tom Power competed in the national Babe Ruth World Series at Adams Field last August. With that on their resumes, Beach has penciled them in as important contributors.

"They played some great competition over the summer and that should help them," Beach said. "Those three will definitely be playing a lot of varsity and I hope they play well."

Pitching should be a strength for North Quincy, with many bodies capable of taking the mound. Reardon will anchor the staff, which includes Sullivan, juniors Zack Brown and Tom Ross, and Doolan and Allen. Senior Dennis Layden, junior Domenic Poli and sophomore Joe Ceurvels may also see some time.

"Pitching is a strength and we have a lot of it," Beach said. "Reardon will be our No. 1 this year and he'll pitch all the big games."

Offensively, Beach said the Red Raiders may struggle as many of the kids adjust to the varsity level.

"Offense could be a weakness because we don't have a lot of kids that faced varsity pitching last year," he said. "But the kids have been getting tons of swings in. We were no-hit four times last year. Hopefully we can hit this year and play some good defense."

Beach expects junior Mike Powers, McAllister, Sullivan and Power to be among the top hitters on the team. "Mike Powers will probably be one of our better hitters," he said. "So far in the scrimmages he's stepped a couple."

Defensively, McAllister will start behind the plate, Sullivan and Allen will split time at first base, Fitzgerald will man second base, Powers and Allen will share third base, Reardon will play shortstop and Doolan will serve in the utility role.

Backup infielders are seniors Danny Jacobs and Jonathan Driscoll, Poli, Brown, Ceurvels and sophomore Anthony Black.

Power will patrol center field. The corner outfield positions will be platooned with seniors Kellan Losi and Driscoll and juniors Dave Djerf, Ricky Schifone, Chris Mercurio and Ross.

Bridge To Be Dedicated In Memory Of Late State Senator-City Councillor

Paul D. Harold Memorial Race May 2 At Concourse Bridge

The Paul D. Harold Memorial Race will be held Sunday, May 2, at 11 a.m. beginning and ending at the Concourse Bridge in Quincy Center.

Mayor William Phelan, Congressman William Delahunt and Senator Michael Morrissey will lead a delegation of city and state officials in dedicating the Concourse Bridge in memory of Paul D. Harold.

New signage will be unveiled bearing his name prior to the start of the race. Quincy residents are invited to attend the dedication and join the festivities.

Harold's political career spanned 27 years as Quincy city councillor, council president, state senator and Norfolk County register of deeds. He died Aug. 12, 2002 at age 53 after a two-year battle with cancer.

All proceeds from the 3.5 mile road race and 1.5 mile walk will be used to fund the Paul D. Memorial Fund, providing for scholarships to high school seniors and support of youth sports in Quincy.

Cost of the race is $15 pre-registration, postmarked before April 25, and $18 post-registration.

T-shirts will be provided to the first 200 registered runners. All registered runners and walkers are invited to the post-race party.

Quincy Municipal Credit Union and Francis X. Messina Enterprises will be the headline sponsors for the race. The post-race party will be hosted by the Outback Steakhouse, Pat Flanagan's, Roche Brothers and Stop & Shop. Super Fitness will offer use of its facilities to all registered runners.

Also, on-line registration is available at www.signmeupsports.com or www.coolrunning.com. To request an application or for more information, call 617-770-0166.

Walk To Benefit Cystic Fibrosis At Marina Bay

The annual Great Strides Walk to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation will be held Sunday, May 16, at Waterworks at Marina Bay.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. with the walk to follow at 10 a.m. The day will start out with coffee and doughnuts and a post-walk party will be held with music, raffles and food.

Last year, walkers from the South Shore raised over $40,000. The goal this year is to raise $50,000.

Cystic Fibrosis is a genetic disease affecting 30,000 children and young adults in the United States.

Sponsorship can be either individual, corporate or in the form of a gift certificate or merchandise. Tax-deductible donations can be made payable to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and mailed to 220 North Main St., Suite 104, Natick, MA 01760.

Lower Back Pain and Abdominal Exercises

Q. I experience lower back pain while doing abdominal exercises on the floor. Can I fix this problem, or should I discontinue abdominal exercises on the floor? — *T.D., Atlanta

A. There may be several causes for your lower back pain, but without performing an evaluation it's impossible to pinpoint the exact cause. However, we can explore several options that may help.

First, rule out the worst-case scenario of lower back injuries or problems by meeting with your physician. Past or current back injuries can make it difficult to complete abdominal exercises, and ignoring back injuries can cause additional harm.

Next, be sure to practice proper abdominal exercise techniques. The effectiveness of an exercise lies in your technique. The wrong technique can cause injury and not allow you to work the muscles intended.

Before beginning abdominal exercises on the floor, you must place yourself in the right position. Begin by lying on the floor with your knees bent and arms to your side. Practice controlling your abdominal and lower back muscles by arching your back — creating a space between the floor and your lower back. Once you have reached that position, tuck your pelvis under, tighten your abdominals and push your belly button toward the floor. The arch in your back should disappear. This is the starting position for your abdominal exercises. Try to maintain this position while you do your exercises.

The strength and control of your muscles, your flexibility and your fitness level are also factors to consider when performing abdominal exercises on the floor. As you become stronger, control of your muscles will become easier. Limited flexibility in your lower back, gluteus, hips and legs can also inhibit proper positioning.

It is extremely important not to advance too quickly with your exercises. Begin with your feet on the floor, and then progress to more difficult exercises such as with your feet off the ground. Since a strong core is necessary, consult a fitness professional to discuss proper exercise techniques and exercise progressions.

Save A Life: Join The Marrow Donor Registry

By joining the National Marrow Donor Program Registry, you could literally save someone's life.

Each year, more than 30,000 children and adults are diagnosed with leukemia and other diseases for which a stem cell transplant may be the only chance for a cure. Only 30 percent of these people will find matching donors within their families.

The others will look to the National Marrow Donor Program Registry for a potential life-saving match. At any given time, 3,000 patients are searching the donor registry for a possibly life-saving stem cell donor.

One of those patients was Gregg Smith, who was diagnosed with a rare form of leukemia. Smith needed a bone marrow transplant and was unable to find a suitable donor among his family members. He turned to the National Marrow Donor Program and found a match. He received his life-saving transplant at City of Hope Cancer Center in Southern California.

"For many months, I was so sick I would fall asleep at night just hoping I would wake up in the morning," Smith recalls. "Thanks to the unselfish generosity of my bone marrow donor, I got a second chance at life."

"Over the last decade, the registry has grown significantly, which has enabled more patients than ever before to receive transplants for life-threatening diseases," said Auayporn Nademanee, MD, associate director, Division of Hematology and Hematopoietic Cell Transplantation at City of Hope Cancer Center.

"In the 28 years since our first successful transplant, medical advances in this field have given thousands of people worldwide a second chance at life. But we need the public to help. To ensure that a greater number of patients will find matching donors in the future, people should join the National Marrow Donor Program Registry."

Ethnic minorities are strongly encouraged to register because they are underrepresented and matching donors are usually found among the same ethnic group.

For more information on registering, call 1-800-MARROW-2 or visit www.marrow.org.

Nutrition For The Whole Family

(NAPS) — Anyone who's ever felt they have a slim chance of managing their weight should know they are not alone. According to the Surgeon General, more than two-thirds of Americans are overweight and 30 percent suffer from obesity.

While managing weight can be a challenge, following are tips to make good nutrition easy to master.

Calorie Control

Food labels provide nutrition information for a 2,000-calorie diet, based on the USDA's recommendations. It's important to be mindful of the daily requirements for each family member to maintain a healthy weight.

- Most women and some seniors need 1,600-1,800 calories a day;
- Most active (exercising an hour per day everyday) men and teen boys require 2,800 calories a day;
- Children, teen girls, active women and most men require about 2,200 calories per day.

Portion Distortion

Portion sizes have grown substantially within the last 30 years. What has become an acceptable amount of food in one sitting often exceeds daily calorie requirements.

To combat portion distortion:

- Develop visual guidelines for remembering portion sizes. For example, a portion of pasta or rice is a half cup — the size of small fist. A portion of meat is 3 ounces — the size of a deck of cards. Consult the USDA's Food Guide Pyramid (www.usda.gov/cnpp) for more on recommended serving sizes.
- When cooking at home, immediately divide food into portions and refrigerate extras for meals the following day.
- When dining out, ask the waiter to wrap up half the meal to go before the entrée comes to the table.

DIABETES AND GUM DISEASE

Given the epidemic of people (particularly young people) with Type II diabetes in this country, it should be noted that periodontal (gum) disease tends to be far more common and severe in diabetics than other people. The fact is that diabetics are much more prone to all types of infections. This also applies to gum disease, which is caused by bacteria lodged in between the teeth and gums. As a result, diabetics are more likely to lose their teeth in the same way that they have more problems with their eyes, skin, feet, heart, and kidneys. It is recommended, then, that diabetics make a point of having regular dental checkups. Studies indicate that treating gum infection tends to improve glucose control.

We encourage regular preventative dental care, including check-ups. Your oral health is a team effort. If you're looking for a family dentist at this time, please call 617-479-6220. It is never too early to start good dental habits. Enjoy modern dentistry with old-fashioned personal attention. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we make dental visits a positive experience.

P.S. The high level of gum infection among diabetics may be explained by high sugar levels, which compromise the ability of white blood cells to fight infection.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Easter is not a time for sadness. . . but a time for rejoicing. . . We are emerging from the bleak, dark days of winter into the wonderful light days of spring. It is an exciting and happy time when life bursts anew around us.

We have all noticed what happens in nature at Easter time. In northern areas at the end of a long winter, the country and city landscapes look dingy and desolate. The trees are bare except for a few dead leaves that escaped the wintry winds still clinging onto their branches.

Then, miraculously, the first gentle warm breezes of springtime appear on the bushes, trees and ground. Each spring we see the miracles of new life in nature rising out of the deadness of winter. We see it in the fresh, green blades of grass popping up from the ground. We see it in the budding flowers. We hear it in the singing of the birds. We hear it in the insect's hum. . . The earth is being renewed.

In Easter we have the promise of life. . . In Easter we have immortal hope.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

A MAN AT THE END

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A suggestion from a colleague on how to work out a problem might not sit too well with you. But before you suspect his or her motives, why not just accept it as a friendly gesture?

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An associate might seek your counsel on a workplace dispute with another coworker. Listen to what she or he has to say, but withhold advice until you've heard the other side of the story.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Use your Twin gifts for creativity and practicality to score points in landing an opportunity that could open doors to a new career. Someone returns after a long absence.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Although things are pretty hectic through much of the week, some quiet time with loved ones helps restore balance. An unexpected visitor brings welcome news about a mutual friend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Getting used to change isn't always easy for the Big Cat. But make the adjustments gradually, and soon you'll hardly remember when things were any different from how they are now.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Continue to stay the course you've chosen, and avoid distractions that could throw you off track. Some knowledgeable folks are happy to provide guidance if you need it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although you earned plaudits from most co-workers for your recent stand on a workplace situation, you also raised the envy quotient among others. Tread carefully for now.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You feel more positive about that delayed project, and you're ready to pick it up on a moment's notice. However, you might need to re-motivate those who have since lost interest.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Some welcome news should be coming your way. In the meantime, use that Sagittarius charm to persuade some still-reluctant colleagues that your ideas have merit.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't wait for a misunderstanding to work itself out. Instead, ask for a chance to explain the circumstances before those bruised feelings lead to an irreversible break.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A physical problem should be checked out in order to avoid it going from just being a nuisance to something more serious. Your social life takes an unexpected but not unwelcome turn.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Yours might be the wisest sign in the Zodiac. But you still could benefit from the wisdom of a close friend who has suggestions on how to handle a perplexing personal problem.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your passion for doing the right thing inspires others to follow your well-trodden path toward justice.

City Unveils $23M Street Repair Plan

they wanted the entire 10-year breakdown of work on every street.

"The key is to focus on preventive maintenance because it is less expensive to repair in the long run," said William Scarpati, from the engineering firm Fay, Spofford & Thorndike. "Streets in the worst condition cost the most to repair."

JAY FINK

Councillor John Keenan agreed, saying, "Preventive maintenance gives us the best bang for the dollar."

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi asked city officials to provide a breakdown of the condition of the streets and proposed repairs on a Ward-by-Ward basis. Raymondi said it appears that Ward 2 is being shortchanged when compared to the amount of money being spent on other Wards.

"I'm looking at the list and the city will spend $550,000 in Ward 2, which is six percent," said Raymondi. "How is that fair to the people I represent? We need to recognize that every Ward should be treated the same."

Councillor Joe Finn praised city officials for coming up with a plan that brings "some sort of rational process" to street repair. "Overall, I think it's a good effort and one we can be proud of, ultimately."

Some councillors expressed concern that some of the city's worst streets were being put off in favor of streets that don't need as much attention.

Ward 5 Councillor called the plan "an excellent step forward" but expressed concern over the future of some of the city's worst streets. Gutro said those streets should be addressed sooner rather than later.

"They are not going to be put off, they are just not a priority right now," said DPW Commissioner Jay Fink. "The first dollar we spend will go toward preserving something for the next five to 10 years. Then we will look at the streets that need more than just surface treatment."

Fink said the city's worst streets would be the "last place we put the dollar, but when it comes it will come very quickly in this plan, in the second or third year."

Gutro also suggested that the city should attack underlying problems with the infrastructure, such as aging water mains, before undertaking large street surface projects.

Fink said the city will do that. "Before we rebuild a road we will make sure the underlying infrastructure will last the lifetime of the road."

During the upcoming construction season, the DPW will continue to attack isolated problems caused by flooding or wintry conditions, said Fink. Many of these conditions can crumble streets and must be repaired, he said.

In addition, city departments will continue to assess and repair curbs and sidewalks, he said.

"Curbs and sidewalks will be addressed when we do a substantial overlay or the complete rebuilding of a road from the base up," said Fink.

After this year, the city will look to revenue from the Quarry Hills Golf Course, Chapter 90 state funds and CDBG funds to pay for the plan.

"The $2 million is a benchmark figure," said Fink. "It's not carved in stone. If we get a more money we can accelerate the plan, but if less money comes in we may fall behind a bit."

Hope To Resolve Land Problems Affecting QSD Homeowners

Morrissey, Phelan Seek Solutions On Sewer Project

By WILLIAM FRAYNOR

State Senator Michael Morrissey and Mayor William Phelan are making efforts to foster a solution for homeowners on Quincy Shore Drive who have lost portions of their land as a result of the $5.8 million sewer replacement project.

Morrissey and Phelan are looking for solutions that would end the strife felt by homeowners who have lost strips of land due to the project.

Phelan is expected to confer this week with DCR Commissioner Katherine Abbott concerning the issue, according to Katie Ford, spokesperson for the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs.

"The DCR wants to find a solution that does not sacrifice open space but still works for everyone," said Ford.

Phelan also asked Morrissey to inquire about the possibility of having the state deed the land to homeowners in lieu of maintenance. But Morrissey said it might be more practical to allow residents to simply buy the portions of land. An easement on the property would diminish the value of the land, so residents would not pay waterfront property prices, he said.

Morrissey said the state does not give away land without obtaining value for it.

"The state wants some value for deeding the land," he said.

DCR recently informed residents that fences, walls, structures and plantings will be removed as part of its sewer project. Residents will not be able to return those objects to their original location after the project is complete. DCR has informed residents that the state will assume maintenance of the land.

Phelan called DCR's move a "bad policy decision."

"For years, the residents have maintained this property and now they are being told that the former MDC will assume maintenance of this strip of property that practically served as their front yard," said Phelan. "I have serious doubts about the practicality of this plan based on the former MDC's maintenance performance in the

Fire Study May Get Green Light

After years of false starts, the city appears ready to undertake a study of the fire department's long-term needs, including a review of its eight fire stations, staffing needs and an inventory of apparatus.

At Monday night's oversight committee meeting, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin presented a document asking firms to make offers to conduct a comprehensive study of the department's future needs. Coughlin said he combined "the best elements" of the chief's initial RFP (request for proposals) with a similar 2001 document. Nearly everyone in attendance indicated their support for the document, which appears headed for approval by the city council next week.

"These two documents really address in a comprehensive manner just about everything you could want in an evaluation of the fire department," said Coughlin.

Coughlin is the city council's representative on a four-member steering committee charged with coming up with a satisfactory blueprint for a fire study. Along with Coughlin, Chief O'Connell, firefighters union president Tom Bowes and Mayor William Phelan's aide Dave Murphy also serve on the committee. Committee members agreed to select a fifth member – possibly a resident or interested party – to fill out the steering committee.

Among the issues addressed in the draft proposal:

• Assessment of fire station locations, crew sizes, response times and pieces of apparatus at each engine company, ladder company and rescue company.

• Determine whether existing fire stations should stay put, merge or relocate to a different location.

Falco Denies Keegan Bypassed On Promotion

Police Chief William Falco is vehemently denying Joseph Keegan's allegations that the city skirted the civil service process by not promoting him to sergeant.

Keegan, a police patrolman and former candidate for the Ward 1 city council seat, filed an appeal with the state Civil Service Commission after Mayor William Phelan promoted another patrolman, Patrick Faherty, to sergeant two weeks ago.

At last week's city council meeting, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi read into the record a lengthy, scathing letter written by Keegan regarding the matter. Raymondi entered the letter as a resolution and the city council placed it into public safety committee for review.

WILLIAM FALCO

In the letter, Keegan said he was denied a promotion in retaliation for seeking the

'Productive' Contract Talks, Says Firefighters Union President

The city and firefighters' union held "a very productive" meeting Monday over stalled contract talks, according to union President Tom Bowes.

During the past few months, the union has expressed its displeasure with the Phelan administration's conduct during negotiations by picketing the mayor's second inaugural at North Quincy High School, a recent appearance at the Thomas Crane Public Library and City Hall. The union recently took out a full page advertisement in the Sun complaining about a lack of progress.

Quincy To Hold Remembrance Of World War II Vets May 29

While the nation dedicates the World War II Memorial in Washington as the official remembrance of the war that ended 58 years ago, Quincy will hold its own observance for those who can't make it to the nation's capital.

The services will be held Saturday, May 29, at 12 noon in the George E. Bryan VFW Post Hall at 24 Broad St., Quincy. The actual dedication of the memorial in Washington will be shown on large screen TV at 2 p.m.

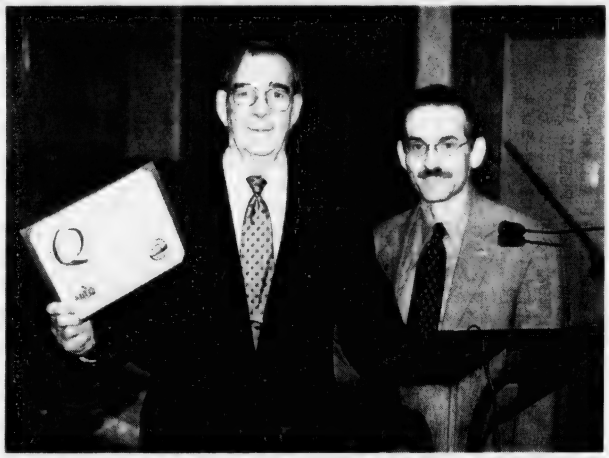
The American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans, the Vietnam Combat Veterans, the Jewish War Veterans, the Caddy Detachment of the Marine Corps League and the Second Marine Division Association will take part.

Quincy Veterans' Services is seeking World War II veterans from the Quincy area who would like to join their comrades at the remembrance. They are asked to call Veterans Services at 617-376-1195 any time in the day or night and leave name, address and phone number on the answering machine.

Gas Company At Work On Safford, Arlington, Fayette Sts.

KeySpan Energy Delivery is working to maintain and expand its distribution system in three locations in Quincy, jobs that will last for about three or four weeks.

The locations are in the vicinities of 169-197 Arlington St., 187-216 Fayette St., and 197-223 Safford St.



The Safford Street job began on April 7 and may be over as early as next week. The others were started on April 12.

Work will be done between the hours of 7 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The roads are being closed to the public and parking may be limited.

The work may require some excavation around the foundations of homes and businesses. The foreman on the site will notify customers of interruption of gas service.

KeySpan Energy Delivery will provide a police detail of necessary.

Questions about the projects should be directed to Lynne M. Holton, community relations coordinator, at 781-466-5100.

ARTHUR CHANDLER (left), receives a commendation from the city council for his longtime service to the community as a member of the Quincy Citizens' Association. Chandler has served with the group for more than 35 years. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin presented the commendation to Chandler, who also owns the Wollaston Theater. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble

WARD 5 COUNCILLOR Doug Gutro congratulates Dorothy Kelly, who received a city council commendation for her service to the community as part of the Quincy Citizens' Association. Kelly has served with the group for nearly 40 years. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Noble

Block Grant Program Hails 30 Years Of Community Improvements

A ribbon-cutting by Mayor William Phelan at 87 Viden Rd. Monday was more than just the official opening of a residence for five men with developmental handicaps.

It represented one of the latest accomplishments of the federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program which is concluding its 30th year of funding for community improvements.

Since it was enacted into law by Congress in 1974 and placed under the aegis of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the CDBG program has contributed $60 million to Quincy.

"The impact of the CDBG program can be felt in every neighborhood in Quincy," said Mayor Phelan, who has proclaimed this week to be National Community Development Week in the city.

"With CDBG funds we help seniors, children, families with single parents, disabled people, first-time homebuyers and other people in times of need.

"The CDBG (and similar) programs are examples of good government at work."

The goal of the weeklong national celebration is to encourage those who benefit from the CDBG funds to communicate to their elected officials the important role these programs play in improving the quality of life in the community.

Quincy's share of the CDBG grants went to housing rehabilitation, first-time homebuyer financing, public facility improvements, economic development, affordable housing development and street, sidewalk, park and playground improvements.

It is administered by the city's Department of Planning and Community Development.

"The services provided by Quincy's CDBG funds are immeasurable," said Phelan. "Over the past 30 years, we have served countless residents with programs and facilities that we may not have otherwise been able to provide."

The Mayor was joined at the official opening of the Viden Road communal residence by Ron Herlet of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and Work, Inc., and Mark Forest, district director from Rep. William Delahunt's office.

The city provided some $50,000 in CDBG and other grants and technical assistance to the Viden Road project to renovate the building and make it handicapped accessible.

The five men who live there previously resided in Quincy or surrounding towns with their families. More than 140 people in Metropolitan Boston live in similar independent circumstances.

Independent living, sponsored by Work, Inc., and funded by the state, allows them opportunities for community integration, skill building, recreation, socialization and advocacy.

National Community Development Week in Quincy will come to an end Tuesday, April 20, when the program, "Helping Kids Make Healthy Choices," will be presented from 12:30 to 2 p.m. at the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

LAURA AND SOPHIA Christiani of Quincy got to meet the Easter Bunny at the Easter egg hunt at Pageant Field last Saturday sponsored by Outback Steakhouse in Quincy.

Same-Sex Marriage Licenses

City Clerk Joseph Shea's office is beginning to receive inquiries about same-sex marriage licenses.

But, at this point, Shea and his staff had received no official word from the state on how to issue the licenses.

SHEA

Same-sex couples can legally marry effective May 17 under the controversial Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court ruling handed down last November.

City and town clerks are expected to be trained on the procedure for issuing licenses by the state's Registry of Vital Records and Statistics. This is the division in the state Department of Public Health that oversees the issuance of marriage licenses.

The clerks reportedly will be trained in early May.

But by early this week, Shea had not received an official date for the training.

And, he had not received information regarding language changes for same-sex couples on wedding license forms.

"There will be changes," Shea says.

Presently, the Notice of Intention of Marriage form filed by couples before the actual license is issued contains the word "GROOM" as one heading and the word "BRIDE" as the other.

The bride and groom to-be fill in under the appropriate heading such information as their name, date of birth, occupation, residence, birthplace, name of mother, name of father.

Same sex couples apparently would be required to fill out the same information but with pertinent gender language on the form.

The words "bride" and "groom" could be changed perhaps to something like "partners in marriage."

One caller to the clerk's office wanted to know if there would be extended hours for issuing the licenses apparently in the belief there will be a big rush May 17. The caller was told the licenses would be issued like any other marriage license during regular office hours.

Another wanted to know if there would be a gay or lesbian present to help in issuing the licenses. There are no such plans.

No one who has called so far has said he or she will be coming in for a same-sex license.

The inquiries seem to indicate there will be applicants among the callers.

THE WAY State Sen. Michael Morrissey sees it, the recent 10th Congressional District caucus held in Plymouth is a good sign for Congressman Bill Delahunt as he seeks re-election this fall.

MORRISSEY

DELAHUNT

The five-member slate headed by Morrissey was elected as delegates pledged to Sen. John Kerry at the Democratic National Convention to be held in Boston in July.

Morrissey was the top vote-getter with 576. Which, of course, pleased him.

But he was also impressed by the turnout.

Some 750 registered Democrats from the 10th district attended the caucus.

"And," notes Morrissey, "350 to 400 of them were from Quincy and Weymouth. This is a good sign for Bill Delahunt. It shows the interest of the Quincy and Weymouth Democrats who he can count on."

Morrissey says 25 percent of the registered Democrats in the 10th District are in Quincy and Weymouth.

"And they will be there for Bill in the election," he says.

There were two other Quincy delegate winners and with impressive votes. Michael Berry, vice president IBEW Local 103, racked up 495 votes. Jan Coughlin, state committeewoman and Morrissey aide, was the top woman winner with a vote of 534.

Staunch local Democrats attending including John Gillis, Norfolk County Commissioner and former city clerk; Councillor Joseph Finn, Rosemary and Archie Walhberg, Steve McGrath and Charlie Kane, Morrissey's campaign manager when he first ran for state representative and upset incumbent Joseph Brett in 1976.

YOU MAY HAVE seen the recent TV news clips on the wild turkeys that invaded downtown Everett. Well, one or two have made it to Quincy.

KENNEY

Peter Kenney, who was executive secretary to former Mayor Frank McCauley, reports sighting one last Friday at 7 a.m.

The turkey was nonchalantly pecking for food along the tree and grass median strip on Hancock St. in front of The Sun office.

"He then went airborne," says Kenney. "Flew off into the Hancock Cemetery."

Then, on Saturday, a wild turkey – maybe the same one – arrived in the backyard of Sandra Paquette on Gay St. near St. John's Church rectory.

"He then went into the rectory yard, wandered around and then flew off," she said.

She last saw him flying across Phipps St. to behind the gas station at the corner.

"As I remember, the two houses shown were destroyed by a Gruman Avenger, not a Corsair," he writes. "This was in 1942 or 1943. The Avenger was a torpedo bomber, the same type first President George Bush flew with the Navy in World War II.

"I was right there after the crash. The plane had taken the chimney off the house, put a large hole in the roof of the second house and landed upside down in the roof of the third house.

"All three crewmen died in the crash, the pilot, gunner and radio man. The pilot was hanging upside down, strapped into his seat. There were many crashes for the air base including one in the Montclair marshes."

Dorothy Quincy Homestead Open For Tours Saturday

The historic Dorothy Quincy Homestead at the corner of Butler Road and Hancock Street will be open for tours Saturday, April 17, from 12 noon to 4 p.m.

The tours will be offered at 12 noon, 1 p.m., 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

The Homestead, the residence of John Hancock's wife Dorothy Quincy, was considered the grandest estate in Quincy in the 17th and 18th centuries.

THIS IS A 1910 POSTCARD view of Farrington Street in Wollaston. The view is from the foot of the short hill coming down from Beale Street looking north toward the intersection with Brook Street. Just beyond the intersection is a trolley on the tracks that ran the length of Farrington from Beale Street to West Squantum Street. This was part of a west-of-the-railroad trolley loop that ran from the Adams Academy in the Square to Barry's Corner in North Quincy. At that time, before automobiles, you could ride trolleys to most parts of Quincy. The houses on the right are pretty much the same after almost 95 years except for closed-in porches, but the building on the left has been replaced by a small house and garage. ## Everything Is Not 'Wonderful, Wonderful'

Despite all the hoopla, grandstanding, backslapping and the sanctimonious rhetoric that took place in the City Hall Chamber Monday night, March 29, everything is not as "wonderful, wonderful" as the Mayor announced.

In two of the last three years the homeowners of this city have been hit with the largest property tax increases in the history of Quincy, not so wonderful by an stretch of the imagination.

Remember the wonderful deal Fore River Shipyard was going to be? Remember how wonderful Highpoint was going to be? How many millions have these wonderful deals cost the taxpayers of this city?

Several members of the City Council proclaimed "it's a win, win, win situation, good for the city, good for the college, and good for the taxpayer." The first win is for Councillor Raymondi who is the designated speaker for Quincy College, the second win is for the college, and the third win for the taxpayer is not a win but a scam.

With some smoke and mirrors the deal on March 15 was pretty much the same deal as on the 29th. On March 15 the position of the administration was "it will cost the taxpayers millions," "the single worst assault on taxpayers since I've been in office," "a $2.5 million gift to the college." So what happened in two weeks? Yes we now have a clean deed and the $40 million project can get started, and that is a good thing for the city and should have been taken out of the politics of City Hall to begin with.

There were three councillors who in their wisdom stood up and actually voted for the city taxpayers and were demeaned for doing such a thing. So much for free speech and the democratic principles in such a place as our City Hall Chamber.

Concerned About Proposed QMC Parking Garage

I write to express my concern and that of my neighbors, about the new 300-car garage proposed by Quincy Medical Center (QMC).

The proposed garage would be located in a residential neighborhood. It would occupy an area two-thirds the size of a football field.

Residents have used the area for well over 100 years for children's recreation, etc.

QMC had refused to allow access to the lot for study of the wetlands or related issues. Attorney Stephen Durkin and I filed an application with the Quincy Conservation Commission (QCC) to determine the extent of wetlands in or abutting this environmentally "at risk" area.

The matter was presented twice before QCC, once on March 3 and again on April 7. At the latter meeting, the commission agreed to a continuance until May 19. QMC agreed to permit access to the property. This will allow an environmental biologist and an engineer to inspect for wetland-related issues.

Many residents, employees, patients and visitors have signed the so-called "green" card indicating their support of a garage. The card was delivered with one question: "Are you in favor of a parking garage?" The simplicity of this single question misrepresented the complexity of the issue. Given the negative impact on the proposed construction on this environmentally precious and valuable open, wooded space, the "green" color associated with the card is inappropriate.

We are not opposed to the hospital's plan to construct a garage. However, we believe the garage should be built as close as possible to the hospital to accommodate the handicapped and elderly. Ideally, the spot would be located on the present parking lot area. Shuttle service could be provided during the major renovation period as was done several years ago during the hospital's re-construction/addition.

Cigarettes A Death Certificate

As a health care worker on a respiratory floor, I've seen first-hand the effect of smoking.

Respiratory step-down is a place full of trachs, oxygen and ventilators which perfume the air. The patients suffer from LOPD, lung cancer and so on, due directly from smoking. Granted, most of them started smoking in the 50s when smoking was popular.

However, this habit has ruined the rest of their lives. They cannot enjoy a beautiful sunset or watch their grandchildren run and play. They cannot even do their own personal care. How embarrassing.

This has had an effect on me. I'm sure everyone has had a relative or friend die from this habit. It has already taken too many. More people die from smoking than AIDS or car accidents combined. Indeed, smoking cigarettes is like signing your own death certificate.

Praise For Mayor Phelan

As a taxpayer and as someone who appreciates genuine leadership, I want to congratulate Mayor Phelan for his successful resolution of the Quincy College rent dispute.

As a taxpayer, there are about three million reasons I am grateful that the Mayor held his ground, bucked the College and its surrogates on the city council, and struck a firm and fair deal. As a person who feels fortunate to live in Quincy, I am happy that hostilities have ceased.

But on a deeper and more important level I am relieved to see that clear thinking, independence, and commitment - i.e. leadership is alive and well in Quincy.

School Teachers' Salaries Adjusted To $1,700 And $2,500

This Week
1942
62 Years Ago

The School Committee approved salary increases for 56 individual teachers and school employees, effective in September. It was estimated the increases would cost the city $7,250 a year.

Committee Vice Chairman Heslip E. Sutherland emphasized that the pay hikes were simply adjustments to correct salary discrepancies and not intended as cost of living raises.

Most of the increases were in the $100 a year range with elementary teachers going from $1,600 to $1,700, and high and junior high teachers from $2,400 to $2,500.

Frank E. MacDonald, chairman of the salary committee of the Quincy Teachers Association, called it "a step in the right direction" and added he hoped the committee would study further advances.

MacDonald pointed out that the per capita cost of instruction in Quincy of $69.08 per pupil was well below the average for 38 cities of $82.53 and the state average of $75.11.

SECOND OFFICER JOINS

The departure of Patrolman Thomas J. Scanlan for Fort Devens as the second Quincy police officer to leave for active duty was recorded by Lt. Anthony Caperci in the daily journal like this:

"Officer Scanlan did not report for duty. He's in the Army now!"

John Quincy, Jr. To Speak At Historical Society

John Quincy, Jr., author and 11th-generation member of his family, will speak on his family's history at a meeting of Quincy Historical Society Thursday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, Quincy Center.

Quincy will survey seven generations of the illustrious family, beginning with Edmund Quincy who first settled in what is now the city of Quincy in 1635. Among the prominent individuals to be discussed are Colonel John Quincy, for whom the town was named, and the line of Josiah Quincys, including an early and influential leader of the Patriot cause and the "Great Mayor" who transformed first Boston, then Harvard College.

In tracing the family history, Quincy will also talk briefly about his book, Quincy's Market, which details how Josiah Quincy III moved Quincy Market from idea to reality and how that changed the city of Boston. Quincy's research has been extensive — frequently examining sources previously overlooked. His presentation offers unique information and insight on a fascinating story.

The public is welcome to attend. There is no charge for admission. Copies of Quincy's Market will be available for purchase and autographs.

St. Mary's School Spring Fling May 1

St. Mary's School of West Quincy will host its fifth annual Spring Fling fundraising event Saturday, May 1, at 6:30 p.m. at the church hall.

Highlight of the evening will be a dinner provided by the Common Market Restaurant. There will also be a silent auction, a live auction, door prizes and a raffle.

The event is open to the public. Tickets are $20 per person in advance and $25 per person at the door. For more information call the school at 617-773-5237.

Mr., Mrs. Gerry O'Reilly Parents Of Daughter

Gerry and Susan O'Reilly of Quincy, are parents of a daughter Haley Elizabeth both Feb. 8 at St. Elizabeth's Medial Center, Boston.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Doherty of Quincy, and the late Mr. and Mrs. James O'Reilly.

SEAN HANNON and AMY CLARKIN

Amy Clarkin Engaged To Sean Hannon

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Clarkin of Chicago, Ill. announce the engagement of their daughter Amy to Sean Hannon. He is the son of Carol Hannon of Quincy and David Hannon of Sumnek, Maine.

Miss Clarkin is a graduate of Mother McAuley High School and Eastern Illinois University. She received a computer science degree and is employed at DePaul University.

Mr. Hannon graduated from North Quincy High School and U/Mass. Amherst.

A June wedding is planned.

Mr., Mrs. Rodolfo Giannandrea Parents Of Son

Jeneen and Rodolfo Giannandrea of Quincy, are parents of a son John Luca born March 22 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth. He joins his sister Gianna Maria.

Two TV News Anchors Emcees

Milton Hospital Plans Spring Gala April 29

Two Boston television news anchors will serve as emcees at Milton Hospital's Spring Gala.

Karen Marinella of Channel 56 and Jonathan Hall of Channel 7 will entertain guests during the April 29 event to be held at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Marinella is co-anchor of "The Ten O'Clock News" on WLVI-TV, WB 56. In addition to her work as co-anchor, she also produces features and conducts interviews.

Hall is a general assignment reporter and anchor for "7 News" on WHDH-TV, where he has worked for more than a decade.

Dinner reservations are $150 per person. To reserve seating or for more information about sponsorship opportunities, call 617-696-4600, ext. 1363.

COA Plans Elder Trip To Newport Mansions

The Quincy Council on Aging will sponsor a trip to Newport, R.I., for a tour of the mansions, a visit to the arboretum, a cruise and lunch on Narragansett Bay Sunday, April 25.

Participants will have two hours to shop and browse in Newport. Cost of the trip is $79.

Those who plan to go on the trip should sign up early to that bus transportation can be arranged. The bus will make stops at Marina Bay, Clay Street and Granite Street.

The COA is also planning trips to: Hanover Mall Tuesday, July 13. Cost is $5.

South Shore Plaza Aug. 10. Cost is $5.

Foxwoods Casino May 6, June 3, July 16 and Aug. 5. Cost is $22. Bus leaves from Marina Bay at 8 a.m. for each trip.

April 20 At Crane Library, Shipbuilding Museum

50 Students Participating In 'Operation Day's Work, USA'

On April 20, 50 area students in grades 6-12 will give up a day of their April vacation to do a day's work that will have global implications.

The Quincy students are part of a 20-school, 11-state, service-learning project called "Operation Day's Work, USA." Nearly 1,000 students will team up for a fifth year to do a "Day's Work" to provide education for hundreds of their peers in poor, developing countries.

This year, youths will work one day in nursing homes, day care centers, libraries and museums to earn about a day's pay, $30.

Massachusetts students will plant a children's garden at the Thomas Crane Public Library and others will spruce up Quincy's U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

In addition to raising funds, students will show a new child labor film, titled "Stolen Childhoods," by Nantucket producer Len Morris of Galen Films. Actress Meryl Streep is the narrator of the film, which will be shown at 2 p.m. at the library. A menu of anti-child labor actions will also be offered by the Quincy youth following the film.

Students will also invite the public to participate in "The Big Lobby," where youths from 50 countries will simultaneously lobby their respective lawmakers to support or introduce legislation which guarantees primary education for all children.

The Massachusetts youth hope to lobby Senators Ted Kennedy and John Kerry as well as Congressman William Delahnut in person or by phone. Students in other countries will lobby their parliament or President.

For more information contact Ron Adams, teacher and work advisor, at 781-335-3647.

Reading Collaborative Notes 17 Years Of Service To Young

The Germantown Neighborhood Center and the Thomas Crane Public Library will celebrate 17 years of a weekly collaborative reading program for primary level students.

The event will be held Tuesday, May 4, at 12 noon in the Adams Shore Branch Library, where the Intergenerational Reading Program meets every Tuesday during the school year.

Seniors who attend the reading program will receive awards from Mayor William Phelan for their commitment to the Snug Harbor Community School students.

The Intergenerational Volunteers Awards will go to Peter Coletta, Marjorie Curry, Betty Dolan, Elizabeth Elliot, Anne Harris, Virginia Kamb, Evelyn Noyes, Marion Pacetti, Gerry Shea and Patricia Sullivan.

The seniors provide literacy support and monitoring to the students as they work to improve their reading skills in a safe nurturing environment.

Following the awards ceremony, an appreciation luncheon will be provided by the South Shore YMCA, which also takes part in the program.

BC Theologian To Speak To Social Justice Group

Thomas Beaudoin, visiting professor in theology at Boston College, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Social Justice Commission of St. John the Baptist Parish Monday, April 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the lower church hall at 44 School St., Quincy Center.

Beaudoin will discuss how people integrate their economic decisions into their spiritual lives, using insights from Vatican II, and specifically dealing with branded clothing purchases.

For more information, call 617-472-9052.

Big Sisters Seek Women To Support Young Girls

The Big Sister Association of Boston is seeking volunteer women to provide friendship and support to girls between the ages of 7 and 15 in the community.

Informational meetings were scheduled to be held yesterday (Wednesday) from 12 noon to 1 p.m. and again from 6 to 7 p.m. at the new Quincy office in Suite 7 on the second floor of the Munroe Building, 1245 Hancock St.

Call 617-328-1061 or 617-236-8060 to register. Monthly meeting are planned for the Quincy office.

77 Percent Say 'Yes'

Should Supreme Court Retain 'Under God' In Allegiance Pledge?

Fully 77 percent of local respondents in a continuing Quincy Sun poll say they think that the phrase "under God" should remain in the pledge of allegiance to the flag of the United States.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in California has found that it violates the First Amendment to the Constitution forbidding the establishment of a state religion?

The court ruled that the phrase, added to the pledge a half century ago, "impermissibly takes a position with respect to the purely religious question of the existence and identity of God."

YES NO

The ensuing controversy has driven a deep rift among Americans who have taken the question to the Supreme Court for a final decision which is expected to be handed down this spring.

The nine justices of the Supreme Court can affirm the appellate court decision or they can overrule it or they can refuse to rule and let it stand.

The Quincy Sun would like to know how you feel about the issue.

Simply put a check mark in the box of your choice — "Yes" to retain the phrase "under God" in the pledge of allegiance; "No" to eliminate the phrase "under God" from the pledge of allegiance— and send it to:

The Quincy Sun
1352 Hancock St.
Quincy 02169

Or fax it to The Sun at:
617-472-3963

The final results of the poll will be published in a later edition of The Sun.

Quincy 2000 Collaborative Schedules Financial Course

Quincy 2000 Collaborative, in partnership with the UMass-Boston Small Business Development Center, is hosting a seven-week course to help individuals better manage their companies financial position.

The course will be on Tuesday evenings from April 27 through June 8 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy 2000 Collaborative offices, Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Suite 806N.

This is a seven-week introductory financial management course for entrepreneurs in business at least one year. The course guides company owners and senior managers through an easy approach to developing financial statements that act as a blueprint for building their business. Participants will learn to use their financials to better manage growth and profitability.

For more information, contact Quincy 2000 Collaborative at 617-847-1454 or the UMass-Boston SBDC at 617-287-7750.

Child Food Allergies To Be Examined May 4

The Milton Area Family Childcare Association will host a free workshop on food allergies in the young child Tuesday, May 4, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Cunningham Hall in Milton.

The MAFCCA is a group of licensed professional who care for infants to school age children in their homes in Quincy, Milton, Dorchester and Randolph.

For more information, call Kathy at 617-698-7439.

Three Quincy residents were named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Bryant College in Smithfield, R.I.

Point Webster Middle School Students Hold Math, Science Fair At Roche Bros.

Sixth and seventh grade Point Webster Middle School students recently held the school's first annual "Math and Science Fair" during a two-day event at Roche Brothers Supermarket in Quincy.

On each day, about 85 students took part in the math and science fair, along with Point Webster Middle School staff, teachers, Principal James McGuire, Asst. Principal Peter Chella and the guidance staff.

Community police officers James Dentremont, Ralph Radzevich, John Haines, Michael Flaherty, Roche Brothers employees and other community members donated their time to make the fair a success.

McGuire, teachers and Roche Brothers Manager James Lundy coordinated the academic fair and made the supermarket's resources available to students. Teachers also worked closely with Lundy developing 12 "learning stations" that adhere to the Massachusetts Math and Science Curriculum standards.

Students learned about pricing, coupons, density of food items and the nutritional value of such foods. Later, students learned about check out times to determine how long customers wait in line and how long it takes to bag groceries.

Another exercise had students determining the circumference of pies, cookies and other yummy treats at the supermarket's bakery.

A business partner of Point Webster Middle School, Roche Brothers invites its shoppers and other community members to visit the supermarket's Granite Crossing location and participate in the fun and challenging math and science activities. The fair was held in part through the Parents in Partnership program to encourage learning inside and outside the classroom.

Falco Denies Keegan Bypassed On Promotion

Ward 1 council seat last year. He says he faced "threats, intimidation and coercion" from Falco.

Keegan also maintains that Falco told him that his job would be in jeopardy if he won the election for Ward 1 councillor.

Falco denied Keegan's claims.

"I have no idea where he came up with these allegations, and I don't know what he is basing it on," Falco told the Sun. "As with any promotion, we follow all the rules and regulations. He (Keegan) has the same rights as anyone else under the law to do what he thinks is appropriate."

Under civil service rules, promotions are guided mainly by exam scores. If a candidate with a higher score is passed over for a job or promotion, explanations are required to support the decision. The Civil Service Commission handles appeals of local decisions.

The latest exam scores revealed a tie between Keegan and Faherty. Even so, Keegan believes he was bypassed because Phelan ignored the past practice of factoring in seniority.

Keegan maintains he has seniority – at least a year - over Faherty. City officials confirmed that Keegan has more seniority, but less than a year.

Keegan also said the police department has three vacant positions for sergeant, and there is no reason why he should not have been promoted to fill one of them.

City officials said the three vacancies for sergeant just opened up within the last two weeks.

"I'm very confident with my appeal to the Civil Service Commission," said Keegan. "The facts will come out in Civil Service. If the administration has something to say about me, or that I'm a bad guy, I'd like to know what it is. I'm curious myself.

"This seems to be a case of politics as usual – I think the people are tired of it," he said.

Keegan left open the possibility of filing a civil suit against the city.

"My civil rights were violated," he said. "I have the right to run for office and I was retaliated against because I did run for office."

Keegan had been on paid disability since December 2002 after injuring his back jumping into Black's Creek to help rescue a woman.

He was scheduled to return to work recently but requested a leave of absence under the Family Medical Leave Act, which allows parents of newborn children to take up to 12 weeks of unpaid time off to care for an infant. Keegan is utilizing accumulated leave time. He said he is not sure when he will return to work. Keegan's wife, Michelle, had a child last October.

According to the policies and procedures of the Quincy Police Department, a police officer must resign his/her position or take a leave of absence from the job if serving as an elected official, said Falco.

The chief said the policy was instituted sometime during the early 1990s.

"I didn't institute the rules – I just follow the rules of regulations of the department," said Falco.

Thomas Largey, the mayor's executive secretary, called it "inappropriate" for a police officer to serve as an elected official.

"It is wholly inappropriate for a police officer with the power of arrest and the power to ticket to be serving in an elected capacity," he said.

Morrissey, Phelan Seek Solutions On Sewer Project

Morrissey said the state must first declare the land in question as "surplus" before it can be sold or deeded to another party.

"If people are that concerned they might want to think about buying the land back," said Morrissey. "This would be one way to address the residents' concerns. Right now, it's a potential solution to the problem."

It might be possible for the state and city to work out an agreement that would transfer ownership of the land to Quincy. That agreement would require legislation and approval by the state Legislature, according to Morrissey.

Since the DCR land is considered Park Land, any transfer of ownership would require a two-thirds majority approval by the state Legislature, according to Morrissey.

Fire Study May Get Green Light

• Inventory of apparatus by age and historical usage. Maintenance records will also be reviewed.

• Evaluate the effectiveness of the city's fire alarm dispatch center. The review will determine whether having separate fire dispatch centers - one for the police department and one for the fire department - is practical.

• Assess the fire department's hiring practices, promotions, vacations, use of sick time and other contractual benefits.

Bowes called Monday night's progress "encouraging."

"I think everything is going to go smooth," he said. "The study is not binding so they should look at everything. The city needs to look at a lot of things. But I think the study will be fair and unbiased."

Elections For Neighborhood Representatives To Board Of Directors To Be Held

QCAP Annual Meeting, Awards Ceremony Tonight

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) Board of Directors will induct new board members and officers at its 39th Annual Meeting and Awards Ceremony tonight (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

The meeting is open to the community.

As one of Massachusetts' 25 Community Action Agencies (CAAs), one-third of QCAP's board is comprised of low-income Quincy residents. These representatives are elected to serve on QCAP's board by low-income residents of the Atlantic, Germantown, Quincy Point and Southwest neighborhoods of the City of Quincy.

Residents of these neighborhoods, who are at or below 175% of the poverty level, are encouraged to vote in the QCAP board election.

Voting sites include the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, HRCI office on Figurehead Lane, the Germantown Neighborhood Center, the Fore River Clubhouse and the Southwest Community Center at 388 Granite St.

The Board of Directors will also recognize several community members at the meeting with Extra Mile Community Awards for their dedicated support of QCAP, our clients and the community. This year's award recipients include Quincy City Councillor Joseph G. Finn, Quincy resident Valerie Palmer, and Head Start volunteer Anne Morrison.

In addition, Susan Fitzpatrick, QCAP's main office Secretary, will be presented the Lois Craig Memorial Employee Award, for her exemplary service to the agency, clients and community.

Head Start Education Specialist, Nancy Botelho and Elder Advocate, Nancy Barry, will be recognized for their 20 Years of Service to QCAP and families, individuals and children.

"This event is a wonderful opportunity for QCAP to celebrate with the community, the achievements and dedication of our employees and community partners. These people support our mission, and enable us to provide low-income families and individuals with opportunities for self-sufficiency," said Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo.

To attend QCAP's 39th Annual Meeting, or for more information on the board election, contact Susan Fitzpatrick at (617) 479-8181 extension 100.

5 Residents On Regis Dean's List

Clam Stuffed Pork Chops

Usually by now, we are thinking Spring not so this year. It means with this unyielding winter, I am doing more elaborate cooking simply because of boredom.

So last week when my husband brought home some center cut pork chops, it was snowing, cold and bleak outside. I decided to stuff them for a change.

But not with the usual stuffing. I had a can of minced clams on the shelf and decided to get creative and make a different kind of dressing. It was easy, and turned out pretty delicious.

My other food critic, our son Dom also gave his approval.

CLAM STUFFED PORK CHOPS
1 stalk celery (minced)
1 small onion (minced)
1/2 cup spinach (ucooked)
1 can minced clams (Or fresh minced)
3 tablespoons or so of stuffing mix
1/4 cup white wine (optional)
salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons oil

In the hot oil, sauté the celery and onion together until translucent. Add the spinach, wine, the clams with the liquid and cook until blended. Add the stuffing mix and cook uncovered until stuffing is dry enough to place on the chop. You know the routine., if too dry, add a smidgen of water, if too moist, add a smidgen more of the stuffing mix. You could also use at this point, either plain or seasoned bread crumbs if need be instead of the stuffing mix.

Season the chops with salt and pepper. In a slightly greased baking pan, put the chops with a little water on the bottom of the pan. Place the stuffing on top of each chop and cook covered in a 350 oven for about 20 minutes, and then uncovered for about 10 minutes.

Check to see if chops are done. If they are thick, they may take a little longer. I served brown rice cooked in a chicken stock instead of water, and added the spinach left over from the stuffing. (I found that the use of spinach creates a moister stuffing.)

Thomas Williams Honored By Fidelity National Title Insurance

Thomas F. Williams, Esq., of Thomas F. Williams & Associates, P.C., Attorneys at Law, Quincy, was recently recognized by Fidelity National Title Insurance at a testimonial event at the Ritz-Carlton in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Williams was honored as one of the top conveyance attorneys in New England by Fidelity National Title Insurance, the largest title company in the world.

Since its founding more than 30 years ago, Thomas F. Williams & Associates, P.C. has closed more than 35,000 transactions as an authorized title agent in Massachusetts. The firm currently represents more than 50 banks and mortgage companies for both commercial and residential mortgages.

THOMAS WILLIAMS

""I am honored to receive this award from Fidelity, a company that has such an outstanding reputation," Williams said. "I enjoy working closely with the South Shore community and I take pride in the many valuable professional relationships I have formed in this region."

Williams received his B.A., Juris Doctor and M.A. in Banking Law from Boston University and has also completed Boston University's Certified Financial Planning curriculum.

He hosts a weekly program on WJDA 1300AM in Quincy, called "Sound Advice." Williams is also a guest lecturer for the Plymouth and South Shore Board of Realtors as well as the Neighborhood Housing Association.

Thomas F. Williams & Associates, P.C., Attorneys at Law, is located at 21 McGrath Highway, Suite 501, Quincy, Massachusetts.

8th Grader Hannah Chan's Project To Raise Funds For Animal Shelter

Each year the kids in the eighth grade at Central Middle School are encouraged to select a need in the city of Quincy, research it and make a presentation of the findings to the class.

This year, the project picked by Hannah Chan, an eight grade student in the advanced placement program, may result in as much as a $3,000 contribution to the Quincy Animal Shelter.

And her presentation will include an appearance by Jillian Wheeler, the 12-year-old star of the movie "Mystic River," as well as the Boston musical group Jada, and may be featured on Disney radio.

The program, all of which was produced by Hannah, will be presented Friday, April 16, at 1 p.m. in the Central Middle School gym. Students are required to purchase a $5 ticket with the proceeds going to the animal shelter.

"We expect about 600 kids to attend the presentation," said Frank Santoro, principal of Central Middle School. "That means we'll be able to donate $2,000 to $3,000 to the shelter."

Hannah got the idea to raise money for the animal shelter while watching the Pet of the Week program on Quincy Access Television. She added the concert to the program, too.

Adams National Historical Park Seeking Volunteers

The Adams National Historical Park is seeking volunteers to participate in the National Park Service's "Volunteers in Parks" program.

A Volunteer Appreciation and Recruitment Reception will be held tomorrow (Friday) at 5:30 p.m. in the Park's Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St.

Volunteers will assist National Park Service staff in welcoming visitors to the Park and its historical and cultural opportunities.

Assignments for volunteers may include assisting Visitor Center operations and visitor orientation to the Park; participating in special events and living history programs; providing interpretive tours of the Park's historic structures; or providing administrative support.

Adams National Historical Park was established in 1946 as a unit of the Department of the Interior, National Park Service, to commemorate the distinguished men and women of the Adams family who dedicated their lives to the development and service of the United States. The 13-acre Park is comprised of the Birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams and the "Old House," home to four generations of the Adams family.

For more information call 617-770-1175 or visit the website at http://www.nps.gov/adam.

New Owner Takes Over The Ink Spot Printing

John Winter, most recently vice president and general manager of UniGraphic, Inc., of Woburn, has purchased The Ink Spot, a printing service for commercial customers at 40 Oval Rd., Quincy.

Winter, a resident of Hingham and a veteran of more than 25 years in the printing industry, pledged to continue The Ink Spots' tradition of specializing in two-color commercial work.

"We will continue to focus on this niche that is so important to a wide variety of business, non-profits and educational institutions," said Winter.

"The Ink Spot's history of quality printing and excellent customer service embodies what I have practiced throughout my career in this industry.

"Know your customer, understand their business, be responsive to their needs, and keep an eye on the details for them. This is what makes The Ink Spot so successful."

JOHN WINTER

Winter entered the printing industry while in high school, cleaning a local printing plant near his home in Montgomery County, Md. He continue working there while at the University of Maryland.

He joined Balmar, one of the largest printing operations in the Capital region, in 1986 as manager of the company's Virginia division, which employed more than 140 people. Later he joined Copy Cop.

"A printer's job is to decrease a customer's stress level," said Winter.

"When you're handing off a job to us, you should feel a sense of relief that our personal concern of your project will bring flawless results every time.

"We see ourselves as a partner in our customer's business."

12 From Quincy Medical Center Named 'Best Doctors' In America

Twelve doctors from the Quincy Medical Center have been named to the "Best Doctors in America" list for 2003-04, chosen by leading specialists across the United States.

There are 31,000 physicians on the list, representing the top 5 per cent of doctors in more than 400 medical specialties.

Chosen for the best doctors list from QMC were:

Alice Jacobs and Joseph Loscalzo, cardiovascular disease; Lewis Braverman, endocrinology; David Lichtenstein, gastroenterology; Thomas Barber, infectious disease and internal medicine; Christo John Shakr, obstetric and gynecology; Robert Vinci, pediatries; Domenic Ciraulo, psychiatry; James Backer, Gary Gibbons and James Menzoian, surgery; and Michael Stone, surgical Oncology.

"I am very proud of the high caliber of physicians we have on the staff at Quincy Medical Center," said Christine Schuster, president and CEO.

"As a community teaching hospital, our 400 primary care and specialty physicians are sharing their insight and skills with their physician colleagues from Boston Medical Center.

"This collaboration creates a stimulating environment for patients and their physicians and bring new perspectives and broader opportunities to bear in improving the health and wellness of South Shore residents."

As part for the best doctor selection process, leading specialists across the nation are asked to select those they would recommend to their own family members.

Hearing On Junior Operator License Law At NQHS

In the wake of increased auto accidents by junior operators, the Committee on Public Safety is conducting an investigation into the graduated license law to determine what legislative action may be needed to increase awareness of safe driving laws and regulations.

Members of the Driver's Education & Junior Operator Licenses will hold in informational hearing to examine these issues on Tuesday, April 20 from 1 to 3 p.m. at North Quincy High School.

Rep. Bruce Ayers is scheduled to co-chair the meeting along with Rep. Bradford Hill.

Kaitlin Valli Featured In 'Who's Who'

Neighborhood Housing Services 'Financial Fitness' Topic

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, a leader in first-time homebuyer resources and education, will sponsor a Financial Fitness Club workshop beginning Monday, May 3.

Classes, which are also scheduled on May 5, 10, 12 and 17, will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the UCG Shelton, Jr. Self Help and Head Start Building, 370 Howard St., Brockton.

Fee is $25 per person.

Neighborhood Housing Services recommends this workshop to anyone needing help with credit. Without good credit and sufficient income, many banks may not consider those with credit issues a desirable customer.

The workshop is designed to enhance money skills by correcting credit issues and maximizing income to access the best home mortgage.

Topics include developing savings, credit review and repair, banking services, and the mortgage process.

Daycare will be provided.

Advance registration is required. To register, call (617) 770-2227 ext. 31.

First-Time Homebuyer Workhop May 15

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore is offering a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, hosted by Self Help and Head Start, on Saturday, May 15 at the UCG Shelton, Jr. Self Help & Head Start Building, 370 Howard St., Brockton, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

Workshop participants will have the opportunity to be pre-qualified by a lender. Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works, and other presentations from real estate professionals.

Downpayment grants of up to $10,000 per family are available for first-time buyers who are purchase-ready and income eligible.

Participants must complete this workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Fee is $10 per person which covers the cost of workshop materials.

Advance registration is required. Call (617) 770-2227 ext. 31.

Hints For Homeowners

Is There Something Rotten In Your Backyard?

(NAPS) Many homeowners today are facing a surprising fact. The landscape timbers installed in their yards long ago have deteriorated and need to be replaced.

Often, these aging timbers are rotting and decaying to such an extent that the walls are in danger of bulging out and falling down. Over time, the natural decaying process will destroy any landscape timber, despite their having been treated with dangerous chemicals such as arsenic or chromated copper arsenate (CCA).

Which bring up a major concern in replacing these timbers. Then Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has banned the use of CCA-treated wood in retaining walls, decks, general landscaping, residential fencing, patios, walkways and play structures. Old timbers containing these chemicals are considered hazardous waste; it is now illegal to dispose of them through conventional means.

Many people are solving this problem by building new landscape walls with a new generation of concrete landscape blocks. Bob Gravier, president of Allan Block Corporation, a leading producer of these landscape blocks, explained, "today's homeowners are facing a major landscape problem. They need to replace the degrading timbers, but they also need to dispose of them according to law. They want a cost-effective attractive, and permanent replacement." His dealers, he added, are well versed in helping homeowners with this landscaping and environmental issue.

Using new, high-strength concrete technology, today's innovative landscape blocks come in a wide variety of colors, textures and styles to give consumers greater landscape design options. Unlike straight-edged timbers, the variety of block sizes and shapes means that designs can now easily include smooth-flowing curves and circles.

These new, decorative concrete blocks are maintenance-free and easy to install with a mortar-free, interlocking design. This new style of block brings a permanent, elegant and affordable landscape wall within reach of the average homeowner.

Under the company's new program, called the "Treated Timber Replacement Program," homeowners can either do-it-themselves or get a turnkey solution. With a single call to a dealer, they can get the advice and support they need to get a quality and professional installation job, and dispose of the old timbers correctly. All the contaminated wood will be properly disposed of according to EPA regulations, and homeowners receive a letter certifying compliance.

Allan Block professionals can work directly with a homeowner, landscape architect or engineer to construct new, beautiful block walls that create a safe and elegant environment that will last a lifetime.

Affordable Housing Development For Those Age 55 And Over

Robert Poirlucci and South Shore Custom Builders, Inc. are developing 36 two-bedroom single-family homes on Ebony Farm Road (Route 105) in Lakeville for those age 55 and over.

Eighteen of the homes will be sold as "affordable" housing for $155,000 to income-eligible buyers.

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will be conducting a lottery process to determine the buyers of the affordable units. The lottery is scheduled for mid-June.

Applications will be available through May 27 at the Lakeville Town Hall, Lakeville Library, South Shore Custom Builders and by calling NHS.

Applicants must meet the following income guidelines:

- Family of one: no more than $40,250 per year.
- Family of two: no more than $46,000 per year.

Priority will be given to Lakeville residents, town employees and applicants with family members residing in Lakeville for 13 out of the 18 units.

For more information call NHS at 617-770-2227, ext. 24.

Mass. Realtors Offering Educational Scholarships

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors' (MAR) Charitable and Educational Foundation announces the availability of a new series of educational grants for individuals pursuing a professional designation or degree program in real estate or an other industry related field of study.

This year, up to $10,000 educational scholarships will be awarded through the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's Annual Scholarship Fund. To be eligible to receive a scholarship, students must be a resident of Massachusetts pursuing a college level educational degree program or professional designation (GRI, CBR, CIPS, CRS, CRB, CCIM, CPM, SIOR, etc.) in real estate or another industry related field of study.

Applications are welcome from MAR members and other licensed real estate professionals, as well as the public. However, trustees of the MAR Foundation, members of their immediate family, and relatives of the association president are ineligible to receive scholarship funds.

Qualified applicants must complete a one-page application form and submit it to the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation by Aug. 1. Selected applicants also may be required to appear before the Foundation's Scholarship Committee to complete a personal interview. Individuals chosen to receive scholarships have up to two years from the date grants are awarded to complete their course work and receive scholarship monies.

The MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation was created in 1992 to promote professionalism within the real estate industry and provide housing and community outreach initiatives to property owners and the community at-large. The Foundation has been providing educational scholarships to Massachusetts residents since 1994.

Individuals interested in learning more about the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's 2004 Scholarship Fund, may contact their local Realtor association or the MAR Customer Service Department at 800-725-6272 to obtain a brochure and application form. Scholarship information also is available on the MAR Web site (www.marealtor.com).

Neighborhood Housing Workshop May 1 At Dedham Savings

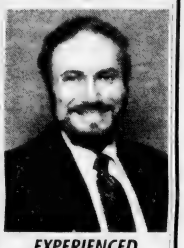
Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will hold a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, May 1, at Dedham Institution of Savings, 55 Elm St., Dedham.

Sponsored by Dedham Institution for Savings, the one-day workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend. Participants will have the opportunity to be prequalified by a lender at the workshop.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals.

Downpayment grants up to $10,000 per family are available for first-time buyers who are purchase-ready and income-eligible. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.



There is a $10 fee per person to cover the cost of workshop materials. Advanced registration is required. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31, or visit www.neighborhoodhousing.org.

Eyeglass Collection, Run/Walk Highlights of Lions' Week

Free vision and health screenings, the annual Lions Run/Walk for Sight and a citywide collection of used eyeglasses to help those in need are among the activities during "Lions Week" in Quincy next week.

Quincy Mayor and Lions Club member William Phelan recently presented club President David Sawyer with a proclamation designating April 18-24 as "Lions Week" in Quincy in recognition of the club's 63-year history of serving the community.

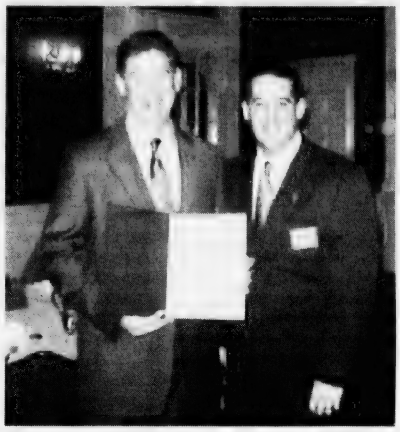
To mark "Lions Week," the Quincy Lions Club has scheduled a series of events aimed at helping blind and visually impaired persons.

Throughout the week, the club will be conducting its annual citywide collection of used eyeglasses and sunglasses. The collected glasses are then repaired and distributed to people in developing nations, where access to vision care often is either unavailable or unaffordable.

"Last year, the Quincy Lions Club collected 1,350 pairs of eyeglasses thanks to the generosity of local residents," said Sawyer, who noted that more than a quarter of the world's population is estimated to suffer from vision problems. "We hope to surpass that total this year, and help even more people gain the gift of sight."

Throughout Lions Week, residents can drop off their used eyeglasses and sunglasses in special collection boxes at participating businesses throughout the city. (A list of locations appears at the end of this story.)

"Many people have old pairs of eyeglasses laying around that they don't know what to do with," Sawyer said. "By donating them to the Lions Club, people can make a tremendous difference in the life of someone in need."



The club will also hold a Membership Night for individuals interested in learning more about joining the Quincy Lions Club Wednesday, April 21 from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Common Market restaurant on Willard Street. The event will feature refreshments and enable prospective members to meet current Lions and learn more about the club's activities.

"The Lions Club is a great way for people to give something back to the community. It also offers opportunities for leadership and professional networking," Sawyer said. "I encourage anyone interested in learning more about Lions to attend this informative session."

While reservations are not required to attend the membership night, Sawyer said, a phone call would be appreciated for planning purposes. Those planning to attend can call (781) 348-4923.

Lions Week will culminate with the Seventh Annual Run/Walk for Sight, to be held Saturday, April 24 at Pageant Field. Registration and pre-race entertainment begins at 9 a.m., with the children's 1K Run/Walk starting at 10:30 a.m.

The 5K Run/Walk will begin at 11 a.m. Registration fee is $5 for children, $20 for adults ($17 for pre-registration).

The Lions Club Eyemobile will also be on hand to provide free vision, hearing and blood pressure screenings to attendees. Following the race, a steak and chicken buffet lunch will be provided courtesy of the Outback Steakhouse, while free massages will be provided by Brown Chiropractic Centers, PC.

The event will also feature a disc jockey, medals for race winners, t-shirts for all registrants and prize raffles. Prizes to be raffled off include two tickets to the Red Sox, a 13" color TV and an overnight stay for two at the Quincy Marriott.

In addition, the Quincy Lions Club is also raffling off a trip for two to Ireland, including roundtrip airfare, six nights' accommodations, full breakfast each morning and a rental car with unlimited mileage.

All proceeds from the Run/Walk will be used to fund eye research and support the Quincy Lions Club's service activities in the local community.

Eyeglass Collection Locations

Drop off your used eyeglasses and sunglasses during Lions Week at the following locations. Each location will have a specially marked Lions eyeglass collection box. Eyeglasses may also be dropped off at the Run/Walk on Saturday, April 24 at Pageant Field.

New Vehicles Now 99 Percent Cleaner

(NAPS)—Automakers have worked with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to introduce a new generation of vehicles that are cleaner than ever.

Now available in dealer showrooms, these model year 2004 vehicles are fully 99 percent cleaner than vehicles from 30 years ago.

The new vehicles, called "Tier 2" cars and trucks, meet stringent tailpipe emission standards. Under the Tier 2 rules, both cars and light trucks, including sport utility vehicles, pickups and minivans, must meet the same strict standards by model year 2009.

For 2004, about 35 percent of new cars and light trucks meet the new strict requirements—10 percent more than the 25 percent required under the phase-in plan.

10 Tips To Save Money On Gasoline

While Americans may be feeling the effects of rising gasoline prices, they are not powerless in controlling their fuel costs.

"There's a wide range of fuel-saving tactics that can help drivers get more miles from a tank of gas," according to Joel Burrows, better known as "The Car Doctor" from Precision Tune Auto Care.

"If motorists adjust their driving habits and observe some simple car care techniques, they could make a significant impact on how much fuel they waste, and that translates into substantial money savings."

To drive this point home, Burrows provides the following 10 tips:

1. Keep tires properly inflated (recommended air pressure is posted on the driver's door or in the glove compartment). Under inflated tires cause drag; over inflation causes improper tire-to-road contact. Both conditions will result in abnormal wear.

2. Plan your day. Limit trips by running all errands at the same time, or on your way to and from work.

3. Have a certified technician perform an engine and emissions analysis to ensure that the engine is running at maximum efficiency.

4. Avoid making quick starts or stops. To avoid jamming on brakes, stay a good distance from the car in front of you. When possible, slow down simply by taking your foot off the gas.

5. Maintain steady speeds; use cruise control on the open road.

6. Do not use your air conditioner when driving in the city if you are in a warm climate. Do use your air conditioner on the open road rather than keeping windows open. Open windows create wind drag, straining the engine.

7. Use proper octane fuel. Higher-octane gas, which produces less energy, not only costs more, it also yields lower miles per gallon.

8. Don't let the engine idle more than a minute or two. This is extremely important on cold morning start-ups.

9. Today's vehicles run on a fine film of fluids. Make sure you service all fluids on a regular basis and in accordance with the manufacturers recommendations. Engine oil level should be checked at every fill-up.

10. Use over-drive gear for highway driving.

Precision Tune Auto Care has been a pioneer for more than 25 years in advanced diagnostic training and development, and is the one stop shop for scheduled maintenance, service and repairs for autos, SUVs and Minivans. Servicing 2.5 million vehicles each year, PTAC operates more than 440 state-of-the-art professional service facilities throughout the world and is a leader in educating the driving public on the importance of car care for personal safety and the health of the environment.

AAA Says Average Driving Cost Is 56.2 Cents Per Mile For 2004

The average cost of driving a new passenger car in 2004 is 56.2 cents per mile, or $8,431 per year, announces AAA Southern New England.

AAA has been reporting on the average driving cost of owning and operating a new car through its annual Your Driving Costs study each year since 1950.

This year, AAA has revised its methodology for calculating driving costs to better reflect the average AAA member's use of a vehicle over five years and 75,000 miles of ownership. This means the estimated costs for 2004 are similar, but not directly comparable to costs reported by AAA in previous years.

AAA's cost figures are based on a composite national average of three domestically built 2004 cars – a subcompact Chevrolet Cavalier LS, a mid-size Ford Taurus SEL Deluxe, and a full-size Mercury Grand Marquis LS. All the vehicles are similarly equipped.

The largest component of vehicle cost is depreciation. AAA estimates the average new car will depreciate $3,782 per year of ownership. The second biggest expense is full insurance coverage estimated to average $1,603 per year. Routine maintenance – including the manufacturer's recommended maintenance operations and tire expense – is estimated to cost $915 per year.

The cost of fuel, based on prices posted on AAA's daily, online Fuel Gauge Report (www.fuelgaugereport.com) is the fourth largest expense incurred by vehicle owners.

AAA said vehicle owners will pay about $975 per year for fuel. AAA calculates typical finance charges are $744 per year based on a five-year loan at six percent interest with 10 percent down payment. The IRS has allowance for business mileage has never allowed full reimbursement of all expenses associated with automobile ownership and use.

The AAA Your Driving Costs is available free of charge to AAA members at any AAA Southern New England office.

AAA Southern New England is a not-for-profit auto club with 28 offices in Rhode Island and eastern and central Massachusetts, providing two million local AAA members with travel, insurance, finance, and auto-related information.

Midget A's Fall 1 Goal Shy Of National Title

YOUTH HOCKEY

The Quincy Youth Hockey Midget A team lost a heartbreaking 4-3 game to Michigan in the championship game of the recent USA Hockey National Tournament in Dallas, Texas.

It was the sixth game of a grueling five days of hockey, which featured the top 12 team in the country made up of players ages 16-18.

Quincy opened the tournament with an impressive 7-3 victory over the powerful Kansas City Stars and followed with an exciting 3-2 overtime win over the Florida Golden Wolves.

In the third game, it fell to the Eastside Falcons, 3-1, after having them on the ropes early only to lose the game late in the third period.

Quincy finished the preliminary round in a three-way tie for first place and was awarded the No. 2 seed heading into the quarterfinals.

Next up on the schedule was the high-scoring Manchester Flames, who Quincy handled with ease in a 5-2 win. The game proved costly, though, as Quincy lost one of its star players, Chris Riley, for the rest of the tournament due to injury.

In the semi-final game, Quincy knocked off the Pacific Ice Dogs, 6-4, in a thrilling, third-period comeback.

Although undermanned in the championship, Quincy fought with heart and character, out-shooting Michigan and pressing for the tying goal before running out of time.

Coached by Dennis Murray, Al Grazioso and Sean Vermette, the team is made up of current and former players from Quincy and North Quincy high schools, BC High, Catholic Memorial and Marshfield. They thanked all the people who donated money to help send them to Dallas.

"This was a heart-breaking loss for many of the Quincy players who have played youth hockey together since they were 6 years old," Grazioso said. "Knowing this would be the last time that they would ever play hockey together as a team made losing even harder.

"This group has won three state championships together. Not only have they grown up to become great hockey players, but more important they have grown to become fine, young men."

Quincy outscored all the teams in the tournament, with three players finishing in the top 10: Matt Germain — the tourney's leading scorer — Josh Giordani and Matt Grazioso.

Quincy not only got great play from those three, but great defense from Stephen Kelley, Tim Duggan and Kevin Richardson, who is normally a forward but stepped up due to the blueline shortage. Kelley was arguably the best defenseman in the tourney.

Richard Stone showed tremendous energy and hustle throughout the tournament and Mike McKeon led the checking line against the top lines of the other teams.

Quincy also received great goaltending from John Scannell and Tim Bonham. Other standout players were defensemen Chris Fahey and Ryan Warsofsky and forwards Chris Crowley, Matt Lowe and Brendan Laffin.

Duggan represented Quincy in the Eastern Skills Competition and performed well.

"Quincy Youth Hockey, the city of Quincy and Massachusetts should be very proud of what this team accomplished," Grazioso said. "Having not played a game together since late November, Quincy was competing against some teams that played as many as 60 games together traveling all around the country. This was truly a great accomplishment."

Robert Campbell Memorial Hockey Tourney At Youth Arena

The fifth annual Robert F. Campbell Jr. Memorial Hockey Tournament will be held April 30 to May 2 at Quincy Youth Arena, 60 Murphy Memorial Drive.

The event is a competitive eight-team men's tournament featuring the Boston Firefighters Hockey Club as well as ex-collegiate and junior hockey players from the New England area.

To date, the tourney has raised nearly $65,000 to fund leukemia research and patient care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Rob Campbell was diagnosed with acute myelogenous leukemia (AML), a particularly aggressive form of the disease, at age 19. He died in 1985 and would have been 40 this year.

Gold Sponsors for this year's tournament are: President Titanium, Payton Construction, I.S.G., Jensen Trucking and Eze Castle Integration, Inc.

The tournament schedule: Friday, April 30, 6:40 to 11:10 p.m.; Saturday, May 1, 10 a.m. to 8:10 p.m.; Sunday, May 2, championship game at 11 a.m.

NOT TOO COOL

If you are getting poor gas mileage, the culprit may be your vehicle's cooling system. To understand why, you have to realize that the fuel system supplies a "rich" fuel mixture (more gasoline) when the engine is cold. As the engine warms up, a leaner mixture is sent into the combustion chamber, resulting in more economical engine operation. A problem arises if the fuel system does not know that the engine is warmed up and continues to produce an overly rich gasoline mixture. The result is wasted gasoline and poor fuel economy. In such cases, a faulty cooling system thermostat is signaling that the engine is running cool, thereby confusing the fuel system. If so, the thermostat needs replacing.

Next time you need work done on any system, including its cooling system, bring your car, truck, or SUV into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our highly trained ASE Certified technicians and our availability of parts will assure you of a job well done. We're proud of our staff and you can trust us to get back on the road quickly. We're conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. SOFTBALL

North Quincy Wins First Vs. Falmouth

The North Quincy High School softball team notched its first win of the season Monday afternoon with a 13-4 victory over Falmouth at Pageant Field.

"It was a total team effort," said head coach Bob Doyle, who has a new assistant coach, Denise Boyd. "Even in our three losses, this team showed that it has a different makeup —they want to win."

North Quincy (1-3) was scheduled to host Bridgewater-Raynham yesterday (Wednesday) and it travels to Brookline Friday afternoon at 4.

Senior Kim Walsh went the distance to pick up the win, allowing two hits and two walks while striking out four. All four runs were unearned. She also had a hit and drove in two runs.

"She pitched a real super game, especially under tough, cold conditions," Doyle said.

Offensively, the Red Raiders were powered by their four senior captains. Shortstop May Ho went 3-for-3 with two RBI, four runs scored and two stolen bases and left fielder Michelle Boyd went 2-for-5 with two RBI, two runs and two stolen bases.

Catcher Beth Goodrich, who threw out three runners, had two hits, two RBI, three runs and two stolen bases and first baseman Nicole Murray, playing her first game because of an injury, added two hits and two RBI.

"We had 14 hits and that's a big step for us," Doyle said. "In years past we've struggled with hitting. This is a step in the right direction and hopefully it will be contagious and we'll turn the corner."

Last Thursday, North Quincy dropped a 9-1 decision to a strong Taunton team. Only a 2-1 game in the fifth, the Tigers reached Walsh for seven runs on six hits to blow open the game.

The Red Raiders had just three hits, but made contact. They scored their run in the second inning when junior second baseman Kathleen Frawley walked and scored on Walsh's RBI single.

Last Wednesday, Archbishop Williams blanked North Quincy, 8-0, as Ho had her team's only hit of the game.

"I was a little disappointed we had just one hit," Doyle said. "We had runners in scoring position with five walks, but couldn't get the timely hits. We were just really flat."

In the season opener last Tuesday, the Red Raiders almost rallied from a 5-0 deficit before falling, 6-5, at Silver Lake.

Trailing 5-0 after the fifth inning, North Quincy scored a pair in the sixth on RBI singles by Ho and Goodrich. The Lakers scored a run in the sixth for a 6-2 lead.

In the seventh, the Raiders staged a dramatic rally with two outs. Senior second baseman Kristina Manganaro singled and stole second. She moved to third on junior center fielder Amanda Saylor's groundout and scored on Boyd's groundout to third.

After Walsh singled and stole second, Ho blasted an RBI triple and scored on the play after an errant throw to make it 6-5.

Goodrich followed with a single and stole second. Senior right fielder Danielle LaRose then hit a ball and Goodrich, heading to third, collided with the shortstop to end the game with an interference call.

"That showed we're resilient," Doyle said. "We didn't hang our heads when we were down. I was pleased with the late-inning comeback."

Others who have contributed to the Red Raiders this season are junior No. 2 pitcher Deanna Iacobucci, sophomore starting third baseman Kelly Barden and junior backup center fielder Kendra Ciccone. Senior Christine Perry, who is injured, is the reserve catcher.

Randolph Outduels Quincy In Marquee Pitching Matchup

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Two of the top pitchers in the Atlantic Coast League squared off Monday afternoon at a chilly Merrymount Field.

Quincy High School junior John Folino and Randolph's Steve Connors each froze their opposition with one-hitters.

But the Blue Devils squeaked out two unearned runs to pull out a 2-0 victory —its first win over the Presidents since they joined the ACL.

"It's going to come down to pitching and both teams were solid," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "We beat Connors twice last year when (Anthony) Boyle pitched against him. They were one-run games. We've had a good rivalry and that's the first time they've beat us since we've been in this league.

"There's nothing you can do about this game. What can you do? There were two great pitchers going. Unfortunately, neither team hit and they got the breaks and the W. That's what happened."

Quincy (3-2) was scheduled to host Brighton Tuesday and Plymouth North yesterday (Wednesday).

"We're there in every game," Draicchio said. "This is the best it has ever been since I've been here. Credit to these kids because they haven't really been at this level, only a few of them."

Against Randolph, the Blue Devils pushed across a run in the first inning. After a questionable hit batsman, who stole second base, he came around to score with two outs on an error.

In the second, Folino, who has not allowed an earned run this season, sandwiched two walks around an error to load the bases with one out.

He made a great play coming off the mound, fielding a slow roller and throwing home for the second out. He almost walked the next batter, but battled back from a 3-0 count to induce a ground ball out.

The Blue Devils added the second run in the fourth frame. Two men reached on errors and with two outs, Folino yielded his only hit of the game up the middle to plate a run. Junior center fielder Steve Priscella, who had Quincy's only hit, gunned down the second runner at the plate to end the inning.

Last Saturday, Quincy blanked Archbishop Williams, 3-0, behind senior Ian Jorgensen's first varsity start. Jorgensen, who was contemplating volleyball this spring, punched out eight in the complete game.

Jorgensen was an emergency starter after junior Steve Sullivan, who was also 7-for-11 at the late this season, injured his ankle playing basketball after last Thursday's game against Sandwich.

"Sullivan is going to be out for a little while," Draicchio said. "It's going to be hard without him. He's a good pitcher and he's just a solid hitter. But Ian did a tremendous job against Archbishop Williams."

Quincy scored all three runs in the second inning. Senior Chris Kirschner and Folino singled and senior tri-captain Paul Copson walked to load the bases. Senior Scott Flaherty grounded out to second to score Kirschner and Steve Priscella (2-for-4) lined a two-run single to left-center.

Last Thursday, Quincy suffered a 9-7 loss at Sandwich. "We kind of beat ourselves," Draicchio said.

Quincy led 3-0 after three innings, but Sandwich quickly tied the game. And in the fifth it reached junior John Santon for six runs on four hits and three walks for a 9-3 lead.

Steve Priscella blasted a two-run home run in the sixth to make it 9-5 and Quincy added a pair of runs in the seventh to close out the scoring. Sullivan went 3-for-4 with an RBI.

Last Tuesday, the Presidents pulled out a 3-1 victory at Dennis-Yarmouth in extra innings.

With the score knotted at one in the eighth, senior tri-captain Joe Priscella singled up the middle to drive home two runs after a long at-bat.

"That was one of the best at-bats I've seen in high school," Draicchio said. "It was a great piece of hitting. He was down 0-2, fought it back to 3-2, and we're sitting there counting, he fouled off 20 pitches before the hit."

Sullivan plated Steve Priscella with a single off pitcher Ben Pietro, who no-hit Quincy last year, for the team's first run. Folino picked up the win, striking out nine and allowing an unearned run.

North Drops First Game To Falmouth

The North Quincy High School baseball team dropped its first game of the season Monday afternoon with a 13-2 setback at Falmouth.

"We should've played a lot better," said head coach Rick Beach. "Since I've been around we just can't seem to beat them down there for some reason."

North Quincy (2-1) traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham yesterday (Wednesday). Next week, it will host Hyde Park Wednesday and Milton Thursday, both games scheduled for 11 a.m. because of school vacation.

In the Falmouth game, the Red Raiders fell behind 4-0 before cutting the deficit in half with a pair of runs in the fifth inning.

Sophomore Paul Doolan led off with a walk and junior Tom Ross reached on an error enabling Doolan to score. Junior John Fitzgerald stroked a two-out RBI single.

In the bottom half, the Clippers pushed across four runs for an 8-2 lead as the Red Raiders committed four errors (nine in the game). Beach played his bench for the final two innings.

"I told the kids that we weren't going to go undefeated this year," Beach said, "and that we just got our first loss out of the way."

North Quincy opened the season last week with a pair of 3-2 home victories, defeating Taunton Thursday and Silver Lake Tuesday in the opener.

In the Taunton game, North Quincy got on the board first in the second inning. With two outs, Doolan walked and Ross knocked him in with a double that took a bad hop past the right fielder.

In the third, the Tigers pushed across a pair of runs on three hits to take a 2-1 lead.

The score remained the same until the bottom of the sixth. Senior Sean Sullivan led off with a single, sophomore Tom Power reached on an error and sophomore Joe Ceurvels (2-for-3) bunted for a hit to load the bases.

After two outs, Ross tied the game with a single to left field and senior tri-captain Steve Reardon singled home Ceurvels for the go-ahead run.

"It was a great game," Beach said. "We never gave up and we came back. The kids were excited. After last year, to start off 2-0 feels good. It was nice to beat Taunton. We got swept by them last year."

Sullivan, making his varsity debut, allowed the two runs on six hits while striking out six and walking four in a complete-game performance. He was assisted by three double plays turned by the defense.

"That was his first varsity start and he did a great job," Beach said.

In the Silver Lake game, Reardon took the mound and after a shaky first inning in which he gave up two runs on four hits, he settled down and retired the final 15 batters of the game.

Junior Mike Powers ripped a two-run double in the third inning to tie game. In the fourth, North Quincy scored the go-ahead run when senior tri-captain Andy McAllister was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded scoring junior Chris Mercurio.

Atlantic Girls, Point Webster Boys Basketball Champs

The Quincy Public Schools Middle School Basketball Program recently concluded its season with the Atlantic girls and Point Webster boys teams winning the city championships.

Over 125 student-athletes and 10 head coaches from all five middle schools participated in the program this year. The finals were held at Atlantic Middle School.

In the girls' final, head coach Jack Sullivan's defending champion Atlantic team (7-0) defeated strong contender Central, 40-30.

Atlantic was led by Rebecca Goreham, Rachel Goreham, Kasey O'Connell, Kathleen Lynch and Jessica Howlett. Sarah Goreham assisted Sullivan with the program all year.

For coach Anne McGuiggan's Central team, Paige Bonanni, Mary Kate Stille, Catherine Feeney, Meagan Tobin and Kathryn Carella were standouts.

In the semifinals, Atlantic topped Point Webster, 41-28. Coach Meghan Sullivan's Point Webster team was led by Catie Santon, Tahina Cherry, Virginia Wong, Cassie Lau and Priscilla Lee.

Central defeated Broad Meadows, 39-24. Broad Meadows, coached by Pat Clifford, was led by Liz Bock, Sarah Lynch, Kasey McAteer, Taylor Kirby and Kelly Keefe.

In "wildcard" play, Point Webster downed coach Ellen Kielmeyer's scrappy Sterling team, 19-15. Krystin Newsom, Katherine Marchand, Terri Teixeira, Clarisbel Pimental and Bryce McNally played well for Sterling.

In the boys' finals, coach Dan Gilbert's Point Webster (8-0) team capped its season with a 49-28 win over defending champion Broad Meadows.

Point Webster, winning its first title since the school reopened in 1999-2000, was sparked by great team defense and strong contributions on offense by Paris Amado, Doug Scott, Deron Jones, Gary Richards, Sean Gray and Cliffdjy Celestin.

For coach Ryan Bell's Broad Meadows team, Diego Arredondo, Giovanni Cesar, Tom Conley, Matt Pyer and Kyle Tobin turned in good efforts.

Point Webster beat last year's finalist, Central, coached by Mike Lenane, 39-24. Alex Traggelis, George Haines, Sean Clifford, Dan Munkley and Ian Campbell played well for Central.

In the "wildcard," Central dispatched coach Scott Madden's determined Atlantic team, 39-30. Atlantic received solid contributions from David Atkins, Kevin Poteau, Matt Goreham, Trevor Brown and Chri Doyle.

Koch Club Baseball Registration April 26, 28

Registration for Koch Club Youth Baseball will be held Monday, April 26, and Wednesday, April 28, at 6 p.m. at O'Neil Field, behind Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Avenue, North Quincy.

Cost of registration is $15, which includes a hat and T-shirt. Boys and girls ages 5-10 are eligible to participate.

The season will begin May 3 and end June 30. All games will be played at O'Neil Field Monday and Wednesday evenings at 6.

Parents are encouraged to volunteer and assist with coaching and organizing the games for the youngsters.

The Koch Club was founded in 1948 by the late Richard E. Koch and has provided countless opportunities for youngsters to participate in various sports programs for pleasure.

For more information, contact Chris Hall at 617-471-0823 or Brian Glennon at 617-479-7997.

Senior Olympics Events Start May 10

The 22nd annual Quincy Senior Olympics is scheduled to launch a week-long series of events Monday, May 10.

Local seniors are preparing for the games by participating in the fourth annual Sports Day — practice sessions held each Friday morning at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

There are four more sessions remaining. Volunteer coaches Don McCusker and Hy Levy will demonstrate and train. "We call it spring training," said Sharron Beals, Beechwood's executive director.

A pre-Olympics breakfast is planned for Friday, May 7. Dr. Wayne Wescott will be the guest speaker. All are welcome to attend. Reservations are necessary.

Beals said the Senior Olympics has become a "spirit of aging" for seniors in Quincy and on the South Shore. "We look forward to this celebration of fitness all year," she said. "It's like a validation: 'I'm here, I'm fit and I'm fine.' It personifies the philosophy of getting older. We like to tell the George Conway story each year."

Conway, 101, of Milton, began walking competitively in 1983 at 80 years old. Since then he has won more than 150 medals. He has set world records for his age group in race walking and averages 94 in his Milton candlepin bowling league.

"I like the people at the center," Conway said. "Olympians seem to be a different class of people than you normally meet. They're the first ones to congratulate when you do well, and encourage each other to compete and try new events."

"We encourage all seniors 55 and older to consider participating in the Quincy Games," said Maryann Mahony, who was recently appointed as acting coordinator of Beechwood's Senior Center.

The week-long event includes all interest and ability levels: horseshoes, darts, billiards, bowling and golf; team competitions: bocce, volleyball, softball; and track and field competitions.

"There is something for everyone," Mahony said. "Every year folks try new events like the javelin throw and shot-put. This is my first year to assist in the planning and coordination of Senior Olympics and I am excited."

The planning committee, chaired by Beals, includes Barry Welch, recreation director; Tom Clasby, director Council on Aging; Dave Murphy, representing Mayor William Phelan; and Mahony.

For more information about the Friday Sports Day, the Senior Olympics or to register, call Beechwood at 617-471-5712.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

Rheumatoid Arthritis Awareness Campaign

Many people don't think twice about everyday activities like getting dressed, walking down stairs, planting flowers, or holding a baby. But for people suffering from rheumatoid arthritis (RA), even the most routine activities like these are difficult, sometimes impossible.

RA is a serious, debilitating, and incurable disease that can have a devastating impact on quality of life, often causing physical deformities, extreme fatigue and severe pain that can worsen over time.

To help people with RA learn about what is possible when their disease is properly managed, Abbott Laboratories is launching the second year of the "Can Do with RA" campaign, a garden themed patient education program designed to provide patients with information on RA and the newest treatment options, share tips for maintaining an active lifestyle, and offer RA-friendly gardening tips.

A free seminar in Boston and nearly 40 additional markets around the country will bring together people with RA, rheumatologists and horticultural therapists (experts who use gardening to improve well-being). Event attendees will have the opportunity to meet other gardening enthusiasts living with RA, and learn about the latest RA treatment options from a local rheumatologist (RA expert). A horticultural therapist will provide arthritis friendly gardening tips and share advice for making the most of your garden in any climate.

According to the American College of Rheumatology, inactivity can increase arthritis-related problems. Many arthritis patients are less fit, weaker and less flexible and have more pain than necessary due to the complications of being inactive.

The event is being held in the Boston area on the following date and time:

• April 17 at 10 a.m., MIT Endicott House, 80 Haven St., Dedham MA 02026.

To RSVP, people can visit www.candowithra.com or call 1-877-99-CANDO. In addition to the event in Boston, Abbott is hosting 38 garden parties across the country.

About RA

RA is a chronic autoimmune disease that affects 2.1 million Americans, with women accounting for three out of four cases. RA causes pain, swelling and stiffness in the joints of hands, feet and wrists, and often leads to the destruction of joints. Unlike osteoarthritis, the "wear and tear" joint condition and most common form of arthritis, RA is an autoimmune disease where joints are inflamed, often resulting in eventual destruction of the joint's interior and the surrounding bone. The long-term prognosis for patients with RA can be poor, and many patients face disability and premature death.

For more information about RA, the latest treatment options and helpful resources for patients is available at www.RA.com.

Spring Health Fair At Granite Medical

Granite Medical will host its third annual Spring Health Fair Saturday, April 24, from 9 a.m. to noon at its offices in the Crown Colony Medical Center, 500 Congress St., Quincy.

There will be free health screenings, body fat testing and an opportunity to talk with doctors and nurse practitioners. The topics include asthma, cholesterol, diabetes, elderly issues, heart disease, nutrition and skin care.

The public is welcome.

For more information, call 617-471-0033 or visit www.GraniteMedical.com.

Screening Helps Prevent Colorectal Cancer

(NAPS) If everyone aged 50 or older were screened regularly for colorectal cancer (cancer of the colon or rectum) more than a third of death from this disease could be avoided. Yet, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the number of people tested remains low.

"Colorectal cancer is the second leading cancer killer in the U.S., but it doesn't need to be," says Laura Seeff, MD, spokesperson for CDC's Screen for Life: National Colorectal Cancer Action Campaign. "Screening tests can find polyps, so they can be removed before they turn into cancer. A polyp removed is really a cancer prevented. Screening can also find colorectal cancer early, when treatment is most effective."

Several tests are effective in screening for colorectal cancer. Patients are urged to speak with their doctors to determine which test is right for them. Most insurance plans and Medicare help pay for screening.

To learn more, visit www.cdc.gov/cancer/screentorlife, or call 1-800-422-6237 or 1-800-633-4227.

TOOTH BE TOLD!

You can throw one more myth about older adults into the wastebasket. According to the first state-by-state analysis of "tooth retention," conducted by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control, more than half the adults in 26 states still had most (meaning that they had not lost more than five teeth) of their natural teeth. This finding reflects a long-standing trend toward better oral care. In the 1950s, more than half of adults aged 65 and older had lost their teeth. Currently, only one-third have lost all their natural teeth. The rates of complete loss are expected to decline much further, as younger people, who have much lower rates of dental cavities and tooth extraction, grow into the adult population.

We invite your questions, and offer important oral health guidelines for the entire family – for the young to the young at heart. Your smile is the first thing others notice about you. No matter what your age you can benefit from oral care. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment, or visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com for more information. ### Seasonal Allergies and Exercise

Q: My seasonal allergies are raging full-force this spring. Although I am taking prescription allergy medicine, I still suffer from sneezing, itchy eyes, a slight difficulty breathing and the occasional cough. Should I take any precautions while working out? — *T.P., Tampa, Fla.

A: You're not alone. According the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, more than 20 million American adults suffer from seasonal allergies or hay fever.

Creating a way to continue your normal exercise routine during allergy season can be challenging, but it is possible. Here are a few suggestions:

• Visit your physician to discuss your symptoms and develop the best medical approach for treatment. If medication is prescribed, ask your physician about any affect the medications may have on you while exercising. Medications that relieve allergy symptoms may produce side effects such as dizziness and sleepiness or sleeplessness, which may make it inadvisable to operate heavy machinery. Such side effects could also result in injury to yourself or others while using weight machines, free weights or even walking on the treadmill.

• Consider modifying your workouts to keep from irritating your allergies further. This may include moving your workouts inside or changing long endurance exercises to shorter interval workouts. If you develop asthma or other respiratory conditions as a result of your allergies, speak with your physician about approved cardiovascular exercises.

• Listen to your body. If you begin to feel overtired, sick, weak or experience discomfort, you may need to rest that day or reduce the intensity of your workout. You could be more susceptible to injuries while exercising when your body is unable to handle the stress placed upon it.

Everyone who commits him or herself to a program of exercise will experience difficulties along the way, but the trick is keep these from stopping you in your tracks. Small changes can make your workouts more productive and pleasant, and allow you to stay on course for reaching your fitness goals.

Local Program May 29 To Commemorate Dedication Of World War II Memorial

Quincy Veterans' Services is seeking World War II veterans from the Quincy area who would like to join together as the city commemorates the dedication of the World War II Memorial Sunday, May 29.

The program will take place at the George F. Bryan VFW Post, 24 Broad St., Quincy, beginning at 12 noon Sunday, May 29.

Following the one-hour program, two five-foot television screens will be set up in the Bryan Post so that attendees can view the World War II Memorial dedication from Washington, D.C. at 2 p.m.

"On Sunday, May 29, many veterans and friends will travel to the dedication in our nation's capital to join with family and friends in honoring those who not only wore the uniform of the Armed Forces but those who worked at home to supply our troops with needed equipment," said Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry (Hank) Bradley.

"Realizing that not all World War II veterans are able to join their friends in Washington, D.C., on that day, the City of Quincy, through the office of Mayor William Phelan is planning a program of celebration and remembrance for those not traveling to Washington, D.C."

Plans are underway to have a remembrance of the Washington dedication on the same day and time in Quincy for those unable to travel.

The many veterans organizations in Quincy, including the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, Vietnam Combat Veterans, Jewish War Veterans, Caddy Detachment Marine Corps League, and Second Marine Division Association, will take part in the Quincy program.

To make a reservation for the Quincy World War II remembrance, call Quincy Veterans' Services at (617) 376-1195 and leave name, address and phone number on the answering machine.

Bethany Congregational

Sunday worship and church school will be held at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, beginning at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William Harding will preach a sermon entitled "Every Knee Should Bow."

There will also be a message for the children of the church school before they go to their classes.

Scripture reader will be Russell Hodgkins. The Chancel Choir will sing under the direction of Tom Boyer, organist. A trio will be featured as well including Lisa Jeannaro and Maureen Fish, sopranos and Valerie Eaton, alto.

Light refreshments will be available during the Fellowship Hour after the worship service.

Childcare will be provided for infants and toddlers.

The Bethany Church Men's Group will meet Tuesday, April 20 at 7 p.m. Guest speaker will be Stephen Puleo, author of Dark Tide, the story of the Great Boston Molasses Flood of 1919.

Quincy Point Congregational

A Thought For The Week

A crisis and confusion is a part of living. Each of us must face some sort of crisis or confusion sooner or later. To face a crisis requires courage -- and courage is a personal matter. Courage can not be leased, borrowed or bought. It must be drawn from one's self for one's self. And when courage is shown, confusion can and often does disappear.

Ever since time began, the greatest source for courage has been traced to a foundation on a faith. Faith creates hope. Without faith and hope, courage is difficult to come by. In spite of dark clouds, faith, hope and courage will always be the means to let us see the rays of sunshine again. . .

"Life would not be worth living without faith. Faith in God; faith in ourselves; faith in our fellow-men; we should omit none of the three. Without faith in God, there is no hope for the soul; without faith in self, life is a miserable failure; without faith in each other, we should miss the sweet joys of friendship. Keep your faith bright, let its lustre never grow dim!" - Isa Scott Taylor

AL WORDS

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Professional relationships grow stronger. But you might still need to ease some problems with someone in your personal life. One way could be to try to be less rigid in your views.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You might be too close to that perplexing personal situation to even attempt to make a rational decision about it right now. Stepping back could help you gain a wider perspective.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Being asked to choose between the positions of two friends is an unfair imposition on you. Best to reject the demand and insist they try harder to work things out on their own.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change of mind about a workplace decision might be called for once you hear more arguments, pro and con. A personal event suddenly takes an unexpected (but pleasant!) turn.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Romance once again looms large for single Leos and Leonas, with Cupid favoring Taurus and Libra to inspire those warm and fuzzy Leonine feelings. Expect another workplace change.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A surprise gift — and, happily, with no strings attached — could come just when you need it to avoid a delay in getting your project done. Expect education to dominate the week.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone close to you might ask for your support as she or he faces a demanding personal challenge. Offer it, by all means. But be careful you don't neglect your own needs at this time.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An unexpected development could put your relationship with a partner or spouse to an emotionally demanding test. But your determination to get to the truth should save the day.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A recent agreement appears to be coming apart over the surfacing of unexpected complications. You might need to have expert advice on how to resolve the situation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your keen business sense helps you get to the truth about a suspicious business deal. Expect to have many colleagues rally to support your efforts in this important matter.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone who once moved in and out of your life over the years might now want to come back in on a more permanent basis. Give yourself a lot of time to weigh your decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Showing frustration over a delayed workplace decision might get someone's attention, but not necessarily make him or her move any sooner. Best advice would be to be patient and wait it out.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are drawn to excitement and enjoy fast tempo music, with the more brass, the better.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity (Make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days. You must be published and it will be granted to you. A.P.-4-15

MICHAEL BELLOTTI

Bellotti's Phone Service Aids Senior

A 63-year-old, wheelchair-bound Quincy woman recently received quick assistance from a neighbor thanks to Sheriff Michael Bellotti's senior citizen phone call service.

The woman, whose identity is not being released because of safety and privacy consideration, said she needed help when she answered her regular call from the Sheriff's "Are You OK?" (RUOK) phone call reassurance program.

The deputy monitoring the automated calls that day picked up the phone and asked the woman what was happening. The woman, who is a paraplegic and lives alone, said her foot had popped out of its harness and she was sliding out of her wheelchair.

The deputy called the woman's next-door neighbor, who was the designated contact person in case of an emergency.

The neighbor quickly responded and helped secure the woman back in her wheelchair. The woman did not suffer any injuries.

"Once again, the RUOK program has proven itself a vital tool in assisting senior citizens, especially those who live alone," Bellotti said.

Currently, there are 26 Norfolk County communities participating in the program, and more than 400 senior citizens have been served with 30 "saves" registered since the program began in April 2001. There are 260 seniors currently signed up and using the free service.

Every day, registered seniors receive an automated call at the time they signed up for. If they don't answer, a second call is placed five minutes later. If they still don't respond, a deputy sheriff calls a designated contact person, whether it is a family member, friend or neighbor.

That person is asked to go to the senior's home. If the contact person cannot be reached, the deputy calls local police.

Senior citizens can sign up for the free service through their local senior center or Council on Aging, or by calling the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office toll-free at 1-866-900-RUOK (7865) between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Edward Keohane Honored As Quincy Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

Edward J. Keohane was honored Sunday as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for his community leadership and "passionate dedication to the city he loves."

Three generations of the Keohane family were present as he received the 19th annual Quincy Sun award for outstanding community service for the year 2003 at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

The more than 100 guests attending also included city and state officials, past recipients of the award, members of the judges' panel that selected him for the honor, members of the Quincy Partnership of which he is chairman, and friends.

Owner of the Keohane Funeral Service and chairman of the Quincy Partnership dedicated to promoting Quincy's historical, cultural and natural resources, Keohane was selected for the award by a panel of judges from among 39 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

Under Keohane's leadership, the non-profit Quincy Partnership raised many thousands of dollars to undertake a number of civic projects. Among them:

Up-lighting of the city's historic sites, bronze statues of John, John Quincy and Abigail Adams, and "Welcome To Quincy" signs erected at the city's gateways.

The latest endeavor is a large, granite fountain which will be a focal point in the restored 80-acre Merrymount Park and scheduled to be dedicated in June.

The Partnership also plays a major role in Quincy's widely heralded Flag Day Parade as a co-sponsor with the founding Koch Club.

At Sunday's reception, citing Keohane's civic contributions to Quincy, Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth presented him with a clock plaque inscribed:

"To: Edward J. Keohane For Outstanding Community Service. As chairman of the civic minded Quincy Partnership, and as a community leader and activist, with a passionate dedication to the city he loves."

Bosworth noted that the clock on the plaque "is symbolic ... it symbolizes all the time you have given to your community and, I am sure, will continue to do so in the future."

Sun Editor Robert Bosworth presented Keohane with a framed Page One of The Sun highlighting his selection for the award and including the names of the 38 other nominees and the members

Traces Of Gasoline Still Found From Tanker Crash Spill

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Environmental crews continue to find traces of gasoline in the downtown area nearly nine months after a tanker truck crashed and sent thousands of gallons of gasoline spewing onto the city streets and into the sewer system.

The city will conduct a public meeting on the tanker truck accident and the subsequent spill on Thursday, April 29 at 7 p.m. in the Quincy High School auditorium. Representatives from EnviroSense will be present.

Traces of gasoline linger on Coddington St. and in the soil of adjacent roads after the flammable liquid spilled from a crashed tanker on Aug. 21, 2003, according to Mark Deuger, project manager with EnviroSense, Inc., the environmental consultant hired to test the area. The consultant was hired by the insurance company of Brewer Petroleum Services Inc. Brewer owned the truck that crashed last summer.

Approximately 10,000 gallons of fuel spilled from an 18-wheeler that overturned trying to navigate the corner from Temple St. to Washington St. The crash sent gasoline flowing into the city's sewer system along Coddington St.

During the coming months, the consultant will be testing the water table and adjacent buildings for vapors or other traces of gasoline, he said.

"There are a couple areas where we have concerns," said Deuger. "Presidents Place has an indoor air situation. It is not something of risk, but it is something we have to keep our eye on."

Deuger said the company has detected gasoline vapors in the basement of the building and will continue to monitor the situation.

"We have some vapors emanating in the basement and we want to make sure people are not breathing vapors that are harmful," he said. "But we have not seen anything that approaches an explosive situation."

He said vapor levels have trailed off since they were first detected months ago, but they are still a concern.

The situation has improved dramatically at Quincy College, he said. The college was shut down for nearly a week in late Dec. after the spill because of vapors entering the building.

Last Sept. tests of test wells near Quincy College detected gasoline in the water table, he said. Deuger said traces were found in the water table near Quincy College. The company continues to monitor the wells near the college and recent tests show improvement, he said.

"Quincy College still has concerns," said Deuger. "But the venting system we installed last fall has had a dramatic effect. There has been nothing to report in the last several months."

Deuger said conditions at the college have improved

Meeting On Concourse, Downtown Revitalization At City Hall April 28

Business and property owners in the downtown area will receive an update on Phase II of the Concourse project Wednesday, April 28 at 6 p.m. in second floor conference room of City Hall.

City officials will make a presentation and allow a question and answer forum for interested parties.

The city is in the planning stage of a major effort to redevelop and revitalize downtown Quincy Center. Part of that effort involves planning for the completion of the Concourse, also known as the Crosstown Connector.

Phase II of the project will extend the Concourse the rest of the way across Hancock St. and connect it to McGrath Highway.

Construction of Phase II is expected to begin within two years, according to city officials.

7th Grader Receives Surprise Call From Senator Kennedy

Students Do A 'Day's Work' For Underprivileged Peers

About 80 local students Tuesday took part in a 20-school, 11-state service learning project called "Operation Day's Work, USA," designed to raise funds to provide education for hundreds of their peers in poor, developing countries.

Students in grades 6-12 from the Broad Meadows Middle School, Quincy High and North Quincy High Schools gave a "Day's work" during their April vacation for the cause. Nearly 1,000 students across the country participated in the fifth annual event.

This year, students raised funds to help Sierra Leone.

Local students planted a "Peace Garden" at the Thomas Crane Public Library and others spruced up Quincy's U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

In addition to raising funds, students showed a new child labor film, titled "Stolen Childhoods," by Nantucket producer Len Morris of Galen Films. A menu of anti-child labor actions were offered by the Quincy youth following the film.

Students also invited the public to participate in "The Big Lobby," where youths from 50 countries simultaneously lobbied their respective lawmakers to support or introduce legislation that guarantees primary education for all children.

Shannon Sullivan, 7th grade student at Broad Meadows Middle School, contacted a number of elected officials in an attempt to raise awareness of the issue.

And she received a surprise call back from Sen. Ted Kennedy. In a conference call, Sullivan and Kennedy spoke for a few minutes about child labor issue and guaranteeing education for children throughout the world. Sullivan also asked Kennedy to lobby President George Bush and Presidential Candidate and fellow Sen. John Kerry on the issues.

Ron Adams, teacher and work advisor, as well as Mollie Glavin, 10th and 12th grade history teacher at Quincy High School, assisted with the event.

Quincy YouthBuild Program Receives $700,000 HUD Grant

Training Resources of America Incorporated (TRA), in partnership with the Quincy Housing Authority (QHA), has received a $700,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to continue the YouthBuild Program in Quincy.

YouthBuild is a nationwide network of more than 200 programs that challenge unemployed and undereducated young people, ages 16-24, to work toward their GED while learning construction skills by building or renovating affordable housing for low-income and homeless individuals.

"This is the fourth YouthBuild Program TRA, as lead agency, has operated in Quincy since the program's inception in January 2001," said Paul J. Gallo, president of TRA. "Our partnership with Quincy Housing Authority is a fine example of how agencies can pool their time, energy and resources for the benefit of the community."

Mass. Job Training, TRA's Quincy division, will oversee program operations and provide GED preparation, life skills, job readiness and leadership skills development training for the youth. QHA will provide the on-site training component, in cooperation with local unions.

Projects will include ongoing rehabilitation of 400 units at the QHA's Snug Harbor public housing development and replacement of roof/siding/windows at 180 buildings in the Riverview Family Development both located in Germantown. Participants will also benefit from a myriad of support services from both organizations.

Jacquelyn Loud, acting executive director of QHA, said, "YouthBuild has proved to be a significant and timely experience for its young participants. It gives them the opportunity to identify their strengths and skills in academics and in the workplace and to make choices that will enable them to use their strengths every day in their careers."

Since its inception, the Quincy YouthBuild Program has trained over 100 economically disadvantaged youth. In turn, to date, these young people have helped to renovate over 271 units at Snug Harbor and four buildings (with four housing units in each) in Riverview.

Other program outcomes include: job placement, enrollment into higher education/apprenticeship training, attainment of GEDs, increased self esteem and a sense of the importance of community service.

This latest round of HUD funding will ensure the program continues into 2007.

Isabel J. Cobb, YouthBuild program manager, said, "I was thrilled to hear we had received funding for an additional 30 months. Quincy YouthBuild staff is proud to see our hard work and dedication being recognized by HUD. We look forward to continue providing services to our young people in the Quincy and South Shore area."

For more information, contact Mass. Job Training Quincy office at 617-773-1470.

Public Hearing April 27 On MBTA Service Changes

The MBTA will hold a community workshop and public hearing to obtain comments on proposed changes in service Tuesday, April 27, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at City Hall.

"Every two years, the MBTA reviews the level of customer usage and reallocates its services based on consumer demand," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

"It is very important that MBTA customers let the MBTA know when, where and how often they use MBTA services."

The community workshop will consist of a presentation by MBTA staff followed by an informal discussion between staff and public regarding the Preliminary 2004 Service Plan.

Copies of the plan are available at the Thomas Crane Public Library main branch on Washington Street, Quincy Center.

Written comments should be addressed to MBTA Service Planning Unit, 45 High St., Boston MA 02120. They will be accepted through May 10.

"I encourage people to make the MBTA aware of your service needs," said Morrissey. "Your input is essential in addressing the service needs in your community."

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 19, 1775, 700 British troops, on a mission to capture Patriot leaders and seize a Patriot arsenal, march into Lexington to find 77 armed Minutemen on the Massachusetts town's common green. Suddenly, the "shot heard around the world" was fired, and the American Revolution had begun.

• On April 21, 1838, John Muir, a dedicated advocate for the protection of American wild lands, is born in Dunbar, Scotland. Muir's conservationist ideas in books and influential magazine articles have become an accepted part of mainstream American thought.

• On April 23, 1867, William Lincoln of Providence, R.I., patents the Zoetrope. The machine showed animated pictures by mounting a strip of drawings in a moving wheel.

• On April 22, 1915, German forces shock Allied soldiers along the Western front by firing more than 150 tons of lethal chlorine gas against two French colonial divisions at Ypres, Belgium. It was the first major gas attack by the Germans, and it devastated the Allied line.

• On April 24, 1936, a group of firemen responding to an alarm in Camden, N.J., is televised. It was the first time an unplanned event was broadcast on television, anticipating the development of live TV news coverage.

• On April 25, 1990, saxophone player and influential jazz musician Dexter Gordon dies. He played a jazz musician in the critically acclaimed 1986 film "Round Midnight."

• On April 20, 1999, two teenage gunmen kill 13 people in a shooting spree at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo., and then turn their guns on themselves. The school reopened in the fall of 1999, but the massacre left behind an unmistakable scar on the community.

Finn Planning Fundraisers

Joe Finn still isn't saying he's going to run for mayor. But he is obviously giving it a lot of thought. And, apparently some planning, too.

His recent fundraiser at the Adams Inn in North Quincy seems to have been quite successful.

FINN

Finn is not releasing the exact figure raised, but does say:

"It was a good amount of money. A substantial amount. The best fundraiser I have ever had."

And, could it be the first one in building a war chest to finance a mayoral campaign?

"I am planning some more fundraisers for throughout the year," he says. "I am going to be active with fundraisers."

Finn is now in his second term as a city councillor at-large. He was a strong second spot winner in last year's election just 122 votes behind former mayor Frank McCauley who topped the at-large field.

So, you would have to say he does well running city-wide.

If he is planning "to be active with fundraisers" as he says, what would they be more likely for?

Re-election to a third term council at-large seat? Or for a mayoral bid?

He isn't saying.

Or is he?

"I'm excited," he adds, "about what the future might hold."

Well, draw your own conclusion.

QUINCY'S MILDRED GUSTAFSON, the youngest 103 year old you might ever see, has slowed down a little. But only because of a broken hip.

"She is a patient at Quincy Medical Center (Room 552), but is sitting up and receiving visitors," reports Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Community Life Center.

"Miss Mildred," as she is affectionately known by the youngsters at Beechwood, has been a regular participant in activities there.

And plans to be back.

She asked Sharron to deliver a message to her friends at Beechwood: "Tell them 103 isn't old enough to retire."

She likes to dance and intends to get back to it.

When youngsters at Beechwood helped her celebrate her 101st birthday, a five-year old had a question: "How did you get to be so old?"

Miss Mildred smilingly came back with what you might call her formula for longevity:

"I eat breakfast cereal and fruit every day. I stay away from doctors. I never say 'no' to invitations to go out. The worst thing you can do is sit too much, especially in your own home. I quit smoking — 80 years ago."

And, she had one more little ingredient:

"I always take things in stride and I roll with life's punches."

And that's what she's doing right now.

A speedy recovery, Miss Mildred.

YOUNG AT HEART — Mildred Gustafson celebrated her 103rd birthday at a party at the Beechwood Community Life Center with Senior Olympian George Conway, 101, among her friends attending.

Conway is a Quincy Senior Olympics legend with more than 150 competitive medals since he first participated at age 80 in 1983. They include track and field events.

As the senior Olympian, Conway has been designated to light the Olympic torch May 10 to get this year's events underway.

And he is determined to shake that pneumonia and be there for the honor.

Miss Mildred and George have got to be inspirations to anyone entering their Golden Years.

MILESTONE: The Noble family is celebrating the arrival of a new member.

Devon Elizabeth Gatz, daughter of Elizabeth and Steven Gatz of Westwood, was born Saturday at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth.

BOB GLORIA

And the granddaughter of Bob and Gloria Noble, one of Quincy's most active couples.

So Devon Elizabeth is the second granddaughter of Bob, Jr. and Donna and the second great-granddaughter of Bob, Sr. and Gloria.

And Devon picked a special date to make her debut: the 60th anniversary of her great grandfather's liberation from a German prisoner of war camp in World War II.

Great grandpa is past department commander of the Massachusetts American Ex-POW's.

JUST WONDERING: Wouldn't it be safer for traffic on Falls Blvd. if those trees at the bend were trimmed? Drivers coming down from Wal-Mart and those turning into the Roche Bros. parking lot have difficulty seeing one another. Could be a bad accident right there some day.

❑

AND, WHY IS it that drivers of vans and pick-up trucks love to take the first space in a parking lot, blocking the view of others coming and going?

Affordable Housing Trust Fund Committee Meets May 3

The Affordable Housing Trust Fund Committee will meet Monday, May 3 at 5 p.m. in the third floor planning department conference room in City Hall.

The committee will accept the minutes from the previous meeting and discuss old and new business.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1933 postcard view of Hancock Street in Norfolk Downs looking south from in front of today's North Quincy branch library. The cafe' on the left is now a parking lot but the rest of the buildings are pretty much unchanged. Shortly before this picture was taken, Cornelius Keohane opened his first funeral parlor on the left just after the open awning. Keohane's is the only business in this picture that is still in business in Quincy today. The Fratus family who later sold Pontiacs from here owned the Paige auto showroom and the corner building. The house in the center distance later became the site of a Boston Gear Works office building that is empty and for lease today. The flag on the right was flying outside the old Plaza Cafe'. ### A 'Thank You' From Walter White

I am writing to thank the many people who have called and written to me to express their support and concern at the mayor's decision to not reappoint me as Director of Inspectional Services for the City of Quincy. I am deeply grateful to them for their show of support and comfort during this difficult time for my family and me.

As I told my wife that fateful Thursday night, I felt like I had awoken from a dream. This was truly a dream job for me. Not in the sense that I dreamed as a child growing up in the city of aspiring to be "the building inspector." It is more in the sense that his job allowed me to use the sum of my life experience in service to the city that gave me so much as a child.

I grew up in this city in the days when people in public service were universally revered and respected. Some part of me has always aspired to achieve that kind of respect. The opportunity to serve and to have my name considered in the ranks of the city's leadership has been very fulfilling and meaningful to me.

I was given the opportunity to follow in the footsteps of some of the giants of public service from the city's past. I was also given the opportunity to stand shoulder to shoulder with some of the giants of public service in the city's present. I will always be grateful to the people that provided me with this opportunity. I will always cherish the friendships and the memories of the past six years.

The motto of the Former Massachusetts State Troopers Association is "We Served the Public Trust." The opportunity to once again serve the public trust has been the fulfillment of a dream for me.

Many thanks, once again to the many people who have expressed their support. I have been and will remain very grateful for this opportunity to serve. I would welcome such an opportunity in the future and will work toward that end because I believe that public service is a deeply fulfilling and noble pursuit.

City Council Should Elect Chief Financial Officer

When I first heard of the idea by the Phelan Administration to create an ordinance setting up the position of chief financial officer, I was dubious. Isn't the mayor supposed to be the CFO as well as the CEO? In many ways the proposed position is akin to a town manager but usually town managers run the towns with boards of selectmen or weak mayors.

Quincy has a strong mayor/weak city council structure. Adding a pseudo-town manager? Will it improve the delivery of services or just get in the way? Will it make government more efficient or just add a new layer of bureaucracy?

In Braintree the people had a chance to restructure their local government by adopting a more city-like framework. The people said not at this time. One of the proposals was to create an office of mayor and the position of town manager. Was the mayor going to appoint the manager and who would actually be running things?

We elect our mayor and city council. We shouldn't just allow the mayor to appoint the CFO if the city council goes for the idea. Any CFO should be totally independent of the mayor who appoints him. Maybe a CFO would work if it removed some of the politics which often gets in the way. However, after living in Quincy for nearly 20 years and after living in Charlestown and Somerville previously, it's awful hard to get around politics.

I agree with the Quincy Taxpayers Association. I think if we decide to have a CFO, the mayor should nominate the candidate but the CFO should be elected by the city council and report to the city council.

The CFO must be independent or the position become worthless. The CFO should be speaking and acting in the best interests of the citizens of Quincy.

Dog Nuisance At Pageant Field

Pageant Field is a diamond in the rough to be appreciated for all the uses it affords the residents of Quincy.

To have to tip-toe through the dog droppings is an insult to all of us who use this beautiful open space. I am a parent of children who use Pageant Field to play ball and participate in the various celebrations. It is a disgrace and an embarrassment to have an official call a timeout due to dog droppings. There are multiple areas along the field that dog owners can confine their dogs to, to do their business.

I am a responsible dog owner. Why can't these dog owners be also?

They Plan To Marry

Mr. Romney, you lost. Please learn to accept this fact.

The tide is moving and gay marriages will occur. You needn't feel emasculated by your inability to change laws to do your bidding. We have three branches of government for the specific reason of preventing someone, such as yourself, from acting in a dictatorial manner.

The brilliant design of the founding fathers' (although I am sure many women were involved as well) is now being tested. I hope we, as a society, pass this test.

My partner, Stephen Coady, and I have already planned our wedding for May 20, 2004 in Quincy, Massachusetts.

New Fore River Bridge Proposed

This Week
1969
35 Years Ago

Plans for a new Fore River Bridge were presented at a hearing at Faneuil Hall. The new bridge would handle increased traffic not over the bridge, but under it.

General Dynamics, area business leaders and Sen. James McIntyre had been among those advocating a new bridge to allow the shipyard to bid on larger ships. The current span of 175 feet would be increased to 300 feet under the new design.

While there was no opposition to the proposal, Sen. William Weeks of Cohasset requested that the hearing be continued so that the Weymouth selectmen could testify. Their concerns were with the amount of landtaking that would be needed on the Weymouth side of the river.

There was no endorsement of a specific design, although the swing bridge being pushed by General Dynamics was under study by the state Department of Public Works as the least costly, at a price tag of $5 million.

HEADSTART PROGRAM UNDERWAY

David Ezickson, director of the city's Headstart program, announced that 42 youngsters were enrolled, with more than 100 applications to be screened.

The eight-week education experience for pre-schools was funded with $6,162 from the city and $19,984 from the federal government.

Russell O'Connell, executive director of the Community Action organization, said that the program would operate at four schools, with 17 students per class. Schools participating included Snug Harbor with four classrooms, and one classroom each at Parker, John Hancock and Daniel Webster schools.

BELL-BOTTOMS AND SHORTS AT STERLING

Bell-bottom pants, shorts and culottes were allowed at Sterling for one day this week as part of a fund-raising effort by the student council to benefit CARE.

For 25 cents students purchased the right to participate in the school's casual dress day.

Male teachers also participated and took the opportunity to wear turtle neck sweaters.

QUINCY-ISMS

A $70,000 dredging project of Quincy Bay near Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs began this week, with completion expected before the beginning of the boating season. . . Initial approval was given at the State House for a Quincy Government Center Commission to build a combined city hall, parking garage and auditorium. . . ## Fundraising Brunch May 23 To Honor Kerry Chadbourne

The Chadbourne family and the Laborers' Union Local 133 will host a benefit brunch in memory of the late Kerry Chadbourne Sunday, May 23, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, at the George F. Bryan VFW Post on Broad Street.

Chadbourne, who died Nov. 27, worked for the Quincy Housing Authority for 23 years and was a member and officer of the Laborers' International Union of North America for 35 years. He was also active in building recreational facilities in Quincy.

The donation for tickets is $25 and may be purchased at the union office, 265 Washington St., Quincy Point; or the Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea St. Houghs Neck. They are also available from Howie at 781-356-2907 or Tracy at 781-294-4112 or Karan at 781-829-5087.

Checks payable to the KHC Memorial Fund should be sent to the Laborer's International Union of NA Local No. 133, c/o KHC Memorial Fund, PO Box 690431, Quincy MA 02269.

Proceeds of the brunch will go toward building of a memorial park for seniors adjacent to O'Brien Towers in Germantown, including a gazebo, walkways, picnic benches and other amenities.

Women's Fitness Classes At Fore River Clubhouse

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct two women's fitness classes at the Fore River Clubhouse, Quincy Point, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The classes begin April 26 and conclude June 18. Both programs will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at 8:15 or 9:15. The instructor will be Karen Gaughan.

Each class includes exercise to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercise allows each participant to work at their own pace.

The cost of the program is $46 for 23 classes. Registration is on a first-come, first-serve basis. For more information call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

2 Residents Inducted Into Regis National Honor Society

Two Quincy residents were inducted into the National Honor Society at Regis College in Weston.

They are: Pui Lo, Alpha Lamboda Delta, National Honor Society for First Year Students; and Ellen Blaney, Delta Epsilon Sigma, National Honor Society for Catholic Colleges and Universities, and Pi Gamma Mu, International Honor Society in Social Science.

Morrisette Post Accepting Applications For Scholarships

Applications for scholarships are being accepted by the Cyril P. Morrisette Post No. 294, American Legion, from this year's high school graduates or graduates of other secondary schools who are children or grandchildren of members in good standing of Morrisette Post or, if deceased, were members in good standing at the time of their deaths.

Applicants must have been accepted as freshman in institutions of higher learning awarding bachelor or associate degrees.

Applications may be picked up at the law offices of Atty. Carl R. Johnson III, 10 McGrath Highway, Quincy. When completed, applications must be mailed or delivered, with required documentation, to Scholarship Chairman Paul A. M. Hunt, c/o Carl R. Johnson III, Esq., 10 McGrath Highway, Quincy MA 02169. Applications must be received on or before May 5 at 4 p.m.

Applicants will be notified of their interview times assigned for the evening of May 10, or May 11, if necessary.

Senior Seminar To Discuss Protecting Assets

The Quincy Council on Aging will sponsor a seminar on how seniors can protect their assets from nursing home costs and probate Thursday, May 6, at Marina Place Assisted Living, 4 Seaport Drive, Quincy.

Additional topics to be discussed include transferring assets, the Homestead Act, trusts, long term care insurance, estate taxes and gifting.

Specific questions may be asked and individual appointments made if necessary.

To attend the seminar, call the Council on Aging at 617-376-1506.

Hannah Chan Wants To Help Dogs And Cats

Central 8th Grader's Concert Raises $2,000 For Animal Shelter

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

Every year, eighth grade students in the advanced placement program at Central Middle School do a project in which they identify problems they see within the community and research them.

Like her other classmates, Hannah Chan, 13, found a problem that interested her.

But Hannah didn't want to just research the problem. She wanted to help solve it.

Hannah came up with the idea about a month ago to put on a concert at Central to raise money for the Quincy Animal Shelter. And last Friday, Central Middle School students danced to the music of JAD Xand 12 year-old Jillian Wheeler, the star of the movie "Mystic River." Hannah even got Radio Disney to broadcast the entire event.

"She's a remarkable girl. She put together the whole concert. That's a great deal of work," said Central Principal Frank Santoro.

Hannah used her love of music — she's a member of the chorus — and her passion for animal welfare — she owns two birds and some fish — to better the community.

Hannah called and booked the artists herself. With the help of a few classmates, she plastered posters around the school and collected money from each class.

"I always thought about how cool it would be to talk to musicians," said Hannah.

Each student paid $5 to attend the show. With more than half of the student body attending, Hannah raised approximately $2,000 for the animal shelter.

Hannah said she first learned of the Quincy Animal Shelter by watching the "Pet of the Week" program on Quincy Access Television. She said the dogs and cats looked sad and she wanted to help them.

Hannah's outreach sparked the interest of several classmates. She recruited John Storella, Tim Schow, Kaylene Gobbi, Caley Jennie and Kim Lyons to help her with the event and spread the word about the plight of the animals at the shelter. On Friday, these students, all eighth-graders in the advanced placement program, helped Hannah collect and count the money.

"I feel bad for the puppies and cats that don't have homes," said Caley.

Tim chimed in, "I love animals."

Santoro said this is the first time in the project's three-year history that a student has taken a project to this next level. He said the projects, which include interviews with city officials, aim to get students involved in their communities and show them that they can help with community issues.

He also said the projects help erode the perception that adolescents are self-absorbed.

Hannah said she learned a lot about the shelter by researching her project. And by organizing the concert, she even learned some new things about her classmates.

"(I realized) how nice people actually are," said Hannah, smiling. "Some divisions gave all their lunch money."

Aviva Life To Sponsor Cleaner, Greener Quincy

The Aviva Life Insurance Company, headquartered in North Quincy, has signed on as the corporate sponsor of the 15th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy, which is scheduled for Saturday, May 1.

Hans L. Carstensen III, president and CEO of Aviva, presented a check for $5,000 to Mayor William Phelan to seal the deal.

"We are thrilled to see Aviva taking such an active role in our mission to beautify the city of Quincy," said Phelan.

"I am proud to witness our residents, city workers and local business joining together to achieve a common goal: making our city a more beautiful place to live, work and visit."

Carstensen said he too is proud that Aviva can take part in the cleanup endeavor.

"We appreciate the opportunity to play a role in this wonderful initiative to help make Quincy cleaner and greener," he said.

"While our core corporate values of integrity, progressiveness, performance and teamwork drive our approach to doing business, they also characterize the spirit of our Community Involvement Program."

Residents are urged to participate in the cleanup which is scheduled for 9 a.m. to 12 noon in parks and beaches in all six wards of the city.

Ward 1 - Edgewater Drive Beach and Perry Beach.

Ward 2 - Avalon Beach, Fore River Field and Faxon Park.

Ward 3 - Bishop Field and Wollaston.

Ward 4 - Lincoln Hancock.

Ward 5 - Butler Pond, Sailors' Home Pond (10 a.m.), Merrymount Park (10 a.m.) and Wollaston Beach (10 a.m., meet at Wollaston Yacht Club).

Ward 6 - Orchard Beach and Nickerson Beach.

In addition to the designated cleanup sites, residents are encouraged to organize a cleanup at a park, beach or open space area in their neighborhoods.

Contact Kristen Keohane at the Quincy Park Department (617-376-1251) so that the Park Department can provide the necessary tools for the location.

Following the cleanup, Mayor Phelan will host an appreciation cookout from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the Richard J. Koch Park & Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

T-shirts will be distributed to all volunteers.

"For the past 10 years, we have been fortunate to have Stop & Shop provide the hamburgers, hot dogs and soda for our cookout," said Phelan.

"I hope that everyone will join me following the cleanup for some well-deserved relaxation, a bite to eat and a lot of fun."

For more information, contact the Park Department at 617-376-1251.

Annual Boston Heart Party To Screen Women's Health

Pfizer Inc. and Boston healthcare providers will hold the sixth annual Boston Heart Party Saturday, April 24, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the Granite Medical Health Fair, 500 Congress St. Quincy.

Sponsors will offer free cardio vascular disease risk factor screening and motivation for more women in Quincy to know their numbers for blood pressure, cholesterol and glucose.

The party, which will accept walk-ins only, no appointments, is designed to encourage women and their loved ones to elevate their awareness of manageable risk factors, like high blood pressure and high cholesterol.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death in Massachusetts women age 65 or older. Free screenings are open to all women age 35 and older in local communities from March 18 to May 13, 2004.

Since 1999, nearly 20,000 women have been screened in the Boston Heart Party's campaign.

In addition to Pfizer, the sponsors of the party include Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Needham, Boston Medical Center, Brigham and Women's Hospital.

Nancy's Colossal Coconut Shrimp

The very first time I tasted coconut fried shrimp was in Florida a few years ago. And ever since then, I often order it when I eat out. However, I had never cooked it myself until last week when our sister-in-law Nancy sent this recipe to me. Unlike most of my recipes, this one is fried, but once in a while fried is good!

In a bowl, combine the first five ingredients. Stir in water and oil until smooth.

Dip the shrimp into the batter, then coat it with the coconut. In hot oil, fry the shrimp a few at a time for three minutes or until golden brown. Drain on paper towels. (if using an electric frying pan, heat oil to 375 degrees.)

For the sauce, heat the marmalade and honey. Stir until blended. Serve as a dipping sauce for the shrimp. Feeds four.

Coconut Fried Shrimp

1 1/4 cups flour
1 1/4 cups cornstarch
6 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon Cajun seasoning (optional)
1 1/2 cups cold water
1/2 teaspoon vegetable oil
1 pound uncooked large shrimp, peeled and deveined
2 1/2 cups flaked coconut
Additional oil for deep frying.
Sauce for dipping
1 cup orange marmalade
1/4 cup honey

89 Percent Say 'Yes'

Should Supreme Court Retain 'Under God' In Allegiance Pledge?

YES NO

Who says God does not belong in the pledge of allegiance to the flag of the United States? Not the good folks who live and work around Quincy, that's for sure!

An informal Quincy poll of its readers shows that fully 89 percent of them would like to see the U. S. Supreme Court overrule the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in California and retain the phrase "under God" in the pledge.

In fact, Geraldine Mullen of Bowes Avenue, Quincy, was so incensed at the thought of losing it that she sat down and penned a brief and to-the-point commentary to go along with her vote.

"Don't even think of it!" she wrote.

"Change the allegiance to the flag when a lot of nations hate us? No way! Now, more than ever, we need our Lord's blessing and protection.

"The world is a crazy mess. Some people would like to destroy anything good. Good programs, music in the schools, bands that make us proud to be Americans. Programs that help the mentally ill, funds for the homeless.

"We should be proud of Father Bill, Atlantic House and the Discovery program. High school bands were great when my children went to school. We cut the good things and then wonder why children turn to drugs.

"I say 'God bless America!'"

The U. S. Supreme Court will have the final say on the question of God in the pledge of allegiance. Meanwhile, you too can register your feelings in The Quincy Sun's poll.

Simply put a check mark in the box of your choice — "Yes" to retain the phrase "under God" in the pledge of allegiance" "No" to eliminate the phrase "under God" from the pledge of allegiance and send it to:

The Quincy Sun
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy 02169

Or fax it to The Sun at: 617-472-3963

The final results of the poll will be published in a later edition of The Sun.

Delahunt Denounces Bush Section 8 Cuts

Rep. William Delahunt has joined activists from the South Shore and Cape Cod in denouncing the Bush Administration's cuts in funding for the Section 8 housing program.

Within the coming weeks, he said, if no remedy is found, hundreds of residents of his district could be dropped from the program as a result of these cuts.

Statewide, he added, the number could be as high as 3,000.

Delahunt and the other critics spoke at a hearing in the Gardner Auditorium at the State House.

Section 8 funds come from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and are distributed by the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Low income families and individuals use the funds to offset the skyrocketing cost of rental housing. The cuts are particularly hard on the Cape where the labor force is shrinking due to the lack of affordable housing.

Quincy High Students Hold Science Olympics

Whether it was dropping eggs from a window or constructing paper towers, Quincy High School science students combined science and a lot of fun last week.

Nearly 480 science students in grades 9-12 participated in the Quincy High School Science Olympics, designed to allow students at different levels of science study to demonstrate their knowledge, ingenuity, and critical thinking skills as they participated in problem solving events.

Among the events held were:

• The Egg Drop: Students tested original egg vehicles designed to protect an egg from breaking in a four story fall. Any vehicle in which the egg was broken was disqualified. The vehicles could be made of any materials, but were limited in size to the dimensions of a shoebox.

• Float Your Boat: Students used principles of physics to construct small boats from 30 centimeter square sheets of aluminum foil. The boat that remained floating while holding the greatest mass was the winner.

• Leaning Tower of Paper: Participants were given one sheet of paper and 50 centimeters of masking tape. The task was to use their engineering skills and these materials to construct that tallest freestanding tower possible. The winning height was 105.5 centimeters.

• Name That Disaster: Students had to recognize famous natural disasters of the past and locate them on a map of the world. The student identifying them correctly in the least amount of time was the winner.

• Chemistry Jeopardy: Participants played a game based on the popular TV show, Jeopardy. The difference was that all of the categories were related to chemistry.

This year's winners of the contests:

Chemistry Jeopardy
The team of Greg Amara and Geoff Hicks

Show Your Star Power
First place: Emily Gaeta. Second Place: Jason Lin

Name That Disaster
First place: Brittany Reamer. Second Place: Eddie Montagna. Third Place: Andrew Henck

Leaning Tower of Paper
First place: Ledia Kadiu. Second Place: Hui Pan. Third Place: Chu Vu

Write it! Do it! First place team: John Alexander and Jia Wei Chen. Second Place Team: Rob McKeever and Dhimiter Kondili. Third Place Team: Christina Tat and Thao Ngo.

Float Your Boat - First place: Ilene Perez. Second Place: Kerece Johnson. Third Place: Steve Bythrow.

Egg Drop - First Place: Nicole O'Sullivan. Second Place: Mohammed Malik. Third Place: Catherine Gropp.

Metric Mastery - First Place: Dhimiter Kondili. Second Place: Wendy Szeto. Third Place: Weihan Liu.

Newspaper Bridge Building – First Place: Mai Lai. Second Place: Ling Lin. Third Place: Anthony Parker.

METRIC MASTERY – Quincy High School student Dhimiter Kondili takes part in the Metric Mastery portion of the school's recent Science Olympics. More than 480 students participated in various science events designed to increase their knowledge and demonstrate their critical thinking skills. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Noble

PUBLIC MEETING regarding the Tanker Truck accident and gasoline release at 1250 Hancock St. on August 21, 2003. Meeting to take place 7:00pm on Thursday April 29, 2004 at Quincy High School Auditorium.

22 Quincy School Nurses To Walk In Lions Club Run/Walk For Sight

Twenty-two Quincy public school nurses will walk as a group in Saturday's seventh annual Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight at Pageant Field.

Over the years, Quincy Lions Club has provided eye exams and eyeglasses to Quincy public school students who are in need.

"School nurses throughout the commonwealth are mandated to conduct eye exams on their students," said Joan Yankun, a nurse at Sterling Middle School for the past 14 years.

"When a child fails this vision screening, and a parent can't provide the eyeglasses, a phone call to the Lions Club has always resulted in the child receiving the eyeglasses that is needed.

"It's all behind the scenes and they never get any recognition. We just want to thank them for all the years. It's time to pay them back."

BBB Cautions Consumers Of Gas Saving Schemes

As gasoline prices approach $2 a gallon, and from all reports will exceed that this summer, the Better Business Bureau (BBB) Serving Eastern Massachusetts, Maine and Vermont warns consumers to be conscious of gas saving schemes.

Rising gasoline prices have become an important issue across America. Increased demand will likely result from an improving economy. Memorial Day travel and the extra hour of light from day light savings.

Based on BBB history and experience, the bureau has seen numerous gas saving schemes in the past, especially during the 1970s gas crisis. Typically, the schemes are for gas saving devices that attach to your engine, special gas gaps and fuel additives, none of which save anyone gas. In fact, it costs to purchase these items and ends up costing you money rather than saving.

"The BBB urges and cautions consumers not to be taken by 'gas' saving schemes," said Robert H. Williams, president and CEO of the BBB. "The schemes will result in loss of money not gas savings. The BBB wants to be proactive and get the warnings out prior to the flood of calls from potential victims of such schemes."

The cost of gasoline is at an all-time high, so many motorists are wondering what they can do to improve their gas mileage. What you spend at the pump is influenced in part by how you drive and what type of gasoline you use to fill your tank. Most gas stations offer three octane grades: regular, mid-grade and premium.

To improve gas mileage, drivers should:

• Choose the right octane for your car. Check your owner's manual to find out what octane your engine needs (regular for most vehicles), then buy it.

• Use gas stations with high traffic. This guarantees fresher gas.

• Avoid filling directly after delivery truck has delivered gas; sentiment tends to get kicked up.

• Keep your tires inflated to the proper levels. Properly inflated tires provide less road resistance and can improve fuel efficiency. Check your owner's manual for the guide to appropriate inflation levels.

• Keep your engine maintained according to manufacturer's recommendations. Make sure that you change the oil and get tune-ups according to your owner's manual.

Show Your Car You Care

(NAPS) - No matter what it says on the calendar, winter may still be having an effect on your car.

The grit and grime from demanding driving conditions may still be lingering under your hood.

Now is the time to show your car that you care. The automotive experts at AutoZone recommend a 10-point spring check-up to revitalize your car:

1. Change your oil and oil filter (ideally every three months or 3,000 miles).

2. If it's been more than two years or 24,000 miles since you've changed your automotive transmission fluid and filter, change that now, too.

3. If you have a front-wheel-drive vehicle, check the condition of the CV boots. If torn or cracked, replacing them now could save you hundreds of dollars in repairs.

4. Make sure your tires are properly inflated and rotate your tires if it's been six months since your last did so.

5. Make sure your shocks and struts are working properly. Look for oil leaks and other signs of damage.

6. Check all lights and bulbs – headlights, brake and tail lights, turn signals, license plate bulbs, etc.

7. If your windshield wipers are streaking and smearing, or if they are more than six months old, replace them.

8. Replace your air filter and "forgotten filters" – the fuel filter, the PCV valve and the breather filter.

9. Add a clean bottle of fuel system cleaner at your next fill-up.

10. Top off all fluid levels, including windshield washer fluid, brake fluid, power steering fluid and antifreeze.

Don't forget to check all cells of your battery and top them off with distilled water.

Car care should stop under the hood. Give your car a thorough washing and waxing to protect it from the elements. If left to bake in the hot sun, bird droppings, tree sap and dead bugs can permanently harm your car's finish.

Be sure to use a soap designed for washing cars. A good car soap will clean off grime and is specifically make to work on a car's finish.

Regular or High-Test?

Q. I just bought a new 2004 Toyota Highlander with a 3.3-liter V-6 engine. My dealer said it's OK to use 87-octane unleaded fuel, but in my owner's manual it clearly states that if I use 91-octane premium unleaded, I'll find that the engine performs better. What should I do? — *Pam E., e-mail from Pennsylvania

A. Pam, I looked into your situation and even checked a new Highlander owner's manual, and just as you say, it does state that you can run 87-octane fuel. I also called Toyota, and the agent agreed that you can run 87 octane, but said the engine was designed to run on 91 or better.

Now, if Toyota says you can run an 87-octane rating, I'm sure it is doing so because you can. But from my standpoint, Toyota's new V-6 should require unleaded premium — and unleaded premium only.

This new engine from Toyota is a 3.3-liter double overhead cam V-6 with lots of high-tech additions. It has a compression ratio of 10.8 to 1, which is, in my opinion, too high for 87-octane fuel.

If you use 87 octane, you may run the chance of engine "ping." This is a serious detonation situation where the cylinder starts to fire before it should because of carbon deposits left in the cylinder from things like — you guessed it — a too-low-octane fuel.

In summary, spend the extra for the premium fuel. In the long run, you'll be glad you did.

Smith Auto Sales Celebrates 10th Birthday

Smith Auto Sales is celebrating its 10th birthday by moving into a new facility at 34 Liberty St., Quincy, with nearly four times the space as the old location, only a quarter of a mile away on Water Street.

The new facility, nearly an acre in size, will allow Owner Stephen Smith and General Manager Joe Baiardi to display up to 40 vehicles and still maintain parking space for 15 cars of customers and employees.

The company specializes in quality, pre-owned cars and trucks and makes every effort to keep only quality vehicles in its inventory.

"We are very proud to be a member of the "CARFAx" network that offers vehicle history reports for customer inspection," said Smith.

The completely rehabilitated building on Liberty Street provides for four bays for service under the service manager, William Hayes. Smith is proud of always being able to service the cars they sell.

Smith grew up in Quincy but he and his wife, Katie, he business office manager, now live in Hanover with their family.

During their Grand Opening period, Smith Auto Sales is offering a $500 bonus toward the purchase of any car or truck. All major credit cards are accepted and financing is available on premises.

The doors are open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and closed Sunday.

Hull Artists, Gardeners Show

The Hull Artists Studio Connection and the Hull Garden Club will welcome spring with a art and flower show Saturday and Sunday, April 24-25, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Mary Jeanette Murray Bathhouse on Nantasket Beach.

Admission is free.

Each painting, photo or craft will be enhanced with a flower arrangement made by the Hull Garden Club. Hull High School students will also show their talents in an art exhibit.

The fresh flower arrangement from the show will be raffled off on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. Proceeds will go into a scholarship fund for a Hull High School senior entering an art-related field.

Artwork by local artists will be available for sale and some artists will give "Art in Action" demonstrations during the show.

MOC
THE BLUE CHIP ENTERPRISE INITIATIVE
1999 AWARD

Edward Keohane Honored As Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

of the judging panel. Extra copies were presented to those attending.

Dave Murphy, representing Mayor William Phelan, read a proclamation, presented Keohane and Sun Editor Robert Bosworth from Phelan [illegible] and the city's appreciation for their support.

He [illegible] said in part: "Presenting city of Quincy [illegible] the appreciation for your hard work and dedication to improve, beautify and promote our great city. We congratulate you on this most deserving recognition."

Murphy added a tribute of his own: "Not only does Ed manage to get quite a lot done, but it's amazing how much fun he has in the process."

City Council President and former mayor Frank McCauley, acting mayor in Phelan's absence, said:

"Deserved has become a popular, popular award and the reason it has is because of the names [illegible] who have been on this. Past recipients [illegible] great leaders."

Ward 4 Councillor [illegible] called Keohane "a gentleman but he has always found the time to do some things extra for his city. Certainly this award is very appropriate."

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro presented a citation on behalf of the entire city council to Keohane, a lifetime resident of that ward "for a life time dedication to his fellow man."

In a [illegible] tribute Gutro added:

"Here's what I [illegible] one of the founding fathers of beautification and tourism in the city of Quincy. And there's no one more proud to call the city of Quincy home. Congratulations on being one of our most respected citizens."

Senator [illegible] Michael Morrissey presented a State Senate citation and said:

"It is a pleasure to look around this room and to see all the lives you have touched and all the activities you have been involved in. The city is really a better place. When you look at the list of past recipients – some are here today – these individuals have volunteered their time to the city in which they live to really improve the quality of life. It is great to see Ed honored."

Rep. Bruce Ayers presented a House of Representatives citation on behalf of himself and Reps. Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin, his State House colleagues.

"Ed Keohane certainly has a deep commitment to the city of Quincy," Ayers said. "He chose to live here, raise his family here, have his business here and go beyond that by getting involved in many community and civic events for the betterment of the city. Ed, we thank you for all your hard work and dedication."

The Rev. Monsignor Robert P. Deeley, pastor of St. Ann's Church, where Keohane and his wife, Joan, are parishioners, recalled:

"When I first came to Quincy, as I looked through the records of the parish, Ed and Joan Keohane were everywhere in those records. They have been involved and engaged in the life of our parish community for many years and have enriched it."

And, he added:

"You will always see them at the events for the school. Isn't that what it is all about? Building a community for our children, creating a world in which they can experience life in the best way possible. That is what Ed and Joan have been about."

"They also have fun with good friends who are here today. I have never seen them at any of these functions . . . that they aren't enjoying the company of people like yourselves who share an interest in their community and want to make Quincy and the world in which we live a better place. I congratulate you, Ed and Joan, for all the work that you do for the city and all the institutions in the city, including our wonderful parish."

Robert Curry, chairman of the Quincy Medical Center Board of Directors, a 1997 recipient of The Sun Citizen of the Year Award and longtime close friend of Ed and Joan Keohane, had this tribute:

"Eddie and Joan should be receiving this award together. Joan has been such a big part of his life. It is a Joan and Eddie thing.

"Eddie has worked awfully hard with Joan at his side. He is a bright guy, a capable guy, a real entrepreneur who shares his wealth with all of us. Not just his financial wealth, but all of his wealth. He's done so many wonderful things in this city. We celebrate with you, The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year, Ed, but we also cherish your and Joan's friendship."

In accepting the award, Keohane thanked The Sun and the judges that selected him and observed:

"When good things happen, it's always because there are good people around you. This is certainly true with the folks and family and friends that are in this room today."

Keohane recognized the other members of the Quincy Partnership and introduced his family, noting that his grandchildren represent the family's fifth generation to live in Quincy.

"That is one more generation than the Adams family themselves. So I am very proud of that."

Keohane said he was honored to join the past recipients of The Sun award and said to those recipients present: "To each and every one of you, the things that you do for the city of Quincy is appreciated.

"We may not always get a thank you for what we do, but as long as we're doing something that is positive, you keep on going and this city will continue to grow, prosper and to be something to be proud of.

"I hope and wish and pray that will continue through the years. I know it will with our generation. Make sure it is in your generation. Again, thank you all."

Cathy Nettles has joined Century 21 Annex Realty, with offices in Quincy and Hanover, as a Realtor, announces Broker and company Owner Art Foley.

A licensed sales agent for more than 15 years, Nettles recently obtained the Realtor designation and now works in the Quincy office, serving the residential needs of customers throughout greater Boston and the South Shore.

Nettles' background is in technology, customer service and management. Prior to pursuing a full-time real estate career, she spent 28 years at State Street Corporation, where she held a variety of positions, including Information Systems Analyst, Customer Service Manager and Project Manager.

CATHY NETTLES

Nettles said the ability to "read" one's client and determine his/her individual needs is essential to succeeding in the real estate industry. "A good sales agent focuses every effort on the customer, so they can achieve the 'American Dream' of homeownership," she said.

"I am excited to be part of a corporation with such a strong national reputation and I'm looking forward to practicing my customer relations skills in a new arena."

"Cathy brings a mixture of business savvy and charisma to her work as a Realtor," Foley said. "As a Boston native and longtime Quincy resident, she also has a firm grasp of the local real estate market, which will greatly benefit her clients."

During her free time, Nettles enjoys singing in the choir at St. Ann's Parish in Wollaston, serving as a Eucharistic Minister at Carney Hospital in Dorchester and participating in the "Spirit of State Street" volunteer group.

She has one son, Scott, who is 30 years old.

Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., has provided comprehensive real estate services to the South Shore since 1978. For more information about Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., or services, including sales, rentals, appraisals, property management, continuing education programs and free notary services, call the Quincy office at 617-472-4330.

Conway Co. Breaks 48-Year Sales Record For Quarter

Real estate activity at the 42 Jack Conway Co. offices continued at a brisk pace, said Chairman Jack Conway, noting figures for the first quarter are the highest in the company's 48-year history.

Indications are that the 48-year-old eastern Massachusetts based firm will be breaking another all time sales record.

"The year started off at a moderate level, with the temperatures dipping down deep into the subfreezing area for most of the month. So the result was with slightly higher prices the whole sales effort increased only on percent in January," Conway said.

"Then things took off in February and we ran an amazing 43 percent up, and 26 percent up in March, leaving us about 24 percent ahead for the first three months of this year. We never had a start like this and I am just thrilled that we are able to keep up with it all and render as much service to the public as we did."

Richard F. Cahill, President and Chief Operating Officer for the company, credited a continued enthusiasm for owning real estate, unusually low mortgage interest rates, and an improving job picture as the three reasons why the market continues strong.

"The public still feels that real estate is the best investment of them all and they feel that there are not many places where you can get the comfort of a home and the security of an investment that increases in value anywhere between 6-8 percent a year," said Cahill.

Cahill pointed to the 737 sales associates of the Jack Conway Co., operating out of 43 sales centers from Boston through the South Shore and South coast, Southwest and Cape Cod as being the driving force of the company's increase in sales.

Conway said that he is very proud of the fact that the company was rated last year by the national Realtor magazine as the 70th largest real estate company in America, and the largest independent in all of Massachusetts and northern New England.

"The ratings for this year will be out shortly, and we hope that we increase our position," he added.

Neighborhood Housing 'Financial Fitness' Workshop Begins May 3

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, a leader in first-time homebuyer resources and education, will sponsor a "Financial Fitness Club" workshop beginning Monday, May 3.

Classes, which are also scheduled on May 5, 10, 12 and 17, will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the U.G. Shelton, Jr. Self-Help and Head Start Building, 370 Howard St., Brockton.

Fee is $25 per person.

Neighborhood Housing Services recommends this workshop to anyone needing help with credit. Without good credit and sufficient income, many banks may not consider those with credit issues a desirable customer.

The workshop is designed to enhance money skills by correcting credit issues and maximizing income to access the best home mortgage.

Topics include developing savings; credit review and repair; banking services; and the mortgage process.

Daycare will be provided.

Advance registration is required. To register, call (617) 770-2227 ext. 31.

Spring Cleaning

Yes, it's that time of year. Time to open the windows, shake out the rugs and clear away a winter's worth of dust and cobwebs. No one looks forward to it, but as tiring as a top-to-bottom housecleaning is, there's also a certain satisfaction in clearing out the old to make way for the new, whether it's new furniture, paint or just a change in décor.

Cleaning doesn't just entail a quick sweep of the floor, however. Many items are overlooked in the hustle of converting a home to summer living, and they can make a difference in health and safety, as well as in your energy bills.

• Refrigerator coils: Clean dust and debris from around these coils, located either underneath or on the back of your refrigerator. A vacuum cleaner can do the job easily, as long as the area is not wet. You'll extend the life of this essential appliance and save money on the electric bill.

• Dryer vent: In addition to cleaning the dryer's lint filter every few loads, go behind the dryer as well and clear dust, debris and lint from the floor. Pull the flexible vent from its wall attachment and clean away any collected lint inside. The dryer will run more efficiently, and you'll have resolved a potential fire hazard as well.

• Furnace/air conditioning: Clean both units, using a vacuum to remove dust, and change the filters in both.

• Floor registers: Vacuum dust out of these heating vents and check to make sure their covers are securely attached.

• Fire extinguishers and smoke/carbon monoxide detectors: Make sure extinguishers are fully charged and change the batteries in all detectors. Test each detector to make sure it works.

Outside, inspect the home from top (chimney) to bottom and look for damage left by winter weather. Remove fallen branches and other debris from the roof and clean the gutters so that rainwater flows freely through them. Look underneath the soffits to make sure the house's air vents are not blocked by leaves or bird nests. Rake debris from the lawn, de-thatch and fertilize for spring growth.

There's a lot of things to do listed here, and you've probably got many more on your own list. Split up the chores among family members and schedule some maintenance items over multiple weekends. Spring cleaning isn't fun, but in the end you'll be glad you did it.

New Program A 'Dream' For Home Buyers

(NAPS) Buying a home will become a little easier on the wallet for an estimated 40,000 families in the next year, thanks to the American Dream Downpayment Act. This federal government program was signed into law last December, allocating $200 million annually to be administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The funds will provide maximum down payment assistance of either $10,000 or six percent of the home's purchase price, whichever is greater.

The American Dream Downpayment Act is aimed at low-income buyers who find down payments and closing costs a significant barrier to owning their own home. This and other new legislation are expected to contribute to meeting the Bush administration's goal of increasing minority homeownership by 5.5 million by the end of the decade.

Ye even more assistance may be just around the corner. Federal Housing Commissioner John C. Weicher recently announced a proposal for a "zero down payment" mortgage while speaking at the National Association of Home Builders' annual convention. As part of its Fiscal 2005 budge request, HUD would eliminate the statutory requirement for a minimum three percent down payment on FHA-insured single-family mortgages for first-time homebuyers. This new mortgage product is projected to generate approximately 150,000 buyers in the first year alone.

Such programs are welcome news to professional Buyer's Representatives throughout the country, who have long championed new initiatives for increasing homeowners. The addition of these programs to existing financing plans will offer prospective homebuyers an even wider array of options. However, they will also add to what many consumers see as the confusion of a very involved undertaking.

That's why the expertise of Accredited Buyer's Representatives (ABR) can be so helpful. As members of the Real Estate Buyer's Agent Council (REBAC), they have completed extensive training focused on providing the services and up-to-date knowledge that can help make the home buying process less intimidating and more successful.

An affiliate of the National Association of REALTORS, REBAC numbers over 44,000 members, all dedicated to superior buyer representation. To find an ABR in your area, and to request your free Homebuyer's Kit, call 800-648-6224 or visit www.rebac.net.

Strong Quincy Battles State Champs In 3-0 Loss

SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School softball team seemed excited Monday afternoon following its 3-0 loss to Cardinal Spellman at Pageant Field.

About a loss? Sure, when it's against a perennial powerhouse program and the defending state champions that swept the Presidents last season by a combined score of 18-1.

"They scare the heck out of you because they're state champs and they're a great program," said head coach Mike Sedar. "They're a very good team. They're just solid all the way through.

"Last year at this time we played them and they spanked us a little bit. But we were a better team after that. Now if we can play them 3-0, we should be able to go into our league and do fairly well. This will probably be the best team we'll play this year.

"I don't like to lose, don't get me wrong. But if you told me we were going to be down 3-0 and with a chance to win in the seventh inning, I would've been surprised. I don't think we've been this strong this early."

Quincy (2-2) has another crack at Cardinal Spellman today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. and it will host Braintree tomorrow (Friday) morning at 11.

Junior quad-captain and No. 1 pitcher Rebecca Sorensen tossed a strong game against a potent lineup, allowing two earned runs on four hits while striking out seven and walking three.

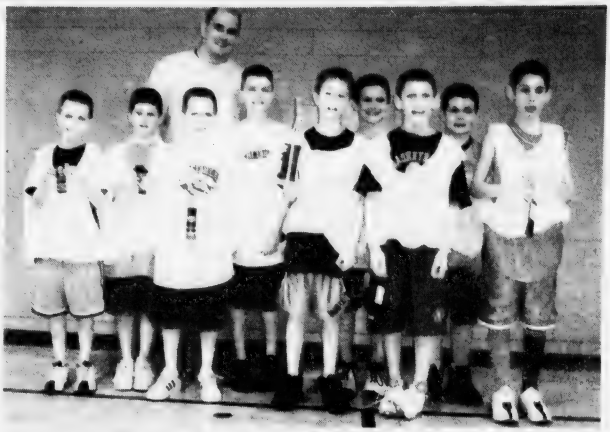
She's pitching in place of her older sister, Rachel, who was diagnosed with Guillian-Barre Syndrome, a disease that attacks the neurological system, and will miss her senior season.

"Rebi pitched today," Sedar said. "Sometimes she can just be a thrower. It was just an unbelievable pitching performance. They had a couple of scratchers, and a couple of balls we could've played better."

Quincy had its best scoring chance in the first inning. With two outs, sophomore Courtney Hall and junior quad-captain Alysia DiMuzio reached on infield singles and advanced to second and third on a delay double steal. But they were left stranded there.

"I would like to be able to say I called that one, but I didn't," Sedar said of the double steal. "Courtney Hall did it on her own. She's the best at it. She'll just wait for the pitcher to turn the wrong way and she's gone. She really plays heads-up ball."

Cardinal Spellman reached Sorensen for a run in the second inning when the leadoff hitter walked, moved to third on a single and scored on a sacrifice fly.



And it added a pair in the third frame. Sorensen yielded consecutive singles and a one-out walk to load the bases. The next batter grounded out to second for a 2-0 lead. The third run came home on a passed ball with the cleanup hitter, the dangerous Ashley Bernstein, at the pate. Sorensen caught her looking at strike three to end the inning.

Sorensen got stronger as the game progressed. She allowed just one hit the rest of the game, striking out the side in the fourth and retiring the side in order in the sixth and seventh innings.

The Presidents left seven runners on base, six in scoring position. Sorensen and DiMuzio each went 2-for-3 and senior Caitlyn Callahan and junior Rebecca Williams each singled.

"We couldn't get that timely hit," Sedar said. "It's too bad. I keep saying I wish we had a little bit more speed on the base paths. That would help us a little bit."

"This is great for us at this time of the year," he added. "We have some things to fix. We need to hit the ball a little better. I think our defense is solid. If Rebi keeps throwing like this, we're going to be OK."

Atlantic School Wins Basketball Jamboree

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual "Basketball Jamboree" for elementary age boys and girls from gym programs throughout the city.

The event featured a half-hour basketball skills clinic and a series of mini-games in a jamboree format that maximizes participation for the players in a fun-filled morning of basketball.

In the end, host Atlantic won the Jamboree Cup with a 16-12 win over Wollaston in the final game of the day.

Recreation Leader Barry Welch presented achievement ribbons to the participants in the Jamboree final.

Coached by recreation leader Keith Deshler, Atlantic had a well-balanced team with scoring spread among five players. Thomas Mannion had a team-high six points, Matt Costa four, and Pat Gould, Andrew Jaehnig and Paul Gould had two apiece. Dan Gould and Joe Lawlor rebounded well and Joe Brown played strong defense.

For Wollaston, Montana McBirney, Colin Ryan and Eddie McDonough each scored four points. Coach Anne Shields juggled a deep roster while many players contributed during the day.

In previous games, Atlantic spread the scoring among all its players. Pat Gould had eight points, Brown six, Connor Clifford and Dan Gould four apiece, and Paul Gould, Jaehnig and Joe Costa each had two. Matt Costa added 12 more to lead the jamboree in scoring. Mannion displayed solid play-making skills.

Wollaston had defeated Merrymount and Squantum to advance to the finals. In the Merrymount game, Liam Cain topped all scorers with six points, McBirney and Ryan four apiece, and Tommy Garland and McDonough each had two.

In the Squantum game, McBirney scored eight points while Madison McBirney, Cain, Sarah Ryan and Colin Ryan each had two. Christian Durham and Chris Connelly were the leading rebounders. William Campbell, Mike O'Donnell and Meredith Durham played strong defense. Tyler Braun led the team in assists.

In the mini-games played in the round-robin format using two courts, Beechwood Knoll received strong performances from Bob Evans, who scored five points and led the team in rebounds. Andrew Minton had a basket and two steals while Robert King and Andrew King drew praise from recreation leader Kelly Scott for their passing skills. Matthew Donovan and David Lawlor played solid defense.

Koch Club Baseball Registration

Registration for Koch Club Youth Baseball will be held Monday, April 26, and Wednesday, April 28, at 6 p.m. at O'Neil Field, behind Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Avenue, North Quincy.

Cost of registration is $15, which includes a hat and T-shirt. Boys and girls ages 5-10 are eligible to participate.

The season will begin May and end June 30. All games will be played at O'Neil Field Monday and Wednesday evenings at 6.

Parents are encouraged to volunteer and assist with coaching and organizing the games for the youngsters.

The Koch Club was founded in 1948 by the late Richard J. Koch and has provided countless opportunities for youngsters to participate in various sports programs for pleasure.

by Bill Starkie and Kevin McGroarty

LOOKING AHEAD

Over three decades ago, the American Automobile Association developed a Driver Improvement Program. Designed to increase driver awareness, it calls for drivers to search the road thirty seconds ahead of their vehicles so that they can better anticipate potential problems ahead. In addition, drivers should be totally aware of everything in their paths 12-15 seconds ahead so that they can plan how they will maneuver their vehicles in the event that the road is suddenly blocked. Drivers should also scan the sides of the road for animals, pedestrians, or other vehicles that could stray in their way. Finally, with recognition that 25% of two-vehicle crashes are rear-end collisions, it pays to use the rearview mirror frequently.

Driving too fast or too slow is dangerous. Look ahead and don't be a safety hazard. Your safety is our concern. Our team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO has earned a wonderful reputation from our many satisfied customers... your friends and relatives. We are your local full service auto repair shop and take pride in our workmanship and the service we offer. Stop in and visit us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: Always maintain a three-second cushion of safety between your vehicle and the one in front of you.

Merrymount had nine different players score as recreation leader Mike Rooney spread playing time among his deep roster. Austin Tobin, Kevin McDonough and Terrence Rooney each scored four points, while Vinny Cameron, Joe Barton, Jackie Casper, Ryan Doherty, Connor Doherty and Brian Malger had two apiece. Kyhe McDonald had several assists and offensive rebounds.

For Squantum, coached by first-year recreation leader Daryl Costa, Kyle McKay led the team with 14 points. Mike Morrison scored 10 and Bob Cocture eight. Kelly Yavino and Mike Yavino showed great ball handling and passing skills, while Daniel Green and John Green led the team in assists and rebounds. Craig Heinz had several steals and played strong defense.

Prior to the mini-games, all participants took part in a "Ball Handling Clinic" conducted by Brian Buckley, who has coached boys/girls and men/women for over 30 years while maintaining his roots as a member of the Recreation Department staff, working with youngsters in the Saturday open gym programs.

Robert Campbell Memorial Hockey Tourney Starts April 30

The fifth annual Robert F. Campbell Jr. Memorial Hockey Tournament will be held April 30 to May 2 at Quincy Youth Arena, 60 Murphy Memorial Drive.

The event is a competitive eight-team men's tournament featuring the Boston Firefighters Hockey Club as well as ex-collegiate and junior hockey players from the New England area.

To date, the tourney has raised nearly $65,000 to fund leukemia research and patient care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Rob Campbell was diagnosed with acute myelogenous leukemia (AML), a particularly aggressive form of the disease, at age 19. He died in 1985 and would have been 40 this year.

The tournament schedule: Friday, April 30, 6:40 to 11:10 p.m.; Saturday, May 1, 10 a.m. to 8:10 p.m.; Sunday, May 2, championship game at 11 a.m.

There will also be a Family & Fan Skate open to the public May 1 at 2:30 p.m. The Boston Firefighters will play at 10 a.m. and 4:50 p.m. that day.

Weekend passes to the event can be purchased at the door for a suggested donation of $10. The first 50 fans to purchase a weekend pass will receive a free FM scan radio from the Supermatic Line.

Concourse Bridge To Be Dedicated
In Memory Of Late Senator-Councillor

Paul Harold Memorial Road Race May 2

The Paul D. Harold Memorial Race will be held Sunday, May 2, at 11 a.m. beginning and ending at the Concourse Bridge in Quincy Center.

Mayor William Phelan, Congressman William Delahunt and Senator Michael Morrissey will lead a delegation of city and state officials in dedicating the Concourse Bridge in memory of Paul D. Harold.

New signage will be unveiled bearing his name prior to the start of the race. Quincy residents are invited to attend the dedication and join the festivities.

Harold's political career spanned 27 years as Quincy city councillor, council president, state senator and Norfolk County register of deeds. He died Aug. 12, 2002 at age 53 after a two-year battle with cancer.

All proceeds from the 3.5 mile road race and 1.5 mile walk will be used to fund the Paul D. Memorial Fund, providing for scholarships to high school seniors and support of youth sports in Quincy.

Cost of the race is $15 pre-registration, postmarked before April 25, and $18 post-registration.

T-shirts will be provided to the first 200 registered runners. All registered runners and walkers are invited to the post-race party.

Quincy Municipal Credit Union and Francis X. Messina Enterprises will be the headline sponsors for the race. The post-race party will be hosted by the Outback Steakhouse, Pat Flanagan's, Roche Brothers and Stop & Shop. Super Fitness will offer use of its facilities to all registered runners.

Also, on-line registration is available at www.signmeupsports.com or www.coolrunning.com. To request an application or for more information, call 617-770-0166.

Emily Milone On Mass. Olympic Development Soccer Team

Emily Milone of Quincy has been selected to play for the Massachusetts Olympic Development Soccer Team for the third straight year.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Spring Health Fair At Granite Medical Saturday

Granite Medical will host its third annual Spring Health Fair Saturday, April 24, from 9 a.m. to noon at its offices in the Crown Colony Medical Center, 500 Congress St., Quincy.

There will be free health screenings, body fat testing and an opportunity to talk with doctors and nurse practitioners. The topics include asthma, cholesterol, diabetes, elderly issues, heart disease, nutrition and skin care.

The public is welcome. Admission is free.

The fair is meant to be fun, but it serves an important function, said Dr. Guy Spinelli. "Our goal is to make people more aware of health issues. Having a fair is a fun way to meet with the public and to get everyone to think about what they can do to stay healthy," Dr. Spinelli said.

The fair will also feature a food preparation demonstration by Granite Medical's registered dietician. There will be a discussion about healthy eating habits and diet.

WJDA radio personality Joe Catalano will broadcast live from the fair and there will be many free information kits and giveaways from Pfizer Pharmaceuticals and others.

The Spring Health Fiar is held annually as the capstone in Granite Medical's winter health seminar series.

Last year's fair attracted more than 200 Quincy area residents.

For more information, call 617-471-0033 or visit www.GraniteMedical.com.

Look Better, Feel Better - Lose Weight

(NAPS) — Look better, feel better — lose weight: That's the theme of Shape Up!, a balanced approach to weight management featuring products endorsed by TV's Dr. Phil McGraw.

Shape Up! offers a personalized plan at www.eDiets.com, food products at retail stores nationwide, and a wealth of weight management strategies to help free people from yo-yo dieting.

One hundred percent of Dr. Phil's endorsement income from Shape Up! goes to The Dr. Phil Foundation, a nonprofit charitable organization to fight the "silent epidemics" in America, such as childhood obesity and related diseases.

The latest skin technology has created moisturizers that not only help heal dry skin, but can deliver benefits and last for at least 24 hours. For example, St. Ives skin care brand just launched 24 Hour Moisture, a new lotion that not only replenishes moisture to the skin but actually retains it all day. The lotion contains a patented Hydratein™ Protein Complex that hydrates dry, flaky skin by retaining moisture.

Free Program Helps Women Adopt Healthy Habits For Life, In Just 12 Weeks

(NAPS) — The American Heart Association introduces a 12-week program to help women get — and stay — healthy and happy.

The program, called Choose To Move, is a free guide for women who want to lower their risk for heart disease and stroke, the first and third leading causes of death for women. By adding exercise and making simple dietary changes, women can reduce their risk for heart disease and stroke, plus have more energy and vitality to juggle life's demands.

Developed by the Cooper Institute for Aerobics Research in Dallas, the program is available online or by mail and offers women a free handbook to learn how to build healthy habits into their existing routines without spending a lot of extra time or money.

For example, tips include:

- To increase strength and muscle tone, engage in everyday activities such as walking to the store and carrying groceries, climbing steep stairs, and squatting and stretching far when mopping, dusting and sweeping.
- Eat smart snacks, even on the run, by bringing along healthy, convenient foods, such as a 1-ounce handful of almonds. At just 160 calories, almonds are packed with protein and vitamin E. Other smart on-the-go choices include a piece of fruit or a container of low-fat yogurt. Research shows that choosing foods that are low in saturated fats and cholesterol is an effective way to reduce both total and LDL, or bad, cholesterol.

The program is for any woman who feels tired, low on energy and thinks it's difficult, time-consuming or expensive to get into better shape, according to Rita Redberg, M.D., M.S.C., F.A.C.C., professor of medicine in the cardiology division at the University of California-San Francisco National Center of Excellence in Women's Health, and American Heart Association volunteer.

Says Redberg, "At the end of 12 weeks, most will have the skills and confidence to continue on their own, with more energy and a better life."

Women who register will receive:

- An easy-to-follow handbook to increase physical activity.
- Nutrition tips and recipes for healthful eating.
- Weight management tips, including success stories and information through newsletters.
- Relevant facts on heart disease and stroke.

To register, visit www.americanheart.org/choosetomove or call 1-888-MY-HEART.

Workout Order Varies With Individual

Q. My current workout consists of completing my cardiovascular workouts followed by strength-training exercises. My friend does it the other way around. Which of us is right? — *S.L., Atlanta

A. Both of you. Designing an exercise program is a highly individual process, and finding the most effective method to have the energy to finish your workout is very important. This may mean your workout structure is different than your friend's. Whichever route enables you to reach your goals safely is the right way for you to go.

The main objective to designing an exercise program is to be able to finish your program safely and effectively. If your cardiovascular exercise tires you so much that you find it difficult to safely complete your strength-training workout, then perhaps you need to try a different mode of training.

Try breaking up your cardiovascular exercises into segments. If you are doing 30 total minutes of cardio exercises, knock off 10 to 15 minutes of cardio, proceed to your strength exercises, then complete the remaining 15 minutes.

Another way to go is to split your workouts. If your cardiovascular or strength training totally fatigues your body and prevents you from completing the rest of your workout, do cardio and strength workouts on different days. You may find you can do a longer and more difficult cardiovascular workout one day and a more extensive strength-training workout the next. This works well if you can work out at least four times a week.

If you choose to complete your strength-training exercises first, it is important to remember to warm up before you begin. This will increase your heart rate, body temperature and send blood to the muscles you are about to use. Your body will be prepared for the stresses the exercises will place upon it, helping to prevent injury and improve performance.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

INTRODUCTION TO TEETH

As their child's permanent teeth come in, parents should use the occasion to cultivate interest in teeth and good oral care. Explain that the first permanent teeth to erupt are the four top and bottom front teeth, or "incisors," whose job it is to cut and bite food, such as biting into apples. Next up are the "canines" on either side of the incisors. These sharp teeth stab, tear, and hold food in the mouth. They are needed to bite hard foods, such as raw carrots. Then, the five teeth on either side of the canines are called "bicuspids" (premolars) and "molars." These teeth are wide and bumpy. Their job is to crush food into small, easy-to-swallow pieces.

We recommend stressing dental care to your children. It can save them a lifetime of oral problems. We encourage preventive dental health care for the whole family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. If you have any questions or comments visit us at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The first molar to show itself is the 6-year molar, followed by the 12-year molar and the wisdom tooth (3rd molar).

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Through the years we have been asked by many people what are the advantages of pre-arranging and/or pre-financing a funeral.

There are many reasons... But the foremost reason is that it gives one peace of mind. One knows that his family will be relieved of many of the burdens which face a family in their time of sorrow.

When death strikes unexpectedly or even when it is expected, many people are not emotionally ready to make the many decisions that have to be made in a relatively short time. By making pre-arrangements ahead of time, one can relieve the family of some of the grief at a very emotional time; it can relieve many 'traumatic' decisions; it can relieve confusion; it can eliminate differences of opinion concerning cost and ritual.

Please feel free to stop by or call us at anytime for full details concerning pre-arrangement. We will answer all your questions frankly and honestly. We do not charge a fee for any consultation and, of course, you are not under any obligation.

NEW HAMPSHIRE PRIMARY WINNERS

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're doing better on the flexibility issue, but you still need to loosen up a bit to show you can be less judgmental and more understanding about certain sensitive matters.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your personal aspect continues to dominate this week. But try to make time to deal with important career-linked matters as well. A change of plans might occur by the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Excuses are not really needed for much of the confusion occurring this week. However, explanations from all parties could help in working things out to everyone's satisfaction.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) That surprising (but pleasant) recent turn of events continues to develop positive aspects. But be prepared for a bit of a jolt on another issue that needs attention.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Creating a fuss might bring you that attention you want. But are you prepared for all the explaining you'd have to do? Better to use more subtle ways to make your bid.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) With education continuing to be a strong factor this week, this could be the time to start learning some new skills that can later be applied to a bid for a potential career move.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might do well to reconsider some of your current time priorities before you get so deeply involved in one project that you neglect meeting a deadline on another.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) With an important decision looming, you need to be careful about the information you're getting. Half-truths are essentially useless. Get the full story before you act.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Find out what everyone's role is expected to be before accepting that workplace proposal. Getting all the facts now could prevent serious problems later on.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A flexible position on a workplace matter could be the best course to follow during the next several days. A personal issue also benefits from an open-minded approach.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Involving too many people in your workplace problem can backfire. Remember: Allegiances can shift. Ask trusted colleagues for advice, but don't ask them to take sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Before submitting your suggestions, take more time to sharpen the points you want to make. The clearer the presentation, the more chance it has to get through when submitted.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your clear sense of who you are gives you confidence when you need to tackle difficult situations.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

John E. Kennedy, 69

Painter For U.S. Postal Service

JOHN E. KENNEDY

A funeral Mass for John E. Kennedy, 69, of Quincy, a retired painter and maintenance employee for the U.S. Postal Service, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mr. Kennedy died Monday at home.

Born in Somerville, he had lived in Somerville and Dorchester before moving to Quincy 30 years ago.

Mr. Kennedy worked for the U.S. Postal Service for more than 20 years, retiring in 1993. He later worked as a courier for Airnet Systems in Logan Airport.

He was a Navy veteran of the Korean Conflict and was a member of the Naval Airship Association.

He is survived by his wife of 44 years, Elizabeth (Coogan) Kennedy; four daughters, Janice Gilbert of Braintree, Kathleen Payne of Braintree, Maureen Crowley of Weymouth and Linda Kennedy of Braintree; two sons, John Fitzgerald Kennedy of Rockland and Edward Kennedy of Quincy; two sisters, Florence McWatters of Somerville and Margaret Kennedy of Medford; seven grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours were Wednesday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Dr., P.O. Box 9060, Braintree, MA 02184.

Dorothy E. Carter, 98

Secretary at Quincy Junior College

A graveside service for Dorothy E. (Locke) Carter, 98, of Quincy, a former secretary at Quincy Junior College, was held April 17 at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

She died April 12.

She previously worked as secretary to the director of Simmons College Prince School of Retailing, and volunteered at Quincy Hospital after her retirement.

She was the longest living member of Wollaston Congregational Church (85 years), Deacon Emeritus, and had been active in the Women's Union.

She was a member of Wollaston Chapter 156, Order of the Eastern Star, and former member of OES Stareme Club and the Simmons South Shore Club.

Wife of the late Leroy B. Carter, she is survived by two daughters, Elsie L. Jacobson of Beverly and Meredith David of Wilbraham; a son, Lawrence S. Carter of Kissimmee, Fl.; two sisters, Louise Minot of Bath, Maine and Sylvia Forrest of Wollaston; seven grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Arrangements were made by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy.

Donations may be made to the Wollaston Congregational Church, 41 Winthrop Ave., Quincy or to the William B. Rice Eventide Home Auxiliary, 215 Adams St., Quincy.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven. Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee. (3X) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands. (3X) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all the things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. Thank you. (MS) and the "trends are certainly better."

"It would be premature to say we are out of the woods yet," he said.

In the meantime, the consultant will be drilling 30 to 35 feet into the ground along Coddington St. and other roads affected by the spill, he said. This will enable environmental crews to monitor the water table, he said. Deuger said he wouldn't be surprised to find traces of gasoline in the water table beneath other streets.

Coddington St., Washington St. and Woodward Ave. are among the streets scheduled to be tested, said Deuger.

"We know the gasoline got into the water table near Quincy College, so we want to get a handle on it and try to find out the extent of it in other areas," said Deuger. He said crews may expand the area of investigation beyond those streets.

In addition, the consultant continues to monitor all other buildings in the area, including Quincy High School and the YMCA. No traces of gasoline or fumes have been detected in the high school, he said.

The consultant continues to check utilities and the sewer system as well, he said.

"This is not the kind of situation that will go away soon," said Deuger. "It could take years. There is a lot of investigation work to be done."

White Ribbon Campaign April 28

NQHS Students To Take Pledge Against Family Violence

Seeking to empower men and women of all ages against violence, North Quincy High School and the Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence will host the White Ribbon Campaign on April 28 beginning at 8:50 a.m. in the North Quincy High auditorium.

There will be two White Ribbon ceremonies running approximately 50 minutes each. The second ceremony will begin at 9:43 a.m. Male students, faculty, city residents and elected officials will have the opportunity to take the pledge, "never to commit, condone, or remain silent about violence against women."

Co-chairs Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti and Mayor William Phelan are scheduled to attend the ceremonies. The keynote speaker for the event will be Major Richard Cardinal from the Plymouth County Sheriff's office, Plymouth County White Ribbon Campaign.

Organizers describe the event as "collectively encouraging a city free from violence." The group strives to educate city residents and professionals about the prevalence of family violence in our communities, homes, schools and in the workplace, and give them tools to stop the violence when they see it, or offer support when they suspect it.

On March 23, Quincy High School students participated in a similar event. Hundreds of male juniors and seniors took the pledge and signed the campaign banner.

QHS Seniors Steven Ohlson and J.J. Niamkey served as Quincy White Ribbon Campaign student leaders.

The Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence is endorsed by a number of city and county leaders and organizations, including the City of Quincy, Manet Community Health Center, Inc., Quincy Housing Authority, Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE), Quincy Public Schools, Quincy Police Department, South Shore Mental Health, Quincy Medical Center, Eastern Nazarene College, Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP), Quincy Department of Elder Services, Asian Task Force Against Domestic Violence, South Shore YMCA, Quincy Asian Resources and residents of Quincy.

Garage May Be Built On Existing Lot

QMC, City Considering Parking Garage Alternative

Quincy Medical Center officials and the city are discussing a proposal that could solve a parking garage dispute between the medical center and neighbors.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin recently sent a letter to neighbors and abutters explaining a possible solution that consists of constructing a parking garage on QMC's existing parking lot and temporarily moving cars to a park on Whitwell St. while the garage is built.

The proposal would move the proposed parking garage away from the 3.9 acre wooded lot at the rear of the property and onto a paved section of the existing parking lot adjacent to the facility.

But QMC would need to temporarily relocate cars currently parking where the new garage would be located. It is estimated the park would be used for six to eight months for parking while the new garage is constructed, according to Gutro.

Upon completion of construction, the park would be returned to its present state and use.

"There are no simple solutions here, but this option would in the long-term, alleviate QMC visitor parking on neighborhood streets, preserve open space, be less intrusive to surrounding neighborhoods, and provide more convenient parking options for patients, visitors, and employees of QMC," Gutro wrote to residents.

Bonnie Kaplan Goldsmith, QMC spokesperson, said the medical center has been in discussions with the mayor's office and city councillors regarding the alternative plan.

She would not comment on details of the plan, but did reiterate QMC's goal is to solve the parking issue, including minimizing the environmental impact on the neighborhood.

"We need to maintain easy access to the hospital during construction for patients, physicians, visitors and staff," she said in a statement.

In addition, she said parking must remain free for those who utilize the medical center.

Mayor William Phelan could not be reached for comment.

To alleviate parking problems at the site, QMC wants to build a three level, 800-car parking garage on the wooded parcel on the northeast corner of its parking lot.

But neighbors and abutters have come out adamantly [illegible] saying it [illegible] environmentally sensitive open space, cause drainage problems and lower property values in the area.

Gutro said the new proposal should prove to be more palatable to all parties involved.

"Clearly, it's less intrusive than what's on the table," he said. "It will protect more open space for the city and do it in the least intrusive way to the neighborhood and its surroundings. The proposal the city is advancing to the medical center will provide more parking for patients, visitor and employees and is far more convenient than that which was proposed by the medical center."

Gutro said city officials recently visited the park on Whitwell and estimated it could accommodate at least

Wants To Work On Budget, Assist Crowley

Chief Falco Will Retire On July 28

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Police Chief William Falco plans to retire on July 28 so he can work through the current budget process and assist Capt. Robert Crowley, who could be the next chief.

"I want to get through the current budget process and work with Captain Crowley, who I assume will be the next chief," Falco told The Sun. "I didn't think it was fair to leave my Xpel and have him deal with the budget process as soon as he assumed the position."

Falco [illegible] "over [illegible] by eight inches" [illegible] with eight years remaining. Crowley [illegible] the position.

"It would be fair to the new person to walk right in there and have to explain the budget and all the planning that goes with it," said Falco. "This next budget is my budget and then he will handle it next year."

Ultimately, Mayor William Phelan will choose

Click It Or Ticket Campaign

Police Stepping Up Safety Belt Enforcement

The Quincy Police Department is stepping up its enforcement of traffic laws, and in particular, safety belt use, with assistance from a $12 million grant from the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau's (GHSB) "Click It or Ticket Campaign," a program of the Executive Office of Public Safety.

The grant provides funds for additional traffic safety equipment, increased traffic patrols, and safety belt education activities to be conducted April through September 30, 2004.

"Wearing a safety belt reduces your chances of being killed or seriously injured by up to 50 percent," said Police Chief William Falco. "Crashes can occur whether you are driving around the corner, as well as on the highway, so wearing a safety belt at all times is your best protection in the event of a crash. We will be actively enforcing the use of safety belts, booster seats, and child safety seats."

The goal for the campaign is to increase safety belt use in the state, but the biggest gain will be lives saved and injuries prevented. According to a 2003 GHSB safety belt survey, only 62 percent of Massachusetts drivers use safety belts, as compared to 79 percent nationally.

Massachusetts law requires all drivers and passengers to be properly restrained in a safety belt, booster seat or child safety seat. Violators are subject to a $25 fine, and drivers are responsible for all motor vehicle occupants under age 16.

Neighborhood Group Concerned Over Fate Of Crime Watch Meetings

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The Quincy Center Neighborhood Association and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro are concerned over the fate of future crime watch meetings for the downtown area.

The response comes after Police Chief William Falco informed crime watch members that the police department would no longer sponsor future meetings. Instead, Falco suggested to the neighborhood association that they put together their own meetings.

"I do believe it is time for the Quincy Center Neighborhood Association to begin to meet on their own and develop a strategic plan satisfactory to the entire group," Falco wrote to crime watch members.

Falco said the police department has assigned Sgt. John Ryan of the Quincy Community Policing Unit to act as a liaison to the group. He will attend the meetings and address all concerns, Falco said.

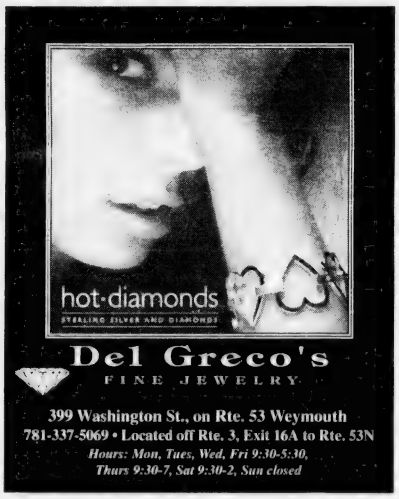
DOUG GUTRO

But Falco's letter is drawing criticism from Gutro and Nancy Jolly, president of the neighborhood association, who both maintain the police department should have greater involvement in the crime watch meetings.

"We are not assuming responsibility for the crime watch meetings," said Jolly. "This never was a project we sponsored. As a neighborhood association we are looking for input from the police department. It sounds like the police department has washed its hands of the whole situation."

But Falco disagreed, saying the department is not abandoning the crime watch meetings. "We will be attending the crime watch meetings as they take place. We need to utilize our resources in different ways sometimes. But we are certainly available to take part in those meetings."

Mayor William Phelan defended the police department, saying it will continue to work closely with Quincy Center businesses and neighborhood groups to help make the downtown area a safer place to live, work and shop.



"We will continue to work vigilantly with the residents and businesses in a cooperative effort to keep Quincy Center safe," said Phelan. "Chief Falco has committed to have our community police continue to attend and participate in neighborhood meetings. The course of the administration has not changed."

Over the past year, the community held a number of crime watch meetings to address concerns in the downtown area. The meetings were attended by residents, city and elected officials, as well as the police department.

Falco's letter addresses a number of those concerns, including issues with Father Bill's Place, the homeless population, lodging houses and liquor establishments.

P.J. Foley Recognized As Environmental Hero

At long last Uncle Sam has officially recognized what folks in Quincy have known for years — P. J. Foley is an environmental hero.

The man who has led the fight for the past four years to preserve and restore the Houghs Neck marshes won an Environmental Hero Award from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

The award was presented to Foley Monday by Eric W. Hutchins, biologist for the National Marine Fisheries Service, at a meeting of the Houghs Neck Seacoast and Salt Marsh Group.

At the same time, Foley announced the group's web site — www.marshmadness.org.

An e-mail sent to the executive board of the Houghs Neck Community Council said Foley was being recognized "for his outstanding efforts in support and leadership of promoting strong community-based stewardship and restoration of the coastal wetlands and related habitats in Quincy, and especially Houghs Neck."

A congratulatory letter from Vice Admiral Conrad C. Lautenbacher, Under Secretary of Commerce for Oceans and Atmosphere, cited him for his "dedicated efforts and outstanding accomplishments (that) greatly benefit the environment and make our nation a better place for all Americans.

"America needs many more Environmental Heroes like you."

Foley, a native of Quincy who works for the telephone company when he is not prowling the Houghs Neck marshes, has no formal training in science but has become something of an expert in marine fisheries habitat over the years.

His oft stated goal has been to "restart the fish generator to provide Quincy Bay and Massachusetts Bay with billions of baby fish each year" and he has rallied friends and neighbors to help restore the habitat that makes such breeding possible.

He has organized annual "marsh madness" days when dozens of neighbors work together to clean Quincy marshes. The Mallard Road project, the first of his restorations, will be implemented as soon as June, enhancing the tidal flow and eliminating invasive species.

An undersized culvert that blocked the ebb and flow of the tide between Mallard Road and the Post Island marsh is being replaced with a larger one and gravel from the road is to be removed to restore the area to an elevation better suited to salt marsh vegetation.

Sun Citizen Of Year Award To Edward Keohane On Quincy Access TV

The reception and ceremony honoring Edward J. Keohane as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year will be shown tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. on Quincy Access Television (QATV) Ch. 8.

The program will be repeated Saturday and Sunday, both days at noon and 7 p.m.

Keohane was honored by The Sun for outstanding community service as chairman of the Quincy Partnership, and his involvement in other community activities including the Flag Day parade.

QCBPA Now QBA

It's not The Quincy Center Business & Professional Association (QCBPA) any more. It's just The Quincy Business Association (QBA).

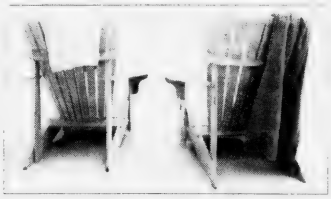
The general membership voted the change in name the other day because "it more clearly reflects the composition of the membership."

The QCBPA was founded in 1972 by a group of Quincy Center businessmen when the old Quincy Chamber of Commerce was absorbed by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Many of that group of businessmen are still active in the association, which, at the age of nearly 35 years, was the oldest independent business group in Quincy.

The mission of the new QCBPA was defined as helping with the "daily doing business issues" that affected businesses both large and small in Quincy.

The association put forth much effort into bringing more people into the area through promotional efforts like the Summer Sidewalk Sale and the Harvest Festival.



Officers and members worked on an as needed basis to represent the membership in municipal matters with city officials and agencies.

Now it's up to The Quincy Business Association, which means "business" in every sense of the word.

Paul's Bridge A Sentimental Link

Paul Harold never looked for honors.

But he would probably have liked the one that's coming to him Sunday.

PAUL HAROLD

The Quincy Center Concourse bridge will officially become "The Paul D. Harold Memorial Bridge" at an 11 a.m. dedication ceremony attended by city and state officials, and long-time friends and followers.

To those friends and followers he was both "the voice and champion of the people."

Paul died Aug. 12, 2002 after a long battle with cancer. He was only 53. But he left a proud legacy - a distinguished public service career spanning 27 years as a city councillor, council president, state senator and Norfolk County register of deeds.

There will be another honor Sunday — the Paul Harold Memorial Road Race — an appropriate event because Paul was a marathoner and road race runner.

The 3.5 mile race and a 1.5 mile walk will be held right after the dedication ceremony, starting in the Ross parking area side of the bridge. The route will take runners by City Hall and the Adams Mansion, one symbolic of Paul's political career, the other of his passion for Quincy's rich history. The finish line will be at the middle of the bridge.

PHELAN

Proceeds from the race and walk will go to a memorial fund to provide scholarships for high school seniors and to support youth sports in Quincy, both dear to Paul.

The bridge is being dedicated in Paul's memory through a home rule petition initiated by Mayor William Phelan and approved by the city council and the state legislative.

"It is a fitting tribute to a man who devoted his life to public service and to this community," Phelan said at the time. "It is right to have a permanent remembrance in the city he loved so much."

State Transportation Secretary Daniel Grabauskas who will participate in the dedication ceremony with Phelan and other city and state officials had a personal tribute to Paul:

"I have fond memories of Paul from my days serving as a staffer in the Senate. I remember the commitment to his constituents and his dedication to community."

A fitting tribute, Phelan said of the bridge.

More so, if Paul could have been asked, than one he did not want.

Shortly before his death, he confided he had heard there were those who wanted to have the Broad Meadows Middle School from which he graduated renamed in his honor.

He strongly opposed the idea. And asked certain close friends not to let it happen.

Not that it wouldn't have been an honor. He opposed it because he strongly felt the school should retain its name because of its Broad Meadows location of which he was proud.

Naming the Quincy Center Concourse bridge after him is fitting in another way.

It will be the second bridge of honor in the Harold family.

The Neponset River commuter rail bridge was renamed "The Joseph R. Harold, Sr. Memorial Bridge" in honor of Paul's father in 1998.

Financial Planning For Seniors May 28

Senior citizens will have an opportunity to discuss financial planning with an expert Friday, May 28, at 10 a.m. and every fourth Friday of the month at the Council on Aging, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy.

Call 617-376-1506 for an appointment.

A decorated World War II veteran of the Battle of the Bulge and other battles, Joe Harold served as state adjutant of the Massachusetts Disabled American Veterans (DAV) for 43 years. He was affectionately known as "Mr. Veteran" for his work with veterans.

JOSEPH HAROLD

He died in 1994 from injuries suffered when he was struck by a car while crossing Sea St. on his way to Mass at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Merrymount.

The two bridges will be sentimentally linked Sunday by father and son.

YOU MIGHT SAY the Patriots' Tom Brady threw a touchdown pass to TV's Chet Curtis the other night at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

CURTIS

The occasion was the 10th annual dinner and auction fundraiser for the Beechwood Community Life Center.

One of the auction items was an NFL football autographed and donated by Brady. Curtis won the ball with a bid of $500.

He sort of was keeping it in the neighborhood. Both Brady and Curtis live in Marina Bay.

Incidentally, the occasion also marked Curtis' 65th birthday. When he walked in, the crowd, tipped off in advance by co-emcee Don Uvanitte, greeted Curtis singing "Happy Birthday."

And, in case you're wondering, he doesn't mind anyone knowing he is 65.

A FEW HUMOROUS musings left over from the reception honoring Edward Keohane as The Quincy Sun Citizen Of The Year:

MURPHY

Dave Murphy, representing Mayor Phelan who was in Ireland: "I do want to point out that Acting Mayor Frank McCauley is here. For some reason, Frank, the mayor wouldn't leave Quincy during the first two years of his administration.

"I guess that must have had something to do with who would have been acting mayor."

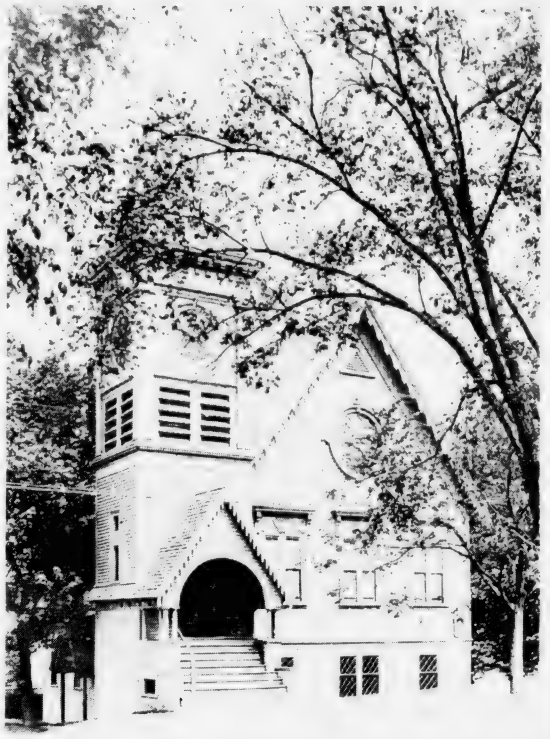
As City Council president then, Dan Raymondi would be acting mayor in the mayor's absence. And actually was at least once. (Dave was only kidding, Dan.)

Rev. Msgr. Robert Deeley, pastor of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, following presentations of citations from Senator Michael Morrissey, Rep. Bruce Ayers, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro for the entire council and Dave Murphy:

MSGR. DEELEY

"I think I should have called the Pope and asked for a certificate to give to Ed. Everyone else has a citation to read."

Bob Curry, after citing Keohane's leadership of the Quincy Partnership in its civic projects including the uplighting of the historic sites and erecting statues of John, Abigail and John Quincy Adams:



CURRY

". . . at Lloyd Lillie's in Newton while he was sculpturing the statue of John Adams we'd have so much fun over there. Because we'd try to make the nose of Adams look like Eddie's. So when you go by the statue of John Adams downtown, rub its nose and think of Eddie."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1921 postcard view of the old wooden Methodist Episcopal Church built in 1874 on the corner of Safford and Beale Streets in Wollaston. It was next to what is now St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church on the site now occupied by a business block. This was one of five wooden Methodist Episcopal churches built in the late nineteenth century in Quincy. Their large wooden steeples rotted in time and became too expensive to maintain. They have all been demolished. In 1924 the congregation of this church moved into its present building on the corner of Chapman and Beale Streets in downtown Wollaston. That building has been expanded a few times and is now known as the Quincy Community United Methodist Church. The block of stores on the old site was built in 1926 and over the past 75 years it has become home to dozens of small businesses. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Response To Same-Sex Marriage Letter

I read with much interest Dr. James P. Hahn's letter, "Allow Us To Live Free And Equally" in the April 1st issue.

Dr. Hahn writes that he "was present at the State House on March 11 and witnessed the bigotry and hatred directed against him merely because he is gay (e.g. one sign said 'Homos, God Abhors You')."

Dr. Hahn continues, "that brutal and horrific killing of Matthew Shepard . . . in 1998 merely because he was gay should have illustrated to us that homophobia and discrimination against gays are not a thing of the past. Hatred and intolerance are alive and well in 2004."

Let me say, unequivocally, the killing of Matthew Shepard in 1998 was in fact truly brutal and horrific, and is condemned with every fiber of all human beings who have a modicum of morality.

Now, here we are in 2004 in the midst of a contentious constitutional crisis in which the most deeply-rooted, timeless, key, elemental, linchpin unit of civilization is to be summarily discarded. Yes, in this turmoil some individuals are wont to be harsh in their political tactics, some intentionally, but most not.

Dr. Hahn sees himself as the victim; does he not give a wit for the people who rightly posit that their deeply-held culture is being destroyed as marriage and parenthood will be separated as demonstrated in Scandinavia? He labels these people as being intolerant, and discriminators, homophobes, bigots, and hatemongers, and even reaches back six years to associate them with murderers.

I have witnessed several same-sex marriage debates and noticed a sort of modus operandi of same-sex advocates in the audience, sometimes egged on by like-minded debaters, by which they attempt to ridicule, embarrass, and humiliate opposition debaters.

While it may be hurtful to privately read and internalize a harsh sign held passively by a political opponent, it seems to me that dealing with purposeful attempts to publicly humiliate a person is a much more egregious act.

Dr. Hahn continues with quotes of Thomas Jefferson in two subject areas: rights of minorities and majorities, and separation of church and state.

Let's look at rights first. Dr. Hahn writes that, "Thomas Jefferson recognized the great power and legitimacy of the people's right to vote but cautioned against using this power to inflict tyranny. 'All, too, will bear in mind the sacred principle, that though the will of the majority is in all cases to prevail, that will to be rightful must be reasonable . . .'"

The key word is "reasonable;" that the majority prevails but to be rightful must be "reasonable," otherwise it is tyranny. I absolutely agree.

(The purpose of traditional marriage and its effects are noted in the following sentences: an orderly society requires some mechanism for coping with the fact that sexual intercourse commonly results in pregnancy and childbirth. The institution of marriage is that mechanism.

Marriage provides the important legal and normative link between heterosexual intercourse and procreation on the one hand and family responsibilities on the other. The spouses are expected to engage in exclusive sexual relations, with children the probably result and paternity presumed. A society without the institution of marriage in which heterosexual intercourse, procreation, and childcare are largely disconnected processes, would be chaotic. The Commonwealth has a deep interest that marriage's integrity is not jeopardized. Traditional marriage in its purpose and effects are certainly "reasonable" and have been found so for centuries and are not punitively exclusionary to same-sex people who by nature are unable to procreate.)

Now let's look at separation of church and state. Dr. Hahn quotes Jefferson, ". . . having banished from our land that religious intolerance under which mankind so long bled and suffered, we have yet gained little if we countenance a political intolerance . . ." Also, Dr. Hahn writes that Jefferson "rightly affirms that religion and civic government must not be intermingled . . ."

Jefferson and the other founders' major concern obviously was shaped by their then recent experiences (The American Revolution, Declaration of Independence, The American Constitution being driven by what they had escaped (English oppression and the English model of the unity of church and state). They therefore were intent on establishing an American model of autonomy resting with the people, and to prevent the English model for reoccurring. To prevent the intermingling of church and state, the first amendment specifies, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Specifically, the first amendment addresses the separation of church and state by prohibiting the institution of an interlocking governing entity. This does not imperil any individuals, including those belonging to formal religious organizations, from inclusion as a citizen of the United States, having equal franchise within the expression "We The People" and fully participating in debate in the public square.

An Evening Of Poetry At Crane Library May 12

The Thomas Crane Public Library will present an evening of poetry entitled "When the Heart Speaks Its Mind" Wednesday, May 12, at 7 p.m.

Featured area poets include Winston Bolton, Faye George, Kate McCann and Phil Tabakow.

Bolton, who lives in Halifax, was educated at Northeastern University and Boston University, where he studied with Robert Lowell. He has published poetry in numerous anthologies and journals and is currently working on a collection of his poems entitled "What the Air Might Say."

George, who lives in Bridgewater, has published poetry in a variety of journals and anthologies and is the author of several chapbooks and collections. She will be reading from her books "Back Roads" and "A Wound on Stone."

McCann, an ordained minister and published poet, has recently returned to her family home in Weymouth, answering a call to serve the Union Congregational Church in Taunton. She will read from her book-length poetry collection, "A Roof Gone to Sky."

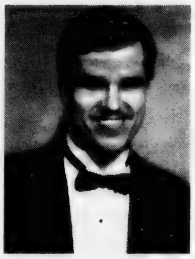
Tabakow, currently Associate Professor of English at Bridgewater State College, was twice awarded the Elliston Poetry Foundation Fellowship for graduate study and has published poetry in many journals and anthologies. Tabakow will introduce his new collection of poems, "The Mechanics of Submission."

"When the Heart Speaks Its Mind" will be presented in the Main Library community meeting room, 40 Washington St., Quincy. Admission is free and light refreshments will be provided. For more information call 617-376-1301.

Broad Meadows Youngsters Raise $3,094 For St. Jude

Broad Meadows Middle School has just finished its ninth year of participation in the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Math-A-Thon, raising $3,094.01 for the hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

The Quincy youngsters secured sponsors, did 250 problems in grade-related workbooks supplied by St. Jude and collected donations in a three-week time frame.



In nine years, the kids at Broad Meadows have raised $37,334.66 for the hospital.

Secret To Her Longevity: Being 'Good Natured'

Rebecca 'Rhea' Radler Celebrates 100th Birthday

If you ask Rebecca "Rhea" Radler about the secret of her longevity, she will simply say, "I'm good natured."

Radler, a resident of the Quincy Rehabilitation Center, marked her 100th birthday last week with family and friends. She was born on April 21, 1904.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, she was born on Water St. and graduated from Quincy High School in 1921. Although she is the oldest of seven siblings she has outlived them all.

She was married to Harry Radler, who died many years ago. The couple had no children.

She worked for many years as a bookkeeper for a Boston company that sold young women's dresses.

Mrs. Radler was a member of the Temple Beth El Women's League and treasurer of the Jewish Scholarship Club.

She was the treasurer of the Beth Israel Synagogue Women's Council.

Mrs. Radler has been a life member of Hadassah.

She stays busy by playing

She used to have poker parties at her home when she was well into her 90s, according to her great niece, Jackie Lipsky.

"I hope I can stay as healthy as her," said Lipsky. "She's never really been sick. She has been such a great person and matriarch of the family."

Radler said she is a big sports fan and follows the Red Sox and Patriots.

She has never smoked or abused her body, but does claim to have a sweet tooth. "I love my chocolate and ice cream," she said. "Good, healthy living."

Bridget Reaney On Dean's List

Bridget Reaney, daughter of Michael and Eileen Reaney of Quincy, has been named to the dean's list at Southampton College of Long Island University in Southampton, N.Y.

Reaney, a chemistry major, is a graduate of Quincy High School.

Line Dance For Seniors

Line dancing is on the Quincy Council on Aging's agenda every Thursday morning at 10:30 a.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse on Nevada Road, Quincy Point.

Dinner-Dance Fundraiser For DOVE June 17

A "Cruise Into Summer" dinner-dance to benefit DOVE will be held Thursday, June 17, at 7 p.m. at Venezia Waterfront Restaurant, 20 Ericsson St., Dorchester.

Jordan Rich of WBZ radio will be the emcee. Dancing will be the music of Java Jive. There will be cash prize drawings.

Tickets are $75 or $700 for a table of 10.

Those wishing to be a sponsor are asked to call Jo Anne M. LaFontaine, executive director, at 617-770-4085, and for book advertising, Linda Santoro, executive assistant, at 617-770-4065.

For event and ticket information, call co-chairwomen Laurie Kelliher at 617-773-2434 or Ginni Kurtzman at 781-741-5029.

NQHS Senior Stay-Out Friday At High School

The North Quincy Senior Stay-Out location as been moved from State Street to North Quincy High School.

The change enables the committee to provide more food, prizes and activities to the party-goers, the committee said.

All NQHS senior students, whether they attend the prom or not, are invited to the Senior Stay-Out 2004 tomorrow (Friday). An all-night, substance-free party, the Stay-Out offers food, fun and a safe place to spend the night - at no cost to students.

Emblem Club

The Quincy Emblem Club will meet Wednesday, May 12, at 7 p.m. in the Elks Lodge on Quarry Street.

Quincy Kiwanis Club Celebrates 80th Anniversary

KIWANIS CLUB OF Quincy recently celebrated its 80th anniversary at a dinner party at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Among the highlights was a donation of $3,000 to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute (KPTI) at the Floating Hospital for Children, Tufts New England Medical Center in Boston. The money will be used to purchase "pedi-porter" stretches which are specifically designed to transport critically injured children. Dr. Andrew Feng, M.D. (far left), director of Pediatric Transport Services, Division of Pediatric Critical Care at the Floating Hospital for Children, and Corinne Francis (second from right), assistant director of KPTI, accept the donation from Quincy Kiwanians John Farmer, a distinguished past president and treasurer of the club's Health Fund, and President Michelle Stenberg. Over the years, Quincy Kiwanis has contributed more than $110,000 to KPTI, the only Kiwanis club in New England to exceed that mark.

ANOTHER $3,000 DONATION was presented to the Quincy Public School System in conjunction with the Quincy Kiwanis Club's Major Emphasis/Young Children Priority One Program. The donation will be used to purchase "Epi-Pens" for every Quincy public school. The epinephrine pens provide immediate medical assistance to students experiencing allergic reactions. Quincy Kiwanian Jeff Bertman, Major Emphasis Priority One chairman, and club President Michelle Stenberg (right), present the donation to Jane Kisielius (far left), coordinator of Health Services for Quincy Public Schools, and Janet Powell, director of Pupil Personnel, Quincy Public Schools. To date, Quincy Kiwanis has distributed over $68,000 through this unique program specifically established to help Quincy children in need. Assistance includes clothing, food, shelter as well as educational opportunities and programs outside of school.

JOHN FARMER, a club distinguished past president, is presented a framed Legion of Honor citation in recognition of his 30 years of membership in the Quincy Kiwanis Club. Making the presentation are Robert Foster, lieutenant governor of Division 13 and a member of the Milton Kiwanis Club, and Carolyn Perry, governor, New England District of Kiwanis International.

FR. WILLIAM McCARTHY was recognized for 25 years of membership in the Quincy Kiwanis Club with a framed Legion of Honor citation. With him are Richard Sweeney, Quincy Kiwanis distinguished past president and dinner emcee, and Carolyn Perry, governor, New England District of Kiwanis International. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

ROBERT BUNSTEIN, a distinguished past president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club, is recognized as a 30-year member of Kiwanis with a Legion of Honor citation presented by New England District Governor Carolyn Perry. Another Quincy Kiwanian, Aldo Saluti, was honored for 35 years of Kiwanis membership but was unable to attend the dinner.

Charles Phelan Elected Democratic Committee Chairman

CHARLES PHELAN

Phelan, former Ward 5 city councillor and council president, was elected at the Democratic City Committee's recent annual organizational meeting.

Also elected were:

Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner and Archie Wahlberg, vice-chairmen; Dale Musgrave, secretary; Michele Lydon, treasurer; Josephine Shea, corresponding secretary; Barbara Morris, affirmative action officer; and state Rep. Ron Mariano, sergeant-at-arms.

Bryon Paez, Deputy Director of External Affairs for this year's Democratic National Convention, updated delegates on the convention planning and provided information on how to participate as volunteers and support staff at the convention, which will be held in Boston starting July 26.

Chief Falco Will Retire On July 28

lose the 10 percent bonus, and their base salary is reduced 10 percent each year for as long as they stay on the force. Those provisions are contained in the officers' contract.

Falco was captain at the time he signed up for the Brockton plan and was bound by the contract. But he does not have a contract as a chief.

That means the penalty for staying on beyond his scheduled retirement date may not apply. The chief has made about $40,000 for signing up for the retirement bonus.

Falco's salary, which is set by city ordinance, is $94,982. Utilizing the Brockton plan and educational incentives has pushed his salary up to $166,000.

Falco said he would give back about three months' worth of the Brockton plan bonus, about $3,500.

"I will continue to receive my regular pay and I will compensate the city three months of the benefit. But I'm not getting any more benefits than anyone else," said Falco.

Falco's retirement date directly affects who his successor will be. A May 2002 Civil Service exam for chief will expire this summer.

Crowley scored the highest on that test of the candidates who vied to replace former Chief Thomas Frane.

Phelan appointed Falco over Crowley as permanent chief in 2002.

Falco said the July 28 retirement date should not affect Crowley, because the current list expires in August.

"To my knowledge it expires in August. This would keep the current list active. I don't think it's a problem, but if it is we will deal with it," said Falco.

'Planting Pride In Quincy' Seeks To Beautify City

There is nothing like the arrival of spring to stir a desire for more attractive surroundings. The thought has occurred to the Phelan Administration, too. And they're doing something about it.

"My goal is to transform Quincy into one of the most beautiful cities in America," said Mayor William Phelan.

With that, he announced plans for a "Planting Pride in Quincy" campaign, a beatification effort that will involve government, business and citizens working together for a more beautiful Quincy.

"With the community spirit that I have seen utilized for events such as Cleaner, Greener Quincy and the Babe Ruth World Series, I know that Quincy can come together to make our great city more beautiful," said Phelan.

"With vision and hard work, our finished product will benefit all that live in or visit our great city."

"Planting Pride in Quincy" will feature such projects as beautification of the city's gateways, aesthetic improvements at major intersections, street tree planting and additional directional signage to tourist spots.

An Adopt-a-Sidewalk program will be added to the existing Adopt-an-Island program and an Arbor Day tree-planting celebration will be added to the present Spring and Summer flower plantings.

The city will also make renewed efforts to improve the Cleaner, Greener Quincy campaign, the Neat Neighbors Award program, the Environmental Treasures of Quincy program and the street campaign.

"Planting Pride in Quincy" will be supported by city mitigation funds, Phelan said.

Quincy also will participate in "America in Bloom," a national contest which pits municipalities of like size against each other in competition for the most beautiful city.

Judges from America in Bloom will visit Quincy July 26-27 to evaluate the city on floral displays, tidiness, landscaped areas, urban forestry, heritage, community involvement, turf & groundcovers and environmental effort.

"I am confident that we can combine our existing landscapes, historic attractions, parks and waterfront with renewed beautification efforts in our business districts, city entrances and along our main thoroughfares to make Quincy one of the prettiest cities in America," said the Mayor.

"We are blessed to be surrounded by beautiful natural resources like the Blue Hills Reservation and Quincy Bay, it is now up to us to beautify the city in between."

The Phelan Administration has already made several moves toward planting more pride in the city that already has much to be proud about.

Business owners have been invited to take part in the Adopt-a-Sidewalk program which encourages them to sweep, weed, water street trees and generally keep their areas free of debris.

The Neat Neighbors program is being reconstructed to recognize not only residents who maintain and beautify their property in an exceptional manner but also acknowledge those neighborhood with a visible dedication to beautification.

"I ask our community to join with me in this effort to improve our city and help make it the most beautiful city in America," said Phelan.

"Our natural resources are an incredible strength but the resources that will make us most successful are out citizens.

Cleaner, Greener Quincy Set For Saturday

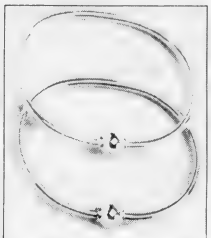
The 15th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy citywide cleanup day will take place this Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at various locations throughout the city.

The cleanup is devoted to sprucing up the city's beaches, marshes, parks and open spaces.

"I strongly encourage all residents to join me for this one-day cleanup that make quite an impact on the city's overall appearance," said Mayor William Phelan.

In addition to the designated cleanup sites below, volunteers are encouraged to organize a cleanup at a park, beach or open space area in their neighborhood. The Park Department will support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools, including rakes, brooms, gloves and other equipment.

The Department of Public Works will also assist in the hauling of nearly 150 tons of refuse expected to be collected.



Following the cleanup Mayor Phelan will host an appreciation cookout for all volunteers at the Richard J. Koch Park & Recreation Complex, 1 Merrymount Parkway, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Aviva Life Insurance Company, based in North Quincy, has signed on as a corporate sponsor and presented a check in the amount of $5,000 for the event. Aviva's logo will be printed on the T-shirts distributed to all volunteers.

Phelan said he is hoping for a large turnout Saturday.

"Each year I look forward to witnessing the community spirit that makes Cleaner, Greener Quincy such a success," he said. "This year, we are fortunate to have a member of our business community that an active role in the city's beautification effort. I predict Saturday's cleanup to be the biggest turnout yet as we work together to make Quincy a better place to live, work and visit."

Sacred Heart School Faculty Enthused By NCEA Convention

The faculty and staff of Sacred Heart School in North Quincy attended the 101st annual convention and exposition of the National Catholic Education Association (NCEA) in Boston and came away with renewed enthusiasm for their work.

"The NCEA convention was a wonderful professional experience," said Sister Ann Marie Ghiloni, the principal. "The general sessions and workshops were stimulating, informative and kept you abreast of the latest trends in all areas of education."

"Heritage and Hope: Faithful Past, Faith-filled Future," was the theme of the four-day meeting which included a keynote speech by Boston Archbishop Sean P. O'Malley and more than 400 professional development sessions.

Openings are still available for the 2004-05 school year at Sacred Heart, a kindergarten through grade 8 school. For more information or a tour of the school, contact Sister Ann Marie at 617-328-3830.

Kripalu Yoga Sessions At Wollaston Church

Six weekly sessions of Kripalu Yoga will start Wednesday, May 5, and continue through Wednesday, June 9, from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m. at the Wollaston Congregational Church, 45 Winthrop Ave.

The cost is $60 prepaid for the six weeks or $12 per session. Walk-ins are welcome.

For further information, call Christine Way-Cotter at Skinsations Day Spa at 781-792-0972.

SENATOR MICHAEL Morrissey recently welcomed Maria Gizzarelli of Quincy to the Massachusetts State House for this year's Student Government Day. # Robert Curry Receives Prestigious Philanthropy Award

Robert Curry, chairman of the Board of Trustees at Quincy Medical Center (QMC), has received the 2004 Distinguished Service to Philanthropy Award from the New England Association of Healthcare Philanthropy (NEAHP).

Curry, a Quincy native and owner of the Curry Ace Hardware stores in Quincy and Braintree, was recognized "as an individual who epitomizes the meaning of leadership and embraces the true spirit of philanthropy."

NEAHP member hospitals across New England were invited to submit nominations for the annual award.

In 1998, Curry, who is also a member of the QMC Foundation Board, established the Marie A. Curry Fund to honor his late wife who died of breast cancer. The fund underwrites free breast cancer screenings and breast care services at QMC for women without health insurance or with inadequate health insurance coverage.

Under Curry's leadership, the fund has raised nearly $1 million to date, and an expected 1,000 people will participate in the seventh annual Marie Curry Walk Sunday, Sept. 19, in Quincy.

In addition to his commitment to improving the health of South Shore residents, Curry also serves as a board member of several prominent business organizations, including the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the South Shore Economic Development Corporation, the Quincy Commission on the Family, the Quincy 2000 Corporation, the Quincy Rotary Club and the Cyril Morrisette American Legion Post.

The NEAHP award is not the first recognition of Curry's commitment to the community. Curry was named the Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year in 1998 and received the annual "Good Scout" award in 2003 from Mayor William Phelan.

In addition, the Curry family was named "outstanding family" by the Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services in 2001 and the Marie A. Curry Fund received the Massachusetts Society of Clinical Oncologists' Sullivan Award for excellence in community cancer care.

Rep. Bruce Ayers Guest Speaker At Montclair/Wollaston Meeting

Rep. Bruce Ayers will be the guest speaker Thursday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m. at a meeting of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association in the Community Room at Work, Inc., 3 Arlington St.

He will discuss a special project to improve handicapped access to the Wollaston and North Quincy MBTA stations. A site visit with the director of design and construction was held March 12.

Members of the Association will take part in Greener, Cleaner Quincy activities at Bishop Field Saturday, May 1 at 9:30 a.m.

Three Quincy Salons To Participate In Mother's Day Cut-A-Thon

Three Quincy Salons will take part in the statewide First Annual Mother's Day Cut-a-Thon to benefit breast cancer research, on May 3 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bliss Salon & Spa at 1604 Hancock St., Leonardo's Salon & Spa on 620 Hancock St., and Miracles Hair Design on 270 Water St. will be part of nearly 100 salons statewide scheduled to participate in the drive.

Residents can help researchers pursue clues to breast cancer prevention by getting their hair cut for only $10. The funds will go toward the Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition and Silent Spring Institute. Proceeds will support advocacy programs and environmental research.

$10M Bond For Street Repairs, DPW Equipment

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city council last week endorsed a $10 million borrowing package designed to repair some 200 roadways, purchase new DPW equipment and fix city buildings.

On an 8-0 vote, the council approved the first cash infusion for Mayor William Phelan's 10-year street repair project and funds for a capital improvement plan.

Approximately $1 million of the bond will go toward repairing air quality problems at the Marshall Elementary School, renovating the Wollaston Fire Station and replacing roofs at several other schools.

Another $1 million will be spent on the purchase of several new pieces of heavy equipment for the DPW. This will allow the city to do more work in-house, according to city officials.

The city's nearly 20-year-old financial software will also be replaced.

But the big-ticket item is $5 million for the first year of the city's pavement management plan. The administration's goal is to spend $23 million over the next 10 years to repair the roads.

Under the plan, the initial $5 million investment would be followed by approximately $2 million each year for the next nine years.

"It's a good plan for my Ward and good for the city as a whole," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis. "This will address the long term needs of the streets and roadways. It's a start, and a good start."

Councillor Joe Finn agreed and put it in baseball terms.

"It was very important to make a commitment as this point," said Finn. "This is not a static plan but something that needs to be re-evaluated every year. It's not a homerun – it's a base hit."

Last summer, a consultant took an inventory of every public street in the city, assigning a PCI (pavement condition index) to reflect its current condition. On a scale of 0 to 100, the city's streets averaged 53 on the PCI index, meaning many of them are on the cusp of falling into poor condition.

The city intends to immediately focus on streets that are in need of preventive maintenance because it costs less money to repair them when compared to fixing streets in very poor condition. Focusing on these "middling" streets first will prevent them from falling into poor condition, thus saving money in the long run, according to the plan.

DPW Commissioner Jay Fink said the city's worst streets will not be ignored, but they will not take precedence at the beginning. The city will tackle some of the worst roadways in the second or third year of the plan, he said.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, who abstained on the vote, criticized the plan, saying it does not go far enough to improve the quality of the roadways and creates an even larger fund backlog of work to be done when the plan is complete.

Raymondi pointed to a report by the city's consultant, Fay, Spofford & Thorndike, which shows a chart outlining the city's proposed 10-year plan. For example, there is a current fund backlog of $23 million worth of work to be done on the city's streets. After the administration's plan is completed, the backlog will be $36 million, according to the consultant's report.

Raymondi said it is ridiculous to spend $23 million on the streets only to have a larger backlog in the future. He said spending an additional $7 million over the 10-year period would have marked results.

The administration's 10-year plan would bump up the PCI for the city's streets 10 points, to an average of 63. According to the consultant's report, spending the additional $7 million would boost the PCI to 73 and lower the backlog to approximately $20 million.

"After 10 years and $23 million of investment, the roads in Quincy will not be significantly better," said Raymondi. "The roads in Quincy are a mess and they are getting worse. This plan does not address the problem over the long term. After this plan is completed the problem will be so out of control that it will take an enormous effort by the taxpayers to solve it. And the administration has no plan to address the increasing backlog."

But other councillors agreed it is important to start work on repairing the streets as soon as possible, and the initial $5 million expenditure is the first step toward achieving that.

"We didn't buy into a 10-year plan, but we need this initial $5 million to get the ball rolling," said Councillor John Keenan. "This is a one-year expenditure."

Identifying funding sources for future years will prove to be a challenge, some councillors said.

"We don't know if we can find the $2 million each year, never mind $3 million," said Keenan, referring to Raymondi's idea. "The plan makes financial sense, but we haven't identified the funding for it."

Fink said the city hopes to pay for the remaining nine years of the plan with a combination of Chapter 90 state funds, CDBG funds and revenue from the Quarry Hills Golf Course. He conceded the city may fall behind with its plan if revenues are not adequate.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said the council's vote reflected approval of the first year of the plan.

"All the plans start at the same place, regardless if we implement a one, five or 10-year plan," said Gutro. "We lose nothing by approving the $10 million bond. There is always the possibility we can spend more aggressively on road and sidewalk repairs in the ensuing years."

Gutro said he still has questions about the administration's plan regarding the city's worst streets.

"The whole wild card here is, do we have a plan to target the worst roads in the city," said Gutro. "And I think we walked away with a big question mark on that front."

McCauley, QTA Spar Over Signs In Council Chamber

Council President Frank McCauley and the Quincy Taxpayers' Association (QTA) got into a minor squabble last week over whether the group can bring signs into the council chamber.

At last week's city council meeting, McCauley told QTA member Ed Melia to put down his sign after he held it up during the proceedings. About 20 members of QTA attended last week's meeting, with some of them holding white signs that read "Taxpayers First."

FRANK McCAULEY

Melia then asked to speak, but McCauley wouldn't allow it. "This was not a public hearing," McCauley told the Sun.

McCauley said he didn't have a problem with the signs being in the council chambers, but he said Melia raised his sign during the meeting.

"I wasn't disturbed by the presence of the signs," said McCauley. "But these are city council meetings and I will not tolerate any demonstrations or disruptions during the conduct of the city's business."

Initially, McCauley thought there was a council rule against bringing signs into the chambers but discovered that was not the case. The Council President is responsible for preserving the decorum during council proceedings, McCauley said.

"As a general rule we don't like to have them in there," he said.

Alan Cousin, QTA president, said if McCauley prevents the group from bringing signs inside then they will rally outside the council chambers.

"I don't want to disrupt anything, but if we can't have our signs in the chamber when we will rally outside," said Cousin. "He (McCauley) campaigned as the 'taxpayer's voice on the city council' so why would he want to stifle a taxpayer's silent free expression in the council chamber?"

I would prefer to use an oil-based primer on exterior wood indoors or out. But first you want to inspect the wood for any knots. If there are knots you want to seal them before you prime. The easiest way is to get some white pigmented shellac and cut it with a little denatured alcohol. Used full strength indoors is okay but if used outdoors full strength it will tend to crackle and split.

Take an old or cheap brush and paint the knots with the shellac. It dries in seconds so you can put a couple of thin coats. Make sure you counter sink and nail heads and fill them with an outdoor rated filler, most fillers are for in-terior or exterior applications but check the label anyway.

When the filler has dried, it's time for the primer. If you want to use a good quality latex primer that will be okay too. I just prefer to use the oil because it will not raise the wood at all.

Some cheap latex primers will dramatically raise the grain. A good quality 100% acrylic will minimally raise the grain.

After the primer has dried you want to caulk any seams and do the necessary weather proofing with a painter's caulking. Once the caulking has skinned over it's time to paint. The fun part!

Get yourself the best quality 100% acrylic latex exterior paint. Trim work usually calls for a satin or a semi-gloss sheen. Put on a nice and even coat of paint. Let it dry completely. You'll find on a dry day that latex paint will dry much quicker than on a humid day.

Put on the second coat nice and even again it that's it. If you're like me you don't want to have to paint for a while for there's always something else that needs you attention around the house.

Conway Wins National Relocation Awards

The Jack Conway Co. Relocation team swept four national awards at the recent RELO National Convention, held in New Orleans.

Topping the awards was a first prize gold medal for having the best supportive advertising program in America for executive relocation. The design and copy for the ad award was done by the Conway Ad Group, headed by Marie Fricker and graphic artists Deb Powers and Kelly Waterfield.

In addition, the Conway Relocation group won a coveted Top Producer Award, given only to the leading relocation firms in the country, a Global Alliance Award for handling relocation business coming from overseas, and was again named a member of the Million Dollar Team for Relocation.

Executive Director Pam O'Connor of Chicago and RELO President Ron Peltier from Minneapolis made the awards to Conway Relo President Maureen McCaffrey at the New Orleans Convention Center.

The Jack Conway Co. has been a leader in the relocation field for many decades. Conway was national president for RELO in 1979. And the company has continued the tradition of providing the best possible service to relocating buyers and sellers.

Seven Century 21 Realty Agents Honored At Gold Ball

Century 21 Annex Realty, located in Quincy and Hanover, announces seven of the company's Realtors were honored at the recent Annual Gold Ball Awards Gala at the Copley Marriott.

The Century 21 Brokers Council of Eastern Massachusetts hosts the event each year to honor outstanding sales performance throughout the region.

Quincy based Realtors Mary Collins, Gus Confalone and Ken Hiang were honored as Centurion Associates. Each agent generated more than $1,250,000 in Adjusted Gross Commissions (AGC) during 2003. Additionally, Collins and Confalone were inducted into the prestigious Centurion Honor Society, which recognizes individuals who have achieved Centurion status for a minimum of five years in the Century 21 System.

Realtors Joseph LaRaia, Dianne DeMarkles, Stephen Downing and John Tronca were also recognized at this year's Gold Ball. Each received Masters Ruby status for achieving AGC totals exceeding $92,000 during 2003.

Both the Quincy and Hanover offices won Quality Service Awards for overall outstanding team performance.

The company's Hanover location was honored as a "Pinnacle Office" based on customer feedback received from the Quality Service Survey (QSS). Customers are able to log onto a web site to complete the online survey after the purchase or sale of a home through Century 21 Annex Realty.

To earn the Quality Service Pinnacle Award, an office must receive surveys for at least 25 percent of their clients from January through October, with an average survey score of at least 95 percent for two years.

"We are thrilled that Century 21 Annex Realty has been so widely recognized for excellent sales productivity and client service," said Art Foley, Broker/Owner and Licensed Real Estate Appraiser. "Our promise of professionalism, attentiveness to individual needs and industry knowledge has been our staple for more than 25 years."

For more information about Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., call the Quincy office at 800-345-4614.

Transform Your Deck From Dingy To Beautiful In Two Easy Steps

(NAPS) – Winter can be hard on a deck. No matter how beautiful yours looked last spring, it's probably dirty, mildew-stained and wearing a coat of gray after the long, wet winter.

But don't worry. It's easy to transform your deck from dingy to beautiful in two easy steps. Here's some advice from the deck experts at Wolman Wood Care Products:

Step 1: Clean & Restore:

Before you apply a protective finish or color, dirt and gray weathered wood should be cleaned away with an acid-free, biodegradable deck cleaner, like Wolman DeckBrite Wood Cleaner & Coating Prep. DeckBrite is tough on ground in dirt, mildew and algae stains, yet it's gentle so it won't harm grass, plants or shrubs.

Simply mix the powder concentrate with water, spray on, brush and rinse off with a garden hose. The fast-acting foaming action loosens and lifts dirt, stains and weathered-gray discoloration in 10 minutes or less. Unlike chlorine bleach, which can degrade the structure of the wood, DeckBrite's oxygen-activated formula cleans and restores the wood to its original, like-new look without whitening or damaging the wood surface.

Step 2: Beautify & Protect:

Once you've cleaned and prepared the deck surface, add color and protection in one easy step by applying a wood stain that offers superior durability, color longevity and maximum protection against all weather and climate conditions, such as Wolman DuraStain.

Rated the best semi-transparent wood stain for "wood worth showing off," DuraStain provides a richly pigmented, matte finish that resists fading and offers longer-lasting color and superior UV protection.

It's easy to apply by brush, pad or airless sprayer and just one coat of the quick-drying, water-based formula provides excellent coverage, offering great value for recoating and revitalizing wood.

To learn more about restoration, protecting and beautifying your deck, call the Wolman Consumer Help Line at 1-800-556-7737 or visit www.wolman.com for more helpful deck care tips.

Insect Control: Above, Below Ground

(NAPS) – To protect your yard against insects, you need to keep in mind that insects can attack on two levels: below ground as well as above ground.

On the surface, they can attack and destroy grass and flowers, and even harm your family. There's everything from chinch bugs, which actually suck the juices out of your grass, to fleas and ticks, which can spread disease to your family and pets.

Meanwhile, below ground, there's a whole different scenario you can't see that can be just as bad or worse. Underground insects such as grubs and crane fly larvae eat the roots of grass, which can kill a lawn and leave ugly brown spots on the surface.

Traditionally, effective insect control has required at least two steps: using two different insecticides, one for above-ground pests and the other for those working below ground. Now, however, a line of products called Bayer Advanced has introduced what's described as a better, combined-solution approach that kills insects above and below ground in one simple step.

For example, Bayer Advanced Lawn Complete Insect Killer for Soil and Turf is said to kill more than 50 kinds of bugs, mosquitoes and insects on contact with one application and provides three months of protection against soil insects. No other product kills such a diverse range of insects as effectively and for so long with one application.

Bayer Advanced Lawn Complete Insect Killer for Soil and Turf contains two cutting-edge insecticides to target both surface and soil insects. One of the insecticides controls surface-feeding insects on contact and the other is absorbed into plants and grass roots to control and prevent insect infestations below ground.

This systemic protection cannot be washed off by rain or water and lasts for 90 days. Available in granular and spray formulations, the new product quickly and fully dissolves or disperses to help ensure even coverage and maximum insect control.

90 Percent Say 'Yes'

Should Supreme Court Retain 'Under God' In Allegiance Pledge?

If the rest of the country is like the good folks who live in Quincy and environs then they are overwhelmingly in favor of retaining the phrase "under God" in the pledge of allegiance to the American flag.

An informal poll of Quincy Sun readers shows that 90 percent of them would like to see the U. S. Supreme Court overturn the ruling of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in California that "under God" violates the Second Amendment to the Constitution.

"I do not believe one person should be able to force his beliefs on everyone else," wrote one of the favorable voters in reference to the man who filed the original suit so that his daughter would not be subjected to religion in public school.

"His child is offended, then his child should not say it. I am offended that I cannot express my pride in God and country, which was founded on faith.

YES | NO

"I am still against elimination of prayer from schools. Maybe we wouldn't be in the mess we are in schools today if God was asked to bless us each day. Pretty soon we won't be able to fly the flag in public places because it offends the UN."

On the other hand, there was this response by one of the few unfavorable voters in the poll:

"I'll never forget my surprise when I pledged in 1954 and heard the words 'under God' for the first time.

"'What is this?' I thought. 'Totally ridiculous.'

"Later I found out that President Eisenhower was responsible for this unnecessary addition to our beloved pledge. So much for the power of the presidency."

The Supreme Court will have the final say on the question of God in the pledge of allegiance. Meanwhile, you too can register your feelings in The Quincy Sun's poll.

Simply put a check mark in the box of your choice — "Yes" to retain the phrase "under God"; or "No" to eliminate the phrase "under God" from the pledge of allegiance — and send it to:

The Quincy Sun
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy MA 02169

Or fax it to The Sun at:
617-472-3963.

The final result of the poll will be published in a later edition of The Sun.

Landmark Liberty Lounge Becomes The Cottage

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A landmark restaurant since the 1930's in South Quincy, called the Liberty Lounge on 73-75 Liberty St., will now be known as The Cottage.

The License Board at Tuesday's meeting voted for the transfer of the common victualer all alcoholic and cabaret licenses presently held by B.L.E.D. Inc., to Molly Mac, Inc. doing business as The Cottage.

The new owner and general manager will be Mark Carey who told the board he had more than 20 years in the restaurant business having managed several along the way.

Carey said the restaurant will shut down for about 30 days while a new fresh look and cosmetic changes acquiring a "comfortable atmosphere" be done.

Carey said he will emphasize food in the 70 seat restaurant, and that he plans to remove the existing pool table and video machine to provide more dining space. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 1 a.m. daily.

Plans were shown to the board as was the menu which will feature appetizers, soups, salads and a variety of grilled foods. Lunches will also be served.

Carey said there will be entertainment and a detail will be hired for Fridays and Saturdays.

Chairman Joseph Shea said because of public safety, "seat figures" are very important. He added that the restaurant is in a "position point" as far as parking is concerned and has off street parking.

Shea read a letter of support from former Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly who called the restaurant a "valuable asset to the city."

QMC, City Considering Parking Garage Alternative

100 vehicles.

Temporarily closing the park and converting it to a parking area would need the approval of the Park and Recreation Board.

Thomas Koch, administrator for the Park and Recreation Board said, "I don't speak for the board but if this situation was temporary and solved the situation for the greater good I'm sure the board would go along with it."

Community meetings will be held if QMC accepts the proposal or a related design of it, said Gutro.

Neighborhood Group Concerned Over Fate Of Crime Watch Meetings

He said the department will continue to be vigilant and aggressive in policing any potential problems.

But Gutro said Falco's letter falls short in pointing out specific problems in the downtown area.

"I'm not sure what's in this letter that couldn't have been written a year ago," Gutro told the Sun. "I'm not sure why we had 12 months of crime watch meetings to highlight all of the issues that we knew about before we walked in."

In addition, Gutro asked the police department to put together a report about crime statistics in the downtown area, but the chief said the department "should not be involved in compiling such a report."

Gutro said the department should not "change course or abandon ship."

"I am disappointed in your apparent unwillingness to oversee the development of a comprehensive report or commit to aid in implementing its recommendations," Gutro wrote to Falco.

Gutro said the police department should lead a partnership with other city departments to provide important information to Quincy Center residents and businesses on a quarterly basis.

He said it is important for the community to receive periodic updates on crime statistics, call and arrest information relative to legal and illegal rooming houses and the fate of recommendations from the Mayor's Quincy Center Task Force.

But Gutro praised Falco and the department for increasing its police presence in the downtown area. "I am grateful for the stepped up police presence, both foot and patrol, since last Spring," he said. "I believe the Crime Watch meetings were a catalyst to that end. It is my hope that they will sustain that level of police presence this summer as it was so effective last summer."

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

•Allowed a change of managers of The Cima Corp doing business as Villa Rosa Restaurant, 705 Adams St. from Barry Misher to Marta Massey. Health Commissioner Drew Scheele advised Massey to have the dumpster changed.

•Continued until May 18 a request of Letteris and Stavros Retzos doing business as Spakie's on Pizza, 15 Copeland St. for a common victualer license. It was formerly a Chinese Restaurant. The board will meet regarding parking in the Brewer's Corner area.

•Granted to Maralm Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association a permit for the 34th Annual Sidewalk Festival Thursday, July 15 through Saturday July 17 rain or shine.

•Granted a request to Susan Morse, Alicia Blais and Marg Johnson for a one day permit to conduct a car wash to benefit the American Cancer Society at Wal-Mart, Falls Blvd. on either May 15 to May 22 depending on the store's manager's schedule.

•Withdrew a request of Rita Patel, doing business as the Harsh convenience Store Washington St. for a common victualer license because the site had already been issued a license.

•Granted a one day permit to St. Ann's School, 1 St. Ann's Rd., for a Spring Fair Saturday, May 16 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. It will feature children's rides and a cake walk.

•Granted a one day beer and wine license to St. Ann's School for a Fashion Show May 23 from 1 to 4 p.m. to benefit St. Ann's Church.

SPRING CAR CARE

Free Inspections Offered To Promote Car Care

(NAPS) — A company described as a global leader in automotive replacement parts and services is helping to educate consumers about the benefits of proper vehicle maintenance and repair.

To help put drivers on the road to safety, ACDelco is promoting April's National Car Care Month event by taking part in the Car Care Council's inaugural "Be Car Care Aware" campaign. It will enlist its warehouse distributors to sponsor free vehicle inspections, as well as other events in communities nationwide.

Drivers can have their tires, fluids, filters, batteries, belts and hoses, wipers and other automotive parts inspected by trained experts at the vehicle check lanes. Any mechanical discrepancies found during the inspections will be reported in writing to the vehicle owners, along with a list of Independent Service Centers where they can get the parts and services they might need.

"We not only support this initiative, but we're also encouraging our entire distribution family to support it as well," said Sally Thelen, ACDelco sales administrator and an executive board member of the Car Care Council Women's Board. "We embrace the 'Be Car Care Aware' promotion as it strives to bring about a change in attitude toward regular vehicle maintenance.

"It's an opportunity for us to increase consumer awareness about the importance of vehicle maintenance and for our direct and secondary accounts to enhance customer relationships and build goodwill in the community."

Last April, 90 percent of the vehicles inspected during Car Care Month failed one or more aspects of the inspection. More than half — 54 percent — of the vehicles had improperly inflated tires. The next most common flaws were low or dirty fluids, worn belts, and loose or corroded battery cables, clamps and terminals.

Thelen said the check lanes are designed to be educational and non-sales oriented and often include games and activities for kids, as well as refreshments and vehicle maintenance displays.

Get Ready For Summer

(NAPS) — Summer is vacation time. You want to get in the car and go. Refer to the maintenance schedule in your owners manual to make sure your car is ready for the trip.

• Make an appointment for a tune up. Clean air filters and new spark plugs may mean better gas mileage.

• Check tires for wear and proper inflation. Properly inflated tires can give you better fuel mileage and longer tire life.

• Rotate tires and have the wheel alignment checked.

• Check all fluid levels: Oil, antifreeze, transmission, brake and power steering fluid and windshield solvent.

• Make sure your wipers work and the wiper blades are replaced if necessary.

• Check cooling system. Look for leaks, worn or bulging hoses and fan operation. Hot weather puts a strain on the cooling system. Tip: If the engine is overheating, turn off the air conditioning and turn on the heater.

Finally, always let someone know where you are going and when to expect you. Also, be sure to take along a map and a cell phone.

Top V-8 Engines of All Time

Q. Greg, what do you feel are the top 10 V-8 engines of all-time? I'm not just looking for high-performance, but engines that changed things in the auto world. — *Ben P., e-mail from Pennsylvania

A. Ben, that's a tough one, but here goes. In no specific order, here are the first five. We'll finish the list in our next column.

• Ford Flathead V-8: This engine propelled so many early Ford models, from the '32 Ford to the '53 models, and even to 1954 in Canadian-built Fords and Mercurys.

• Chrysler Hemi: Chrysler produced its initial engine with hemispherical-shaped combustion chambers in 1951 in sizes of 301, 331, 354 and 392 cubic inches to power its family of passenger cars. In the '60s, Chrysler brought out its famous 426 Hemi, which produced way more power and became an instant hit both on the track and street.

• Chevy Small Block: Introduced in 1955, the little 265 would go on to become the most famous engine of them all. No other engine has been used in more applications.

• Ford Small Block: Also starting life in the 260-inch range, the little Ford small block grew to a powerful 351 Windsor and Cleveland design, and was also capable of even more if bored.

• Chevy Big Block: Ranging in production sizes from 366 to 454 inches, these engines today come in aftermarket 502-inch crates and are respected everywhere for lots of torque and horsepower.

Raiders Down Hyde Park, Bow To Milton

Baseball

The North Quincy High School baseball team split a pair of games last week during school vacation at Merrymount Field.

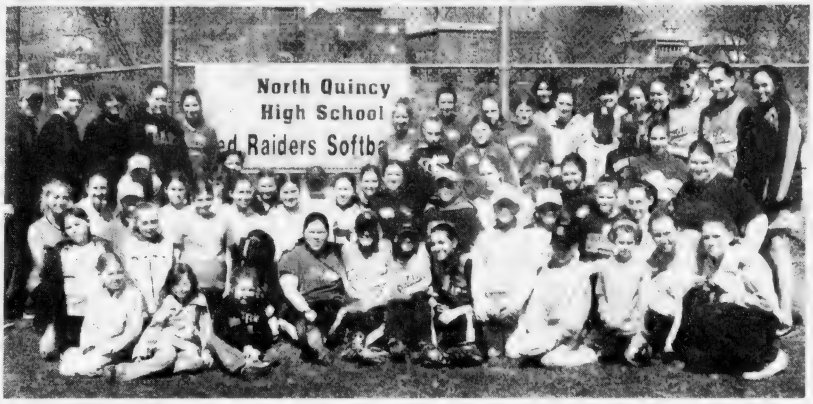
The Red Raiders routed Hyde Park, 16-2, last Wednesday and the following day they were blanked by a strong Milton squad, 3-0.

North Quincy (3-3), which was rained out Monday against Barnstable, traveled to Plymouth South yesterday (Wednesday).

And it is scheduled to square off with cross-town rival Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 at Adams Field — the opening game of the season at the renovated park.

Against Milton, senior tri-captain and No. 1 pitcher Steve Reardon kept his team close, allowing two earned runs on seven hits in a complete-game performance.

Milton pushed across a run in the second inning when the leadoff batter walked, moved to third on a double and scored on a groundout to second base.



In the third, Reardon yielded consecutive singles to put runners on the corners, and another groundout to second put Milton ahead, 2-0.

After giving up the second single, Reardon found his groove as he retired nine straight hitters before Milton scored an unearned run in the sixth. The leadoff hitter reached on an error, moved to second on an errant pickoff throw, stole third base, and scored on a single for a 3-0 lead.

The Red Raiders collected only four hits. Reardon, sophomore Tom Power and juniors John Fitzgerald and Mike Powers all singled. North Quincy had the leadoff man on in the fifth and seventh innings, but they were quickly erased on double plays.

Against Hyde Park, senior Sean Sullivan picked up the win, giving up five hits over five innings while punching out nine.

Powers (2-for-3) blasted a three-run home run in the third inning and also scored two runs and stole three bases. Reardon added two hits and two RBI.

THE NORTH QUINCY High School varsity softball team recently held a skills clinic for more than 50 girls ages 8-13. The clinic was hosted by head coach Bob Doyle, assistant coach Denise Boyd, coach Tony Green and captains Michelle Boyd, May Ho, Beth Goodrich and Kim Walsh. Several members of the varsity and junior varsity teams were also on hand to assist.

Quincy-North Softball Today

The Quincy and North Quincy high school softball teams will renew their rivalry today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. at Pageant Field.

The Presidents, scheduled to travel to Whitman-Hanson Wednesday, posted a 2-3 record through five games, with two losses coming against a powerful Cardinal Spellman squad.

The Red Raiders, which hosted Plymouth South Wednesday, sport a 1-4 mark, but have looked much improved from a year ago.

Paul Harold Memorial Race Sunday

The Paul D. Harold Memorial Race will be held Sunday, May 2, at 11 a.m. beginning and ending at the Concourse Bridge in Quincy Center.

Mayor William Phelan, Congressman William Delahunt and Senator Michael Morrissey will lead a delegation of city and state officials in dedicating the Concourse Bridge in memory of Paul D. Harold.

New signage will be unveiled bearing his name prior to the start of the race. Quincy residents are invited to attend the dedication and join the festivities.

Harold's political career spanned 27 years as Quincy city councillor, council president, state senator and Norfolk County register of deeds. He died Aug. 12, 2002 at age 53 after a two-year battle with cancer.

All proceeds from the 3.5 mile road race and 1.5 mile walk will be used to fund the Paul D. Memorial Fund, providing for scholarships to high school seniors and support of youth sports in Quincy.

Cost of the race is $18 post-registration. T-shirts will be provided to the first 200 registered runners. All registered runners and walkers are invited to the post-race party.

Quincy Municipal Credit Union and Francis X. Messina Enterprises will be the headline sponsors for the race. The post-race party will be hosted by the Outback Steakhouse, Pat Flanagan's, Roche Brothers and Stop & Shop. Super Fitness will offer use of its facilities to all registered runners.

Race applications are available at the Outback Steakhouse, Pat Flanagan's, The Quincy Sun, Quincy Municipal Credit Union, Wollaston Wine & Liquors, Super Fitness, Quincy YMCA and World Gym in North Quincy.

Also, on-line registration is available at www.signmeupsports.com or www.coolrunning.com. To request an application or for more information, call 617-770-0166.

Senior Olympics Begin May 10

The 22nd annual Quincy Senior Olympics will launch May 10 and conclude May 19 with an awards ceremony.

Local seniors are preparing for the games by participating in the fourth annual Sports Day — practice sessions held each Friday morning at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

There are two more sessions remaining. Volunteer coaches Don McCusker and Hy Levy will demonstrate and train.

A pre-Olympics breakfast is planned for Friday, May 7. Dr. Wayne Wescott will be the guest speaker. All are welcome to attend. Reservations are necessary.

The week-long event includes: horseshoes, darts, billiards, bowling and golf; team competitions: bocce, volleyball, softball; and track and field competitions.

Registration fee is $20, which includes a Senior Olympics T-shirt, a week's menu of competition, fun and fellowship, the awards ceremony and lunch May 15.

Registration packets are available at Beechwood on the Bay, The Quincy Sun and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. Deadline for registration and full payment of fee is May 3.

For more information about the Friday Sports Day, the Senior Olympics or to register, call Beechwood at 617-471-5712.

South Shore Coaches Hockey League Starts June 13

Quincy Youth Arena, 60 Murphy Memorial Dr., will host the South Shore Coaches Hockey League June 13 through Aug. 22.

All area high school players are invited to participate. Teams will be coached by varsity area hockey coaches.

Ten games will be played Sundays during the summer.

Applications are available at the rink. For more information, call (781) 871-0547.

HOW'S THIS FOR STARTERS?

When your engine fails to turn over with the turn of the ignition key, you can suspect the starter. To find out, eliminate other possible causes by turning on your headlights and attempting to start your vehicle. If the headlights dim, the problem may rest with a bad battery or corroded battery terminals. On the other hand, if your battery and terminals are in good condition, you should be able to hear the starter solenoid click as y you turn the ignition key to the "start" position. If, after performing these tests, you are still unsure of the problem and your starter has been in service for over 50,000 miles, discuss replacing the starter and solenoid as a preventive measure/fix.

Hear a clicking when you turn your ignition key? It could be something simple or more serious, like a bad starter. Bring it in to us here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. We are small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern equipment and ASE Certified technicians. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. # Sacred Heart 8th Grade Girls Win State, NE CYO Championships

The Sacred Heart eighth grade girls' basketball team recently captured both the state and New England CYO championships.

In the states, Sacred Heart won three tough games and was led by Rebecca Goreham, who averaged 24 points per game in the tournament.

"Nobody had an answer for Rebecca," said head coach Russ Goreham. "She excelled in all phases of the game. Boo was definitely our MVP. She just dominated in all three games."

In the championship, Meagan Tobin powered the offense, shooting 6-for-8 from the 3-point line for 18 points. She dismantled the opposition's zone defense, opening up the inside for Sacred Heart.

In the New England Championships, Sacred Heart traveled to Manchester, N.H., where it received a first-round bye. Sacred Heart turned in a total team effort in the next two games.

Goreham and Tobin led the offense, averaging 22 and 14 points, respectively. Catherine Feeney and Rachel Goreham shut down the opposition's big girls with their physical play in the paint.

Paige Bonanni and Kasey O'Connell controlled the pace of both games from start to finish. "Paige and Kasey were a solid one-two punch at the point," coach Goreham said. "They played great defense and ran the offense flawlessly."

Mary Kate Stille played well on both ends of the court throughout the tournament. "Mary sets the tone for this team," coach Goreham said. "She does all the little things that it takes to win basketball games."

Julie Kisielius, Kathryn Carella and Alex Nee gave Sacred Heart strong minutes off the bench. "Their attitude and effort rubbed off on everybody on the Sacred Heart team," said coach Goreham and assistant coach Jim Bonanni. "Sacred Heart was a better team because of this.

"This team earned everything they have accomplished. We are extremely proud of this team. They were a joy to coach."

The team thanked Mark Jaehnig for giving them the opportunity to play in a program that allows over 750 kids to play basketball over a four-month period. It also thanked Father John O'Brien, pastor of Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy, for his support.

Peter Racicot Named Chairman Of QMC Golf Tournament

Peter Racicot, vice president of Business Development for Fallon Ambulance Service, has been named chairman of the 15th annual Quincy Medical Center Golf Classic.

Racicot, a Weymouth resident, is also president of the Quincy Rotary Club and is active in many South Shore area business and philanthropic endeavors. He is also a member of the Quincy Medical Center Foundation Board of Directors.

"It is vital for our community to have a top-notch hospital like Quincy Medical Center," Racicot said. "The hospital's affiliation with Boston Medical Center offers area residents advanced care in cardiology, emergency services, diabetes, general and vascular surgery, orthopedics, psychiatry, occupational health, rehabilitation services and women's health. Support of the hospital's many essential services is critical to the health and well-being of the community."

This year's tournament will be held Monday, June 28, beginning at noon at the new Granite Links Golf Club at Quarry Hills in Quincy and Milton. A free golf clinic by a PGA Professional will be held for non-tournament players at 3:30 p.m. Following the clinic, there will be a cocktail reception, buffet dinner, and a live and silent auction.

The QMC Golf Classic benefits the medical center's state-of-the-art Simon C. Fireman Diagnostic Imaging Center. The center was launched four years ago by a $1 million challenge grant from the Simon C. Fireman Charitable Foundation. Over the past 14 years, the Golf Classic has raised nearly a $1 million and ranks as one of the leading tournaments on the South Shore. This year's goal is to raise $175,000.

Sponsorship opportunities are available at a variety of levels. Last year's tournament sold out well in advance of the event. To register for the tournament or to learn more about sponsorship, contact Amy Klotz, development officer at QMC, at 617-376-5493 or aklotz@quincymc.org.

Quincy Granite Baseball Sweeps Pawtucket, Hosts Phillies Sunday

Coming off two losses opening day to Mass. Independent Baseball League champion Brockton Reds, the Quincy Granite Baseball Club Sunday swept the visiting Pawtucket Blacksox, 12-8, 11-2, to improve to .500.

Quincy will host the S.S. Phillies this Sunday beginning at 9 a.m. at O'Rourke Field.

In the first game, Quincy fell behind 7-0 before coach Jason Riley pulled ace pitcher Sean MacLean, who allowed seven runs (five earned) in 2 1/3 innings. Brian Deptula allowed just one run on two hits to close the game, enabling his team to come back.

"Four years ago, down seven, I would have said no way," Riley said. "But the way MacLean was greeted after such a performance — the unity, the confidence. This was a meaningful win."

In the second game, Rob Celata, a 2000 North Quincy High School graduate, took the hill after a complete-game loss in his first outing — his first game in more than two years. He pitched six innings, giving up one earned run while striking out eight and walking four.

"The walks will soon become strikeouts," Riley said. "Rob has really improved and I'm sure he will continue as the season goes on. He is excited to be back playing ball."

Joe Flynn tossed a 1-2-3 seventh inning. In both games, the offense was a team effort.

Riley still awaits the arrival of his catcher, John Fidalgo (Johnson & Wales), and the club's newest acquisition, 2003 Quincy High School graduate and left-handed pitcher Rob Muollo (Dean College). They will not be available until their commitment to their college is over and are eligible to play summer ball.

The Quincy Granite baseball club thanked Ray Cattaneo and the Quincy Park Department and its three sponsors: Jerry Mulvey, Granite Rail Pub; Bob Beniers, Beacon Sports; and Sean Thompson, Sean's Barber Shop.

Richie Moore Golf Tournament June 7

The third annual Richie Moore Classic Golf Tournament will be held Monday, June 7, at Widow's Walk Golf Course in Scituate.

All proceeds from the charity event will benefit the Jimmy Fund at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Donation for golfer or sponsors is $100. For golfers, the donation includes greens fees, a golf cart and dinner. Sponsors will receive a sign stating their business on a specific hole.

Tee time is 8:30 a.m. A dinner event will follow the tournament at 2 p.m. at the Quincy Outback Steakhouse.

For more information, contact Shawn Craig at 781-910-1524.

Presidents' Ladies Golf Results

The Presidents' Ladies Association recently opened its season with the Opening Day Florida event at Presidents' Golf Course.

The event was one of the largest sponsored by the association, with seven teams being awarded prizes.

The association was founded in 1981 to promote greater interest in the game of golf with due attention to all rules governing play of game, course rules and to provide social activities for the membership.

The association is currently made up of over 200 members who share a common interest in furthering the game of golf and at the same time enjoying it among themselves at a competitive and social level.

The association's next major tournament will be a mixed tournament Sunday, May 2.

Post-Exercise Nausea, Dizziness

Q: I sometimes suffer a slight bout of nausea and dizziness after completing my cardiovascular exercises. Both subside after a few minutes. Could this mean I'm exercising at an intensity too strenuous for my fitness level? Or do these symptoms mean something else? — *J.M., Willingboro, N.J.

A: There are many reasons that exercisers — both the fit and the out-of-shape — may have feelings of nausea and dizziness following exercise. It's important that you not ignore these symptoms and take steps to remedy them.

It's always a good idea to consult with your physician before starting an exercise program. Certain medical conditions such as low blood pressure, hypoglycemia, pregnancy and diabetes could possibly produce symptoms of nausea and dizziness following exercise. Your doctor will let you know how to approach exercise if you have these conditions, which should lower the chances of nausea and dizziness occurring.

Once you have been cleared by your physician, consider the following:

• Remember to warm up before attempting a high intensity exercise. The increased blood flow that a warm-up sends throughout your body will give you the support you need for the upcoming exercises. And once you've finished that high intensity exercise, cool down. This will allow the extra blood that was sent to your muscles during exercise to circulate efficiently back to your brain and heart — and prevent dizziness.

• Lack of proper nutrition before exercise can also cause nausea and dizziness. Consume a light snack before starting, and stay hydrated (especially when exercising in a hot and humid environment).

• Develop an exercise program that's right for you. If you continually have feelings of dizziness or nausea during cardiovascular exercise, consider changing the type and intensity of your exercises. For example, walking on the treadmill may lead to symptoms of dizziness and nausea, while riding the bicycle may not. Trying to read or watch TV on the elliptical trainer may give you motion sickness, while doing the same things on the treadmill may not. Find out what works best for you.

• Always monitor your exercise intensity. Working out at an intensity that is too strenuous for your current level of fitness can not only make you nauseous and dizzy, it can put you at risk for injury and keep you from reaching your fitness goals.

American Cancer Society Offers 'I Can Cope' Educational Series

Cancer patients, family members and caregivers are invited to attend the American Cancer Society's "I Can Cope" program series which will take place in four consecutive weeks beginning Monday, May 3 at Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology P.C., 10 Willard Street, Quincy.

The workshop is free and each session will take place from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

"I Can Cope" is a continuing series of educational courses for adults with cancer and their loved ones provided in supportive environments led by local physicians, nurses, oncology social workers or other professionals.

Each program is designed to help participants with selected aspects of their cancer experience by increasing their knowledge, positive attitudes and skills.

Workshop dates and topics are:

• May 3: "Understanding Cancer Treatments."

• May 10: "Managing Side Effects - Keeping Well in Mind & Body."

• May 17: "Communicating Concerns and Feelings - Exploring Self-esteem and Intimacy

• May 24: "Mobilizing Resources and Support-Celebrating Life."

"I Can Cope" sessions are predicated on the idea that learning is enhanced in the presence of other people with whom you are sharing a common experience.

Space is limited. To register for the program, or for more information, call Donna Flynn at 617-479-3550.

Registration will be on a first come, first serve basis.

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide, community-based, voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education, advocacy and service.

For more information, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

Are You Sneezing?

By DR. BARBARA CHANG, D.C.

Are you experiencing sneezing? Do you have a runny or clogged nose?

A pollen allergy can cause itching, watering or puffy eyes, dark circles under your eyes, headache, fatigue, mouth breathing, asthma, wheezing and coughing, or muscle cramps?

Registration Open For Jimmy Fund Walk

If you didn't run the Boston Marathon, why not walk it?

Online registration is now open for the 16th annual Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk to be held Sunday, Sept. 19.

The walk offers participants a unique opportunity to use the sanctioned marathon course from Hopkinton to Boston. More importantly, it gives participants a chance to make a difference in the lives of cancer patients, now and in the future.

Over its 15-year history, the Jimmy Fund Walk has contributed more than $31 million to support cancer research and care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. This year's walk is expected to raise more than $4.75 million.

All walkers on the Hopkinton (26.2 miles) and Wellesley (13.1 miles) routes must raise a minimum of $200 in contributions; for the 3-mile Patient/Family Walk, the requirement is $200 for walkers age 13 and older and $100 for walkers age 12 and younger.

Membership in the Pacesetter Club is given to walkers who raise more than $750. Pacesetters receive an exclusive T-shirt and bib number, have their names announced at the Copley Square finish line, and are recognized at a special reception held in their honor.

Online tools are available for walkers to use for registration as well as to support them in their goals. The system allows walkers to create personal web pages, send personalized e-mails to supporters and track fund-raising progress.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

ZOOM IN FOR A CLOSE-UP

After appearing on ABC's Extreme Makeover television program, the Zoom! In-Office Whitening System has garnered much attention. This new tooth whitening system makes use of a proprietary whitening gel that is applied to teeth and then activated by a special light to remove deep stains and discoloration. Whitening power is maximized by new surfactant technology that improves gel penetration and controlled release of oxygen into the teeth. Not only does the procedure take just over an hour, but it provides dramatic results. While each case is individual, most people can expect to see their teeth become six to ten shades lighter. Compared to tooth-whitening procedures that are gradual and/or involve wearing trays, Zoom! provides both excellent, near-immediate results and convenience.

We encourage you to improve your smile May is "International Dental Awareness Month." Our goal is to help you enjoy your teeth throughout a lifetime, and teeth whitening can help make that possible. We want to welcome you to modern dentistry and an unparalleled level of service in your search for a beautiful smile. Call 617-479-0220 to schedule a dental appointment. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street and we invite you to visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

PS: Zoom! whitening sessions are followed by a two-minute fluoride procedure to complete the treatment.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

All of us want our cars to run smoothly and efficiently so we take time to have them checked to make sure that all mechanical aids are in running order . . . Let's think about another important check-up to be made. How's your driving mental attitude? Can't you go over that and tighten it up a little? Fill it with courtesy. For in that word . . . Courtesy . . . can be found the key to most of our driving ills.

Courtesy often is nothing more than a highly developed sense of fair play . . . A friend told me once of driving along a narrow, unpaved mountain road. Ahead was another car that produced clouds of choking dust and it was a long way to the nearest paved highway. Suddenly, at a wider place, the car ahead pulled off the road. My friend, thinking there might be engine trouble, stopped and asked if anything was wrong. "No," said the other driver. "But you've endured my dust this far; I'll put up with yours the rest of the way." There was a man of good manners, a man with an innate sense of fair play.

Perhaps if all motorists were more courteous, possessed of the same degree of consideration as this driver, we would witness an automotive death rate far lower than ever imagined!

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might need to do a bit more investigating before making a career move. You do best when you come armed with the facts. A personal matter still needs tending to.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your good business sense once more combine to give you an important advantage in a difficult workplace situation. An ally proves his or her loyalty.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Avoid rushing into something just because it offers a break from your usual routine. Take things a step at a time to be sure you're moving in the right direction.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Bouncing back from a disappointing incident isn't easy, but you should find a welcome turn of events emerging. Spend the weekend with someone special.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An incomplete project needs your attention before someone else takes it over and uses it to his or her advantage. There'll be lots of time for fun and games once you get it done.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Doubts involving a potential career change need to be resolved quickly so they don't get in the way when you feel you're finally ready to make the big move.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Looking to blame someone for a workplace problem could backfire if it turns out you've got the wrong "culprit." Best to get more facts before acting on your assumptions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Patience might still be called for until you're sure you finally have the full story that eluded you up till now. A trusted associate could offer valuable guidance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Look into your recent behavior to see if you could have caused the coolness you might now be sensing from a loved one. If so, apologize and set things straight.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Easing up on your social activities allows you to focus more of your energies on a long-neglected personal matter. You can get back into party mode by the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A dispute with a colleague can be resolved peacefully once you both agree to be more flexible about the positions you've taken and allow for more open-minded discussions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Volunteering to take on added responsibilities could be a risky way to impress the powers-that-be. Do it only if you're sure you won't be swept away by the extra workload.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of self-awareness allows you to make bold moves with confidence.

Frank J. Villa, 83

South Shore's 'Whistling Ice Man'

A memorial Mass for Frank J. Villa, 83, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., formerly of Quincy, known on the South Shore as the "Whistling Ice Man," was celebrated April 24 at St. Joseph's' Church.

He died March 19 at home.

Mr. Villa started selling ice when he was 13. He had his own business at age 17 delivering ice to homes and businesses in Quincy and nearby towns. He unloaded six to eight tons of ice a day, charging 15 cents for every 40 pounds. He would sing loudly as he delivered blocks of ice to homes to let his customers know he was on his way.

During the 1940s, he made daily trips to the Fore River shipyard and supplied the nearby bars with ice.

Eventually, Mr. Villa expanded his business to include the sale of range and fuel oil. He delivered the fuel to many low-income families for whom he collected and donated furniture and food. His company was called Villa's Ice and Oil.

In 1985, the Quincy Community Action Programs presented him with a plaque for his services.

He served in the Army during World War II.

An avid square dancer and round dancer, he participated in New England exhibitions for 30 years.

He was a member of the Sons of Italy and the Auxiliary Fire Department.

Born in Sears Port, Maine, he moved to Quincy in 1938. In 1979, he moved to Weymouth and retired to Ft. Lauderdale several years ago.

Husband of the late Winifred M. (Gomer) Villa, he is survived by three daughters, Jackie Pletsch of Brockport, N.Y., Denine Kennedy of Plymouth and Andrea Williams of Ft. Lauderdale; a brother, Louis Villa of Norwell; a sister, Ann Monello of California; and six grandchildren.

Arrangements were by Baird-Case Funeral Home, Ft. Lauderdale.

Rose Fisher

Former Employee At Remick's

A funeral Mass for Rose (Wallent) Fisher of Randolph, formerly of Quincy and Brockton, a longtime employee at the former Remick's Department Store in Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at Holy Family Church, 403 Union St., Rockland.

She died April 25 at Norwell Knoll Nursing Home after a long illness.

She worked in the men's furnishings department, fitting Ted Williams and many other Boston luminaries for clothing.

She was a longtime fan of the Rockland High School basketball program, which was coached by her son.

Mrs. Fisher was born, grew up and educated in Brockton. She lived in Quincy for many years and in Randolph for the past 21 years.

Wife of the late Vincent Chignola and the late Arthur Fisher, she is survived by a son, Robert A. Fisher of Marshfield; a brother, Joseph Wallent of Florida; and two grandsons.

Burial will be in Melrose Cemetery in Brockton.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Magoun-Biggins Funeral Home in Rockland.
